Sen. Behr Sees Youth Building Better Values

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

Marin's state senator, Peter H. Behr of Tiburon, has made his mark on the Establishment while staying within its conventional values, but is convinced the new generation is building a significantly better system of values.

"The older generation felt that a proper goal was the reasonable quest, within certain frameworks of morality, for money, and along with money, position, and along with position, power.

"The younger generation questions this and is more inclined to ask not 'who you are,' but 'what you are.' Not 'what you have done,' but 'what you have been.' This is moving away from the subjective, egocentric approach to a different value system — which is certainly a more proper one."

But the senator admitted to an occasional "sense of anger at the ease with which the younger generation presumes the priorities of the older generation may be reordered, and also the complete discarding of many of the priorities of the older generation which the older generation still believes are valid."

Behr cited "the need to make a reasonable profit, the dignity of work, perhaps for work itself and what it brings to a person's character and enjoyment," as values still "of great meaning and depth" to many older persons.

If you attempt to bury this whole concept . . . focusing on the unhappy byproducts of the private enterprise system, with no concern and no appreciation of its productivity and what it means to our way of life and our overall enjoyment, then I think you begin to understand why many older people get quite angry."

Behr acknowledged that "there's always been, and always will be a generation gap," but that the gap was wider than ever before because this younger generation questions the basic values of the "system."

The 54-year-old attorney has three children, a married daughter, 27, who graduated from Stanford University, a son, 23, who graduated last June from Yale University and is a Navy officer, and a second daughter, 20, who is a sophomore at the University of California, Berkeley.

Behr said he was optimistic that the future would see improvements in "the human quality of life" as well as in the quality of the air you breathe and the water you drink. "One has to be an optimist to some extent in politics, and I come by it naturally," he said.

"I have great respect and faith in the younger generation. It's the most brilliant and most energetic generation I've ever seen.

"Now, of course, there's this overlay of youngsters who have become lost partly through drugs or partly because of the very complexity of life and the difficult moral changes it may bring. But I don't think this is so different in percentage from what took place in my generation.

"I think, however, that the formerly submerged dropouts and misfits — temporary dropouts and often temporary misfits — have become exceedingly visible and their bizzare appearance — at least bizzare sometimes to my generation — creates an additional gap between the generations which is very unfortunate. I think it will tend to lessen as more and more people realize that appearance is simply a new youth style."

PETER H. BEHR
"Optimism, moments of anger"

He predicted that the younger generation will lose some of its zest for new values as it matures, but will be far more successful than preceding generations in holding on to its own values. Certainly marked for permanent discard, he said, was "the accumulation of wealth which in our generation we used as a synonym for security." Position and power also were marked as discarded goals by the younger generation, he said.

Behr rejected the claim by militants that the nation's political institutions do not respond to the need for change. "Our political process does respond — not as fast as many of us would wish — and I think it's possible to work within the system. Where pressures become more acute, response will quicken.

"The very nature of our system, while it doesn't lend itself to great speed, has proved itself adaptable to great speed during great emergencies.

"And I think we're faced with a number of great emergencies, and I think we're going to see a good deal of fast action on the part of government — once government becomes less schizophrenic and understands that what is happening is not the result of some passing fashion, but a basic underlying groundswell of changed philosophy which government has the responsibility of implementing — expeditiously."

Agnew Smells 'Odor'

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Vice President Spiro T. Agnew today praised J. Edgar Hoover as a "dedicated, steel-willed public servant with 20-20 vision" on national security and crime, and said criticism of the FBI chief has "an unpleasant political odor."

In the most detailed defense of the FBI director by a top official of the Nixon administration, Agnew said recent attacks on Hoover came mainly from Democratic presidential aspirants.

In a speech, he mentioned specifically Sens. George S. McGovern and Edmund S. Muskie.

"These opportunists are being aided and abetted by certain of their friends in the liberal news media who automatically shout 'right on' every time someone claims his civil liberties have been threatened regardless of the transparency of such charges," Agnew said.

The vice President, in the text of a prepared speech for the Southern Gas Association in New Orleans, said he was sure most allegations against Hoover and the FBI would vaporize or be disproved.

But he expressed concern that the agency could be damaged even if the allegations were refuted.

"If the FBI suffers from these attacks, all law enforcement in America will suffer," Agnew said.

"And we can ill afford that, particularly at a time in our history when the FBI and the police of this nation have their hands full maintaining order and preserving our institutions of government from those who tear down our society."

Agnew was speaking in the home state of House Democratic Whip Hale Boggs, who triggered fresh controversy over FBI activity and Hoover's leadership with charges of FBI wiretapping or surveillance of members of Congress.

Agnew did not mention Boggs by name, referring to him only as a "wellknown congressman who claimed that his and other members' phones had been tapped and demanded the immediate resignation of J. Edgar Hoover."

Suggesting that Boggs had failed to prove his contentions, Agnew said "I don't think that case deserves any further comment."

The chairman of the House Judiciary Committee, Rep. Emanuel Celler, D-N.Y., said Sunday that whether or not congressmen's phones might be tapped, talk about it had inhibited private conversations of many lawmakers.

Agnew dismissed the allegations, saying with the FBI's heavy responsibility for fighting crime "there just isn't much time available for spying on Congress."

He said attacks on Hoover and the FBI usually has come from subversives, mobsters, extremists and anarchists, but the latest is from another direction.

Inflation Under Control, Nixon Tells Businessmen

Urges More Optimism For Free Enterprise

WASHINGTON (UPI) — To the applause of businessmen, President Nixon reaffirmed his strong faith today in the nation's free enterprise system and expressed determination to prevent a rekindling of inflationary fires.

Three thousand delegates to the annual convention of the U. S. Chamber of Commerce interrupted Nixon several times for applause during his speech touching on America's future.

The most enthusiastic applause came when he spoke of his continuing drive to wind down the war, and expressed confidence in free enterprise.

He departed several times from his text to express his confidence in the soundness and health of the economy and to appeal for faith in the future among all segments of the public —business as well as private citizens.

He said there was evidence that "the worst of inflation is behind us, and I am determined to see to it that it stays behind us."

Nixon said the nation was on the way to the kind of expansion that it "needs to provide new jobs for workingmen and new opportunities for businessmen."

Touching on Vietnam —with antiwar protests continuing in Washington —Nixon said: "Our goal is a total withdrawal of all American forces from Vietnam in a way that will assure the return of our prisoners of war and will give the South Vietnamese a chance to prevent a Communist takeover. You can be confident that we have a policy which will achieve that goal."

The President added that everyone has "a right to be confident that the United States will use its strength only to build peace with freedom, never to destroy it."

Nixon urged rejection of the counsel of "new isolationists" and called for confidence in the system that he said had made America the "most generous and compassionate nation on the face of the earth."

"The system that has delivered more self-respect to more human beings than any other system devised by man deserves to be treated with more respect itself," the President said.

"The only way this nation can succeed is for the men and women who believe in its future, who are confident in themselves and their country, to stand up and be counted," he declared.

The audience stood and applauded several times during the half-hour address in Constitution Hall, two blocks from the White House.

"Faith in the American future has never been misplaced," Nixon told the businessmen's convention. "It is not misplaced today. In dealing with the future of this country, if you want to be a realist, you have to be an optimist."

There is no disputing that — as antiwar protesters and others have charged —that "there are plenty of wrongs to be righted in our society," Nixon said.

"But let us never forget this: we shall never make the changes that are needed by throwing out our principles, throwing away our heritage or throwing up our hands."

Calling for a new surge of optimism and confidence in the nation's future, he said: "It is the confidence that comes from knowing that the character of the American people is strong; that the spirit and will of the United States is powerful; and that the free economic system —that supports all we can and do for ourselves and for others around the world —is sound and healthy."

Nixon insisted that inflation was now under control and forecast a period of solid, sustainable economic expansion.

He cited cost-of-living statistics for the first quarter of 1971 as evidence of economic improvement. Living costs that rose 6 per cent in 1969 were reduced to 2.7 per cent annual rate during the January-March period, Nixon noted.

"We have cut the rate of inflation in half," he declared. "the figures ahead will have their ups and downs but the worst of inflation is behind us and I am determined to see that it stays behind us."

The President said he would use the powers of his office to persuade business and labor to act responsibly to control inflation in the future.

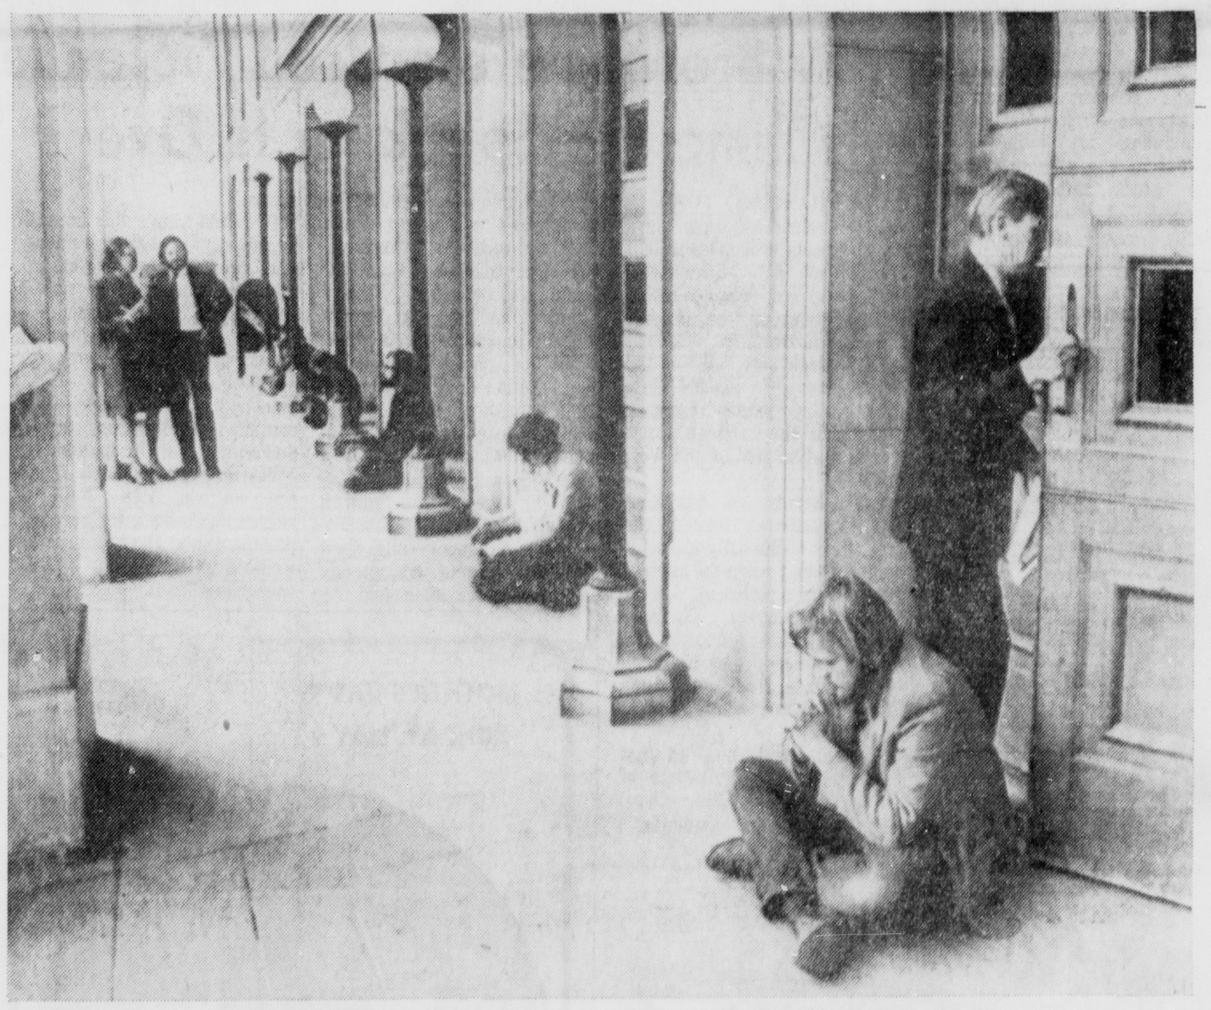
"Fighting inflation is not just government's business, it's everybody's business," he said.

He told businessmen they could be confident that full employment with price stability —a "new prosperity" —would be achieved with free markets, free competition, free bargaining and "free men."

He asked the businessmen for support of his effort to overhaul the nation's welfare system. But he assured them that he opposed "any scheme that makes it more profitable for an able-bodied person to sit at home rather than to go to work."

Nixon also said he opposed a guaranteed annual wage.

"The goal of the American system is not to guarantee everybody a living; it is to guarantee everybody an opportunity, a fair chance to be rewarded for his work."



ARRESTS AT PENTAGON SIT-IN

A small group of antiwar protesters were arrested this morning at one of the entrances to the Pentagon when they staged a sit-in that blocked the doors. A new stage in the continuing series of antiwar protests in the nation's capital, avowedly more militant than last week's, began this morning with protesters attempting to disrupt a Senate Foreign Relations Committee hearing. 'Rap Session' Series Begins In I-J Today

The Independent-Journal today introduces a monthlong series of interviews — called "Rap Session" — which it is hoped will produce a broader understanding of the varying points of view that serve to unite or to divide Americans.

Is the nation really divided into two camps, at odds with each other: youth and the over-thirties? Is either of those camps, if such exist, a monolithic subculture, uniform in its point of view and united against the other?

For the next four weeks, the I-J will publish daily interviews of persons over 30 and of youth, alternating the older and younger generations.

And during those four weeks, the I-J will simultaneously run a letter-writing contest (see details on page 16) on how readers think youth and the over-thirties may reach a better understanding of each other.

The daily interviews with as varied as possible a sampling of the local citizenry will seek opinion as to what's right and wrong with our society; what, if anything, can or should be done to improve it; whether our institutions permit change, or are so rigid that revolution is inevitable.

Pair Again Sailing In Rowboat

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — British adventurer John Fairfax and his girl friend shoved off for Sydney, Australia, today in their attempt to row 8,000 miles across the Pacific.

Fairfax, who already conquered the Atlantic, shouted "See you in Sydney" to newsmen aboard a press boat that left the two about 11 miles off the coast.

The pair pushed off from Fisherman's Wharf before dawn in their 35-foot rowboat "Britannia II," similar to the craft that Fairfax rowed in his solo journey across the Atlantic.

The couple made it less than a mile outside the Golden Gate in their first attempt last week when rough weather forced them back.

Newsmen said Fairfax experienced "some difficulty" with the waves around the San Francisco bay today but after that "the going was pretty good."

Fairfax says his boat, which has only a five foot beam and draws a foot of water, is "easy to row."

Reds Assert Yanks Fighting With Cong

PARIS (UPI)—A Viet Cong spokesman said today some U.S. Army deserters have joined the Viet Cong ranks and are fighting their own compatriots on the battlefields of South Vietnam.

Dung Dinh Thao, chief spokesman for the Viet Cong delegation to the Paris peace talks, said, "a certain number of American soldiers are fighting in the ranks of the National Liberation Front (Viet Cong)."

Dramatic Increase In Air Strikes

SAIGON (UPI)—Nearly 100 times since the Nov. 1, 1968, bombing halt U.S. planes have struck targets in North Vietnam and the frequency of such attacks is increasing, military sources say.

The U.S. Command began reporting its "protective reaction" air strikes against antiaircraft sites in North Vietnam last May. From the first reported strike until the end of 1970 there were seven such air raids.

So far this year there have been at least 30, military spokesmen said.

At the time of the first reported "protective reaction" air strike against North Vietnam, U.S. military sources said that "suppressive fire" had been employed against North Vietnamese antiaircraft sites more than 40 times between Nov. 1, 1968, and May 2, 1970. However, on ay 27, when the next such "protective reaction" was announced, the same source reexamined his records and said there had been "about 60" such strikes.

The reason for the increased frequency of such air strikes this year is that U.S. commanders changed the rules governing American aircraft flying over or near North Vietnam, military sources said.

During the first 26 months after former President Johnson announced the end of the bombing pause, American planes flying over or near North Vietnam were forbidden to fire at antiaircraft sites unless they were fired upon.

This year the rule was amended due to the increased deployment of SAM2 missiles and increased use of radar controlled conventional antiaircraft batteries in North Vietnam. Now a U.S. pilot may begin "suppressive fire" upon receiving electronic evidence of a radar "lock-on" by the communist antiaircraft gun or

'Rap Session' Series Begins In I-J Today

The Independent-Journal today introduces a monthlong series of interviews — called "Rap Session" — which it is hoped will produce a broader understanding of the varying points of view that serve to unite or to divide Americans.

Is the nation really divided into two camps, at odds with each other: youth and the over-thirties? Is either of those camps, if such exist, a monolithic subculture, uniform in its point of view and united against the other?

For the next four weeks, the I-J will publish daily interviews of persons over 30 and of youth, alternating the older and younger generations.

And during those four weeks, the I-J will simultaneously run a letter-writing contest (see details on page 16) on how readers think youth and the over-thirties may reach a better understanding of each other.

The daily interviews with as varied as possible a sampling of the local citizenry will seek opinion as to what's right and wrong with our society; what, if anything, can or should be done to improve it; whether our institutions permit change, or are so rigid that revolution is inevitable.

QUAKERS DENY NIXON — Some 123 Quakers were arrested Sunday in front of the White House under a law limiting the number of demonstrators permitted there. The Quakers were holding a vigil to emphasize they do not feel that President Nixon, also a Quaker, is a pacifist in the sense of the historic Quaker peace testimony made to King Charles II in 1661.

New Series Of Protests Starts

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The multitude which marched on the U.S. Capitol during the weekend was reduced to only a few hundred bed-rolled and bedraggled demonstrators today as antiwar organizers opened what they said would be another two weeks of more direct, and perhaps violent, protest.

The plans to tie up commuter rush hour traffic, shut down whole segments of the government and trigger a strike in the bureaucracy seemed out-of-reach as the remaining demonstrators played frisbee across the street from the White House, warmed themselves beside campfires along the Potomac River or slept in the backs of camper vans.

The Peoples Coalition for Peace and Justice, steering the remaining part of the spring offensive, was planning to open its attack with a peaceful invasion of congressional offices. Welfare mothers, some women's groups and perhaps some of the antiwar Vietnam veterans who demonstrated last week said they would join portions of the lobbying.

The coalition is led by Chicago Seven defendant Rennie Davis and generally is regarded as more militant than the National Peace Action Coalition which fathered Saturday's march on the seat of government.

The demonstrators who poured into Washington Saturday were urged by blue and white stickers and flags to "Stay for May" or "strike May 5." The early May segment of the protest is being pushed by the May Day Tribe, a segment of the coalition, also under Davis' control but containing more of Weathermen-type militants.

Jerry Gordon, national coordinator of Saturday's march, said the crowds here and in San Francisco were "peaceful and orderly, precisely as programmed and announced." He said the Washington crowd numbered in excess of 500,000, although the official police estimate was 175,000.

Whatever the figures, the crowd was one of the biggest ever seen in Washington, occupying the entire West Lawn of the Capitol, spilling down the hill into the Mall and backing up Pennsylvania Avenue toward the White House almost as far as the eye could see.

There were more blacks than in previous demonstrations, and a larger representation from labor and other groups. There were only a handful of arrests, the largest single incident occurring Sunday at the White House where 123 Quakers were arrested for crossing police lines on the Pennsylvania Avenue sidewalk in front of the mansion.

Why Brown Berets Used Violence — 'Time For Speaking Is Over'

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—A young Mexican-American says Brown Berets brought a violent climax to San Francisco's massive peace demonstration Saturday because "the time for speaking is over."

The march and rally at the Polo Grounds in Golden Gate Park drew 150,000 persons, making it the largest peace demonstration held on the West Coast.

The Berets, a militant Chicano group, forced the organizers of the rally to call it an abrupt halt when they seized the speaker's platform.

Samuel Sanchez, 25, said Sunday he was among a La Raza contingent that marched in the parade. He estimated his group at 8,000 "from all over the state."

Sanchez said he did not participate in the takeover of the platform but said "those who did had the contingent's backing."

"The whole idea behind the peace march was to get people together and talk," he said. "We feel that the time for speaking is over."

The seven-mile march through downtown San Francisco and subsequent rally drew business executives, trade unionists, servicemen and veterans.

"We didn't have this breadth of support in 1969," Lafferty said, referring to the Nov. 15, 1969, Moratorium Day march and rally in San Francisco.

Many began leaving when the Brown Berets took over the speaker's platform and launched into a series of rambling revolutionary tirades punctuated with obscenities.

Indian Protest

NEW DELHI (UPI)—The Indian government charged Pakistan today with violating diplomatic immunity by searching and harassing the wife of the head of its diplomatic mission in East Pakistan when she tried to leave the country.

Pakistan presented India with a diplomatic note which indicated it might ask for the repatriation of rebel Bengali staff members who are holding its diplomatic mission in Calcutta. It also said that safe conduct for Indian diplomats and documents in East Pakistan would be provided "strictly on the principle of reciprocity."

The two latest developments in the diplomatic war of nerves came with the passing of the deadline for formal termination of India's diplomatic post in the East Pakistan capital of Dacca and the corresponding end of Pakistan's diplomatic representation in Calcutta.

Space Mystery

MOSCOW (UPI)—The Soviet orbital station Salute swept around the Earth today, its future mission and its size a mystery despite a brief linkup with Soyuz 10.

The Soviet news agency Tass said Soyuz 10 soft-landed early Sunday in central Asia after the briefest Soviet manned space flight in four years —just short of two days. Its three-man crew, commander Vladimir Shatalov, Alexei Yeliseyev and Nikolai Rukavishinkov, returned safely aboard the ship.

Salute, launched a week ago, and Soyuz 10, sent aloft Friday, docked early Saturday morning and flew in a linkup for five and a half hours, Tass said.

The news agency added that they separated and flew in tandem until Soyuz 10 blasted out of orbit and returned to Earth. Salute continued to circle the Earth, its size and future mission a mystery.

Abortion Report

WASHINGTON (UPI) —New York City has registered a slight decrease in its birth rate and a steep decline in pregnancy-related deaths since abortions became legal last year, according to a city health official.

Dr. Jean Pakter, director of the city's Bureau of Maternity Services and Family Planning, said there were 34,826 births in New York City during the first three months of this year —a 4 per cent decline from the 36,280 births during the same period in 1970.

The state's abortion law, effective since July 1, also has resulted in a 56 per cent reduction in pregnancy-related deaths in a comparison of the same three-month periods.

Agnew On Protest

NEW ORLEANS (UPI)—Vice President Spiro T. Agnew said Sunday the number of persons attending the weekend antiwar rally on the capitol grounds was not overly impressive.

"The American people must not be misled simply because some 200,000 demonstrators marched in the streets of Washington," Agnew said. "After all, they are less than 2 per cent of our population."

Agnew, scheduled to address the Southern Gas Association conventioned today, said he agreed with the right of dissent but disagreed with the reasoning behind Saturday's demonstration.

"That dissent was organized on the basis that the President's policies of withdrawal from Vietnam are not correct," Agnew said. "I think they are entirely correct.

"I respect their right to dissent and demonstrate," he said. "I think demonstration, peaceful and orderly, is a legitimate means of dissent under our system. I wouldn't have given my permission for them to use the Capitol grounds had I not felt that way."

Israeli Plan Delay

Israel's plan for reopening the Suez Canal has been caught up in "clarification" proceedings in Washington and has not been relayed to Cairo, official Israeli sources said today.

Israeli newspapers said Prime Minister Golda Meir's government and the United States again are at odds, this time over at least two of the three main points in the Israeli stance.

The two allies were reported to differ over Israel's refusal to make withdrawal commitments and its demands for an Egyptian peace declaration.

Mrs. Meir met with her cabinet for three hours in Jerusalem Sunday to discuss these differences and begin digging in for what Israeli newspapers said will be tough negotiations when Secretary of State William P. Rogers arrives. Rogers was leaving Washington this morning for London, Paris and the Mideast.

'Spring Musicale' Slated Wednesday

San Rafael High School's concert and symphonic bands will present the sixth annual "Spring Musicale" at 8 p.m. Wednesday at the school auditorium.

The symphonic band will present "Elergy and Fanfare-March," by San Francisco State composer Roger Nixon while the concert band will feature the "Hebrides Suite" by Grundman and "Niagara" by Richard Fote.

Viet Cong Ends Battlefield Lull

SAIGON (UPI)—The Viet Cong ended a battlefield lull in South Vietnam this weekend with a series of attacks against U.S. and South Vietnamese bases the length and breadth of the country. Today they attacked six miles from Saigon—closest such attack in a year.

A spokesman said 10 Communist sappers attacked a regional force post six miles southwest of the capital early this morning inflicting "light" casualties on the defenders but no fatalities. Communist losses were not known.

In what the U.S. Command called six "significant" shelling attacks Sunday and early today the Communists killed six Americans and wounded 47. Two of the battles were within 23 miles of Saigon which, until the sapper attack, had been the closest fighting to the capital this year.

The South Vietnamese Command reported a total of 54 Communist-initiated incidents in the 24 hours ending at 6 a.m. today—the most since March 29. The incidents included 25 shelling attacks which killed five civilians and one soldier and wounded 12 persons.

During the attacks an American ammunition dump exploded two miles west of Qui Nhon, killing a South Vietnamese militiaman and wounding 10 militiamen and a civilian. Authorities said the cause of the explosion was "unknown."

Rogers Starts Tour Of Europe, Mideast

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Secretary of State William P. Rogers left today for a two-week tour of Europe and the Middle East in an effort to speed an interim agreement between Egypt and Israel on reopening the Suez Canal.

Rogers' special Air jforce jetliner left from nearby Andrews Air Force Base for London, where he will hold talks with British Foreign Secretary Sir Alec Douglas-Home and attend the foreign minister meeting of the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization. (SEATO).

Officials said Rogers would tell SEATO members of recent developments in U.S. relations with Mainland China and on President Nixon's troop withdrawals in Vietnam.

Following the SEATO meeting, Rogers will fly to Paris for a brief conference with French Foreign Minister Maurice Schumann before continuing to Ankara for the council meeting of the Central Treaty Organization—a loose alliance which links Great Britain, Turkey, Pakistan and Iran.

But the unusual diplomatic effort of Rogers' journey will come following the CENTO meeting when he swings through the Middle East, stopping in Jordan, Saudi Arabia, Lebanon, Egypt, and Israel.

The purpose of this journey, the first by a U.S. Secretary of State to the Middle East since 1953, will be to emphasize America's deep desire to see progress on an agreement to reopen the Suez waterway and secondly, its hope for a permanent Mideast peace settlement.

Aides said Rogers does not expect his talks with high officials, including Egyptian President Anwar Sadat and Israeli Prime Minister Golda Meir, will result immediately in an interim agreement under which the Suez Canal could be opened.

The secretary, officials said, would be satisfied if it were possible to narrow the differences between the Egyptian and Israeli positions on reopening the Suez, which has been locked since the Arab-Israeli war of 1967.

Progress towards this interim goal, the officials said, would go a long way toward dissipating some of the age-old suspicions which have bedeviled diplomats in their search for a permanent Middle East peace settlement.

Another boon of the space age has been accomplished for the home owner . . . an exterior wall coating so tough and durable that it is guaranteed to totally eliminate exterior house painting for over 15 years. This remarkable textured coating is asbestos KENITEX.

The Atomic Energy Commission has used KENITEX texture Coating for several years at Los Alamos, New Mexico, atomic plant. Thousands of gallons of this remarkable exterior surfacing have been applied to provide weatherproofing and beauty, far outlasting ordinary paint.

Over 1,000,000 KENITEX applications on homes, commercial and industrial buildings throughout the world, 10,000 in Southern California alone, remain in perfect condition after more than 15 years exposure in all weather extremes.

The Veterans' Administration, Sawtelle, in Los Angeles, has applied KENITEX to the exteriors of their buildings. The Kenitex coating is applied in one quick spray application without muss, fuss or odor — at a thickness 20 times that of ordinary paint. It fills holes, cracks and hides building defects, yet does not conceal the original architectural lines.

Homes and Guided Missiles
Unique among KENITEX applications is the use on guided missiles where its insulating properties shield the missile from extreme temperatures. KENITEX obtains these qualities from its basic components of asbestos, mica and perlite, which are noted for their insulation and durability.

College Lists Summer Classes

College of Marin will repeat its four-days-a-week schedule for summer school classes beginning June 21, according to Berkeley Johnson, dean of instruction.

The experiment tried last summer was popular with students because it gave them more time for recreation or part-time jobs, Johnson said. Most classes will be scheduled for two-hour sessions between 8 a.m. and noon. More than 60 courses will be offered, with registration scheduled for May 10.

A later session with a limited number of courses will begin Aug. 2, Johnson said. Summer session classes also will be conducted in San Quentin Prison during June and July.

Teachers To Ask Policy Change

A modification of the Mill Valley School District's sabbatical leave policy will be requested by the Mill Valley Teachers Association when the district board meets at 8 p.m. today at Edna Maguire School.

Under current district policy the board has the option of approving or turning down leave requests. Teachers want a minimum of two sabbaticals to be made available for teachers each year.

Also on the agenda is a report on progress in selling two district-owned parcels of land, the 5.13-acre Alice Eastwood site and the 1.68-acre Harvard Avenue site.

C-47 Explodes, Kills Five At Cheyenne

CHEYENNE, Wyo. (UPI)— An Air Force C47 twin-engine plane which had just carried 15 young cadets to the Air Force Academy exploded in a ball of flame Sunday as it attempted to land at Cheyenne Municipal Airport. All five men aboard were killed.

"The plane exploded as soon as it hit the ground," said Ed Nation, an eyewitness. "You couldn't see anything but a ball of fire."

Nation said he thought the pilot intentionally dived into muddy ground surrounding the field to avoid a residential area. He said the plane appeared to be operating at full power at the time of the crash.

All five of the victims were stationed at nearby Warren Air Force Base. The base has no airport, but its planes use the municipal runway.

Officials said one of the victims, Lt. Col. Frank L. Trochak, 48, had planned to retire next month

Also killed were Maj. Fabian Dauzvardis, 41, of Chicago, operations branch chief for the 321st Strategic Missile Squadron; Maj. James C. Veach, 35, Pensacola, Fla., First Geodetic Survey Squadron, and S. Sgt. Paul Huston, 28, Vallejo, Calif., assigned to the Warren AFB hospital.

The name of the fifth victim was wihheld pending notification of family.

Fire trucks trying to reach the flaming wreckage became bogged down in a field turned to mud by rain and snow.

Dormitory Blaze At Stanford University

STANFORD (UPI) —A fire of "suspicious origin" heavily damaged a lounge in a dormitory at Stanford University today within minutes of two unsuccessful arson attempts.

Damage in the blaze at the Juniper House Lounge of Wilbur Hall dormitory was estimated at $50,000 to $75,000.

Stanford Fire Chief Frank Jurian said the fire appeared to be "of suspicious origin."

"It was a real hot, fast fire," he said. However, he said there was "nothing yet on the cause."

About 75 students were routed from their beds and assisted firemen with cleanup operations after the flames were doused. Fireman John Kelley suffered a cut hand.

An attempt was made only minutes before to burn the Tressider Union catering truck. This fire was extinguished before firemen arrived.

An attempt was also made to burn a motorcycle in the school boathouse parking lot but was put out with little damage.

The same day investigators discovered six fueled but unfused firebombs in an attic above the English Department.

Germany Leads In Typewriters

The Federal Republic of Germany last year for the first time edged out the United States as the world's largest maker of typewriters, supplying 21 per cent of total global production, compared to 20 per cent by the United States.

As an exporter of typewriters, the FRG, with 23 per cent, ran second to Japan with 24 per cent.

Bartender's Body Is Found

The badly decomposed body of a 39-year-old Richmond bartender who drowned in San Francisco Bay Dec. 3 was recovered off Angel Island yesterday by the Coast Guard.

The remains of Bob Williams were brought ashore at the Corinthian Yacht Harbor in Belvedere by sheriff's deputies and the Marin County Coroner's Office.

Coroner's investigator Keith C. Craig said Williams, who was employed at a bar in Berkeley, fell overboard Dec. 3 while on a fishing trip in the bay off Berkeley.

Identification was made from papers in a wallet in Williams's pants pocket, Craig said.

Williams was a native of North Dakota. He is survived by his wife, Carolyn, of Mattoon, Ill., and his mother, Rose, of San Diego.

Funeral arrangements were pending today at Russell and Gooch Mortuary, Mill Valley.

Most of the "Protective reactions" involve firing of Shrike radar homing air to ground missiles which literally ride down the radar beam from the U.S. plane to the Communist radar transmitter. The 10-foot-long, 400 pound shrike is powered by a solid fuel rocket motor and has a conventional high explosive warhead. The original model, still used aboard some U.S. Navy aircraft flying over or near North Vietnam, had a range of about 10 miles, according to Jane's All the World's Aircraft.

An improved model Shrike is carried under the belly of the U.S. Air Force's F105 Thunderchief fighter-bombers, equipped with "Wild Weasel" electronic radar detection gear. The most effective Shrikes are the later models, military sources say. The Navy's Shrikes sometimes fall short of the target. The Air Force's seldom do.

Shrike was designed by the Naval Weapons Center at China Lake, Calif.

Since the bombing halt, a dozen U.S. planes have been shot down over North Vietnam, one this year. However, some of the 60 American planes shot down over Laos since the U.S. Command began announcing Laos aircraft losses last March, 10 were shot down by antiaircraft sites actually in North Vietnam but firing at planes bombing the Ho Chi Minh Trail in Laos, military sources said.

Some of the U.S. aircraft flying over North Vietnam are unarmed reconnaissance aircraft, escorted by armed fighter-bombers. The United States claims there was a "tacit understanding" when President Johnson halted the bombing of North Vietnam that American reconnaissance flights over North Vietnam could continue. The North Vietnamese dispute the claim.

Draw a line from Yankee Station in the Tonkin Gulf, where U.S. Navy carriers are based, to the Ho Chi Minh Trial in Laos and you'll readily see what other types of American planes fly over North Vietnam.

Avoiding flying over North Vietnam would add 150 miles to each sortie, Navy pilots say. That's only 15 minutes flight time for even a subsonic jet, but when the plane can only remain airborne for an hour or so without refueling, it's a major factor.

Maximum time over the target area means maximum bombing efficency. And that many miles look very important to a pilot flying a plane crippled by ground fire or running low on fuel.

Since the U.S. Command began announcing "proctective reactions" last May, there have been five "massive retaliation" air raids, military spokesmen said. These involve use of bombing and strafing attacks as well as missiles, sources said.

The first of those occurred May 2-3, 1970, after a U.S. Air Force F4 fighter-bomber was shot down seven miles north of the Demilitarized Zone in North Vietnam on May 2 while escorting an unarmed reconnaissance plane. The number of American planes involved in that strike was not disclosed.

The next such "massive retaliation" air raid occurred last Nov. 21 and provided the cover for the abortive Green Beret raid on the Son Tay prisoner of war camp near Hanoi.

So far this year there have been three of the "massive" strikes into North Vietnam; 20 planes on Feb. 20, 50 planes on Feb. 21 and 15 planes on Feb. 28, U.S. command statistics show.

$4,800 Damage In Barn Fire

Three trucks from the Marin County Fire Department and another from the Synanon Foundation fought from 3:04 a.m. to 5:21 a.m. to put out the blaze on the Ernest Paoli Ranch on Marshall-Petaluma Road.

Marin Fire Chief Louis J. Bloom said the $3,000 barn and 60 tons of hay valued at $1,800 were destroyed. Bloom said no one was on the ranch at the time of the fire. It is leased by Clarence Moreda.

The cause of the fire is still under investigation.

The fire was reported by a Synanon watchman who spotted a huge glow north of the foundation, Bloom reported.

Accident Victim

Melinda Maas, 19, of 1145 Elm Drive, Novato was treated for cuts and bruises yesterday at Marin General Hospital as a result of an auto accident in Los Banos, Merced County Friday.

Two-Acre Minimum Rejected By Planners

The Marin County Planning Commission today rejected a proposal to restrict building sites to a minimum of two acres, or 97,120 square feet in most of Marin's rural areas where the minimum is presently 7,500 square feet.

The opposition was led by chairman Walter F. Freitas and new commissioner George P. Leonard of Stinson Beach, who attended his first meeting since taking over from Hugh Dougherty. Commissioners Edward Hageman and Eugene R. Trombley also opposed the two-acre minimum.

Voting for the minimum were Margaret B. Azevedo, John F. West and Jack G. Nixon.

The proposal, presented by planning director Werner Von Gundell, was to amend the county code and increase from 7,5000 square feet to two acres the minimum lot size in the limited agricultural (A-2) zone, which covers about two-thirds of the county, everything except the urban areas along the Highway 101 corridor and other populated centers.

Leonard said he would go for half-acre minimum. He and Freitas said the two-acre minimum would work a hardship on landowners adjacent to urban areas where home developments are contemplated.

Normand H. Traverso, representing the Marin Property Owners Association, suggested that the minimum lot size be left flexible so that a sliding scale approach can be used, with two-acre minimum applied next to agricultural preserve areas, and more density allowed closer to urban areas.

Carol Staley, representing the League of Women Voters of Central Marin, supported the two-acre minimum.

After rejecting the two-acre proposal the planning commissioners decided to hold another hearing on May 10. At that time, they will consider a minimum lot size ranging anywhere between half acre and two acres to be applied to areas now zoned A-2.

Bennett Arrested Again

William Morgan Bennett of Kentfield, a member of the State Board of equalization, was booked into Marin County Jail yesterday on suspicion of drunken driving, after he was arrested by Sausalito police in the parking lot of the Valhalla Inn.

It was the second arrest in less than two months for the 52-year-old Bennett who was arrested in Sausalito March 4 and booked into jail for investigation of being drunk in public. He is to go on trial on that charge July 15.

Philip S. Ryan, Bennett's friend and one of his attorneys, said today the former state deputy attorney general "was not drunk" when he was arrested and added: "We will be able to prove that with overwhelming evidence."

At about 1:15 a.m. yesterday, Sausalito officer Blake Hoffman reported he observed an auto turning from south onto Second Street, driving erratically with its bright lights on, and followed the car into the restaurant lot.

Hoffman said Bennett emerged from the vehicle and, when asked to produce his driver's license, told the officer: "Tell me what I did' I don't have to show you anything."

The officer reported that Bennett was unsteady on his feet, had bloodshot eyes a strong odor of alcohol on his breath. Hoffman said Bennett called him an "arrogant punk," said he was twice as old as the officer and said: "I made the laws."

After he was placed in the patrol car under arrest, police reported Bennett told the officer: "I will kill you for this, you small-brained bastard."

Arresting officers said Bennett sat with his face against the car's separating screen on the way to the jail, despite requests from police that he sit back in the seat. They said Bennett struck his head on the screen when the police car braked to avoid a vehicle which had pulled in front of it and suffered an abrasion over his right eye and another on the bridge of his nose.

After being booked and freed on $360 bail, to appear in Marin Municipal Court tomorrow, Bennett was transported to Marin General Hospital where police reported he told the staff he had been beaten by the officers.

When the physician on call tried to treat him, police said Bennett refused to allow his face to be washed until photographs and been taken of the wounds.

Attorney Ryan today charged officer Hoffman with causing "serious damage" to his client's head and face "willfully and intentionally and in the most brutal manner imaginable."

Bennett himself told the Independent-Journal he was "an American citizen, well aware of my rights and responsibilities and also quite aware of the responsibility of a policeman toward a citizen."

He refused to comment further, but said he would have more to say about the case at a later time.

Fire Kills Sleeping Novato Boy

A 22-month-old boy, left sleeping alone in a Novato house with a candle in his tiny bedroom, died early yesterday morning as the house was engulfed in flames.

The dead child, Buddha D'Fonseca, was found by Novato firemen called after motorists saw the fire about 4:25 a.m. in the small frame house at 1504 Armstrong Avenue.

The little boy's mother, Louise Tillson, 20, was asleep at the time on a hillside about 150 feet in the rear of the house, as was a friend, Scott Allen Martin, 20, of 4 Devonshire Drive, Novato.

The mother told Novato police she did not know the house was on fire until she heard fire engines.

She said that she had last checked the baby, asleep on a mattress in a northwest bedroom, about 12:30 a.m. She said she left a candle in the bedroom but was not sure whether she had extinguished it, police said.

The mother, who gave her address as 2495 Novato Boulevard, said that she was watching the house for a woman friend, Beverly De Fonseca, who was out of town.

(Police said that Mrs. De Fonseca is not related to the dead baby but is currently married to the baby's father.)

The house is owned by an investment company and rented by Mrs. De Fonseca, according to Fire Chief Jack Kidder.

He said two teen-age youths first saw the fire and roused a neighbor who called the fire department. The boys did not identify themselves, he said, and he asked that they report any information they know about the fire to firemen.

When firemen arrived, the house was a mass of flames. They found the baby when the flames had been quelled enough to enter the home.

The cause of the fire is still under investigation.

Girl, 8, Robbed Outside Market

An 8-year-old Petaluma girl, on a family errand, was robbed of $4.32 yesterday by a young barefoot thief outside a Petaluma market, the victim's mother told police.

Mrs. Joyce Carney said her daughter, Tammy, told her a barefoot girl about 12 snatched a bag contining groceries and $4.32 in change outside the Roger Wilco Market on East Washington Street, where the purchases had been made.

The young thief, accompanied by a boy about 8, then ran, the child reported.

Dormitory Blaze At Stanford University

STANFORD (UPI) —A fire of "suspicious origin" heavily damaged a lounge in a dormitory at Stanford University today within minutes of two unsuccessful arson attempts.

Damage in the blaze at the Juniper House Lounge of Wilbur Hall dormitory was estimated at $50,000 to $75,000.

Stanford Fire Chief Frank Jurian said the fire appeared to be "of suspicious origin."

"It was a real hot, fast fire," he said. However, he said there was "nothing yet on the cause."

About 75 students were routed from their beds and assisted firemen with cleanup operations after the flames were doused. Fireman John Kelley suffered a cut hand.

An attempt was made only minutes before to burn the Tressider Union catering truck. This fire was extinguished before firemen arrived.

An attempt was also made to burn a motorcycle in the school boathouse parking lot but was put out with little damage.

The same day investigators discovered six fueled but unfused firebombs in an attic above the English Department.

The 10-foot-long, 400 pound shrike is powered by a solid fuel rocket motor and has a conventional high explosive warhead. The original model, still used aboard some U.S. Navy aircraft flying over or near North Vietnam, had a range of about 10 miles, according to Jane's All the World's Aircraft.

An improved model Shrike is carried under the belly of the U.S. Air Force's F105 Thunderchief fighter-bombers, equipped with "Wild Weasel" electronic radar detection gear. The most effective Shrikes are the later models, military sources say. The Navy's Shrikes sometimes fall short of the target. The Air Force's seldom do.

Shrike was designed by the Naval Weapons Center at China Lake, Calif.

Since the bombing halt, a dozen U.S. planes have been shot down over North Vietnam, one this year. However, some of the 60 American planes shot down over Laos since the U.S. Command began announcing Laos aircraft losses last March, 10 were shot down by antiaircraft sites actually in North Vietnam but firing at planes bombing the Ho Chi Minh Trail in Laos, military sources said.

Some of the U.S. aircraft flying over North Vietnam are unarmed reconnaissance aircraft, escorted by armed fighter-bombers. The United States claims there was a "tacit understanding" when President Johnson halted the bombing of North Vietnam that American reconnaissance flights over North Vietnam could continue. The North Vietnamese dispute the claim.

Draw a line from Yankee Station in the Tonkin Gulf, where U.S. Navy carriers are based, to the Ho Chi Minh Trial in Laos and you'll readily see what other types of American planes fly over North Vietnam.

Avoiding flying over North Vietnam would add 150 miles to each sortie, Navy pilots say. That's only 15 minutes flight time for even a subsonic jet, but when the plane can only remain airborne for an hour or so without refueling, it's a major factor.

Maximum time over the target area means maximum bombing efficency. And that many miles look very important to a pilot flying a plane crippled by ground fire or running low on fuel.

Since the U.S. Command began announcing "proctective reactions" last May, there have been five "massive retaliation" air raids, military spokesmen said. These involve use of bombing and strafing attacks as well as missiles, sources said.

The first of those occurred May 2-3, 1970, after a U.S. Air Force F4 fighter-bomber was shot down seven miles north of the Demilitarized Zone in North Vietnam on May 2 while escorting an unarmed reconnaissance plane. The number of American planes involved in that strike was not disclosed.

The next such "massive retaliation" air raid occurred last Nov. 21 and provided the cover for the abortive Green Beret raid on the Son Tay prisoner of war camp near Hanoi.

So far this year there have been three of the "massive" strikes into North Vietnam; 20 planes on Feb. 20, 30 planes on Feb. 21 and 15 planes on Feb. 28, U.S. command statistics show.

$4,800 Damage In Barn Fire

A barn fire today in rural Marshall caused an estimated $4,800 damage.

Three trucks from the Marin County Fire Department and another from the Synanon Foundation fought from 3:04 a.m. to 5:21 a.m. to put out the blaze on the Ernest Paoli Ranch on Marshall-Petaluma Road.

Marin Fire Chief Louis J. Bloom said the $3,000 barn and 60 tons of hay valued at $1,800 were destroyed. Bloom said no one was on the ranch at the time of the fire. It is leased by Clarence Moreda.

The cause of the fire is still under investigation.

The fire was reported by a Synanon watchman who spotted a huge glow north of the foundation, Bloom reported.

Accident Victim

Melinda Maas, 19, of 1145 Elm Drive, Novato was treated for cuts and bruises yesterday at Marin General Hospital as a result of an auto accident in Los Banos, Merced County Friday.

Two-Acre Minimum Rejected By Planners

The Marin County Planning Commission today rejected a proposal to restrict building sites to a minimum of two acres, or 97,120 square feet in most of Marin's rural areas where the minimum is presently 7,500 square feet.

The opposition was led by chairman Walter F. Freitas and new commissioner George P. Leonard of Stinson Beach, who attended his first meeting since taking over from Hugh Dougherty. Commissioners Edward Hageman and Eugene R. Trombley also opposed the two-acre minimum.

Voting for the minimum were Margaret B. Azevedo, John F. West and Jack G. Nixon.

The proposal, presented by planning director Werner Von Gundell, was to amend the county code and increase from 7,5000 square feet to two acres the minimum lot size in the limited agricultural (A-2) zone, which covers about two-thirds of the county, everything except the urban areas along the Highway 101 corridor and other populated centers.

Leonard said he would go for half-acre minimum. He and Freitas said the two-acre minimum would work a hardship on landowners adjacent to urban areas where home developments are contemplated.

Normand H. Traverso, representing the Marin Property Owners Association, suggested that the minimum lot size be left flexible so that a sliding scale approach can be used, with two-acre minimum applied next to agricultural preserve areas, and more density allowed closer to urban areas.

Carol Staley, representing the League of Women Voters of Central Marin, supported the two-acre minimum.

After rejecting the two-acre proposal the planning commissioners decided to hold another hearing on May 10. At that time, they will consider a minimum lot size ranging anywhere between half acre and two acres to be applied to areas now zoned A-2.

Bennett Arrested Again

William Morgan Bennett of Kentfield, a member of the State Board of equalization, was booked into Marin County Jail yesterday on suspicion of drunken driving, after he was arrested by Sausalito police in the parking lot of the Valhalla Inn.

It was the second arrest in less than two months for the 52-year-old Bennett who was arrested in Sausalito March 4 and booked into jail for investigation of being drunk in public. He is to go on trial on that charge July 15.

Philip S. Ryan, Bennett's friend and one of his attorneys, said today the former state deputy attorney general "was not drunk" when he was arrested and added: "We will be able to prove that with overwhelming evidence."

At about 1:15 a.m. yesterday, Sausalito officer Blake Hoffman reported he observed an auto turning from south onto Second Street, driving erratically with its bright lights on, and followed the car into the restaurant lot.

Hoffman said Bennett emerged from the vehicle and, when asked to produce his driver's license, told the officer: "Tell me what I did' I don't have to show you anything."

The officer reported that Bennett was unsteady on his feet, had bloodshot eyes a strong odor of alcohol on his breath. Hoffman said Bennett called him an "arrogant punk," said he was twice as old as the officer and said: "I made the laws."

After he was placed in the patrol car under arrest, police reported Bennett told the officer: "I will kill you for this, you small-brained bastard."

Arresting officers said Bennett sat with his face against the car's separating screen on the way to the jail, despite requests from police that he sit back in the seat. They said Bennett struck his head on the screen when the police car braked to avoid a vehicle which had pulled in front of it and suffered an abrasion over his right eye and another on the bridge of his nose.

After being booked and freed on $360 bail, to appear in Marin Municipal Court tomorrow, Bennett was transported to Marin General Hospital where police reported he told the staff he had been beaten by the officers.

When the physician on call tried to treat him, police said Bennett refused to allow his face to be washed until photographs and been taken of the wounds.

Attorney Ryan today charged officer Hoffman with causing "serious damage" to his client's head and face "willfully and intentionally and in the most brutal manner imaginable."

Bennett himself told the Independent-Journal he was "an American citizen, well aware of my rights and responsibilities and also quite aware of the responsibility of a policeman toward a citizen."

He refused to comment further, but said he would have more to say about the case at a later time.

Fire Kills Sleeping Novato Boy

A 22-month-old boy, left sleeping alone in a Novato house with a candle in his tiny bedroom, died early yesterday morning as the house was engulfed in flames.

The dead child, Buddha D'Fonseca, was found by Novato firemen called after motorists saw the fire about 4:25 a.m. in the small frame house at 1504 Armstrong Avenue.

The little boy's mother, Louise Tillson, 20, was asleep at the time on a hillside about 150 feet in the rear of the house, as was a friend, Scott Allen Martin, 20, of 4 Devonshire Drive, Novato.

The mother told Novato police she did not know the house was on fire until she heard fire engines.

She said that she had last checked the baby, asleep on a mattress in a northwest bedroom, about 12:30 a.m. She said she left a candle in the bedroom but was not sure whether she had extinguished it, police said.

The mother, who gave her address as 2495 Novato Boulevard, said that she was watching the house for a woman friend, Beverly De Fonseca, who was out of town.

(Police said that Mrs. De Fonseca is not related to the dead baby but is currently married to the baby's father.)

The house is owned by an investment company and rented by Mrs. De Fonseca, according to Fire Chief Jack Kidder.

He said two teen-age youths first saw the fire and roused a neighbor who called the fire department. The boys did not identify themselves, he said, and he asked that they report any information they know about the fire to firemen.

When firemen arrived, the house was a mass of flames. They found the baby when the flames had been quelled enough to enter the home.

The cause of the fire is still under investigation.

An 8-year-old Petaluma girl, on a family errand, was robbed of $4.32 yesterday by a young barefoot thief outside a Petaluma market, the victim's mother told police.

Mrs. Joyce Carney said her daughter, Tammy, told her a barefoot girl about 12 snatched a bag contining groceries and $4.32 in change outside the Roger Wilco Market on East Washington Street, where the purchases had been made.

The young thief, accompanied by a boy about 8, then ran, the child reported.

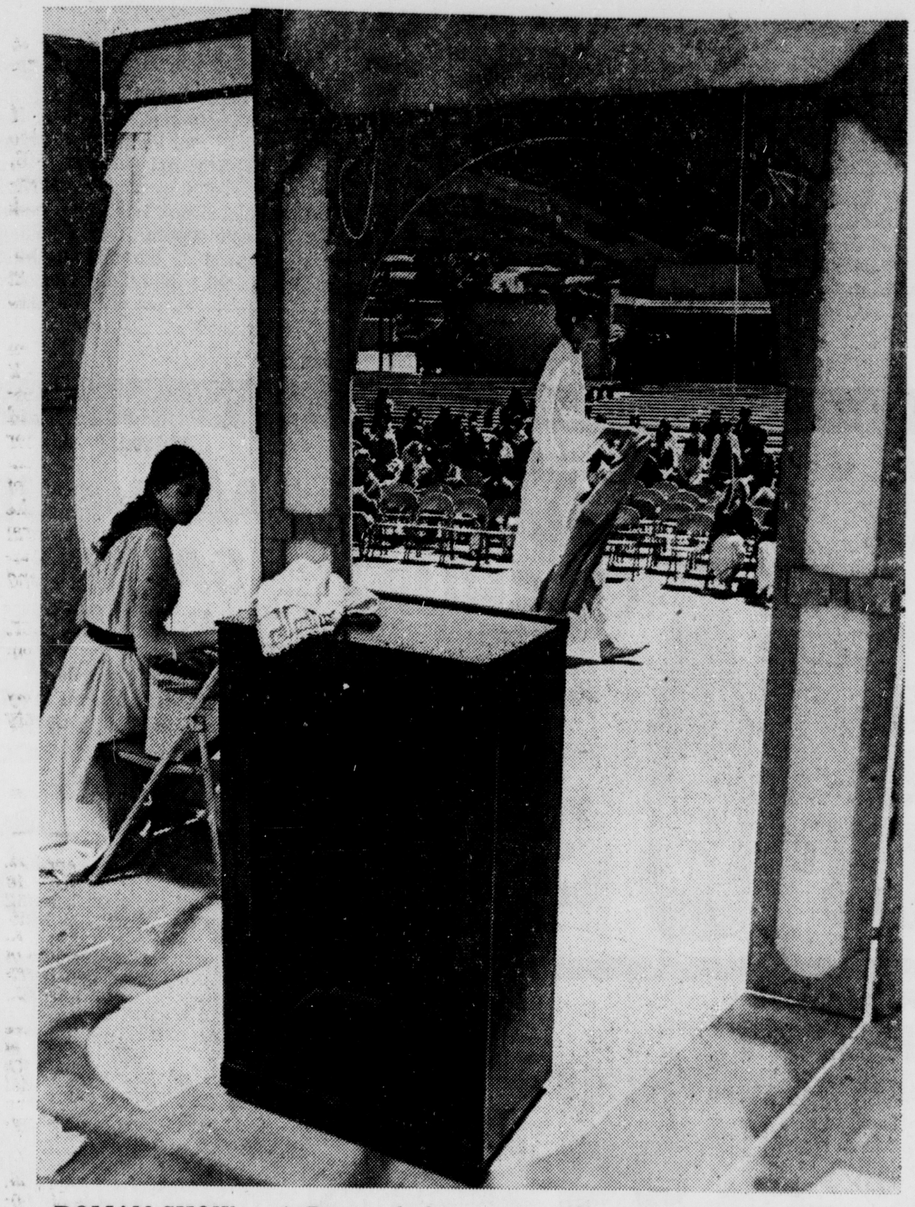
Keeping A Dead Language Alive



ROMAN SHOW — A Roman lady awaits her cue as a toga-clad young man strides across the stage. Roman customs and the Latin language came to life Saturday at Terra Linda High School as more than 300 students gave Roman plays, heard lectures on Rome and participated in a chariot race. Students from schools as far away as Paso Robles attended the Roman Days program.

Sonorous classic Latin echoed from the amphitheater at Terra Linda High School Saturday, as more than 300 students and adults proved that the so-called dead language is still alive and well in the schoolrooms.

Three Latin plays, a Roman style costume parade, a high-spirited chariot race and numerous scholarly lectures occupied the day, under the guidance of Marie Fontenrose and Adeliade Roberts, Latin teachers at Terra Linda and San Rafael high schools. Latin students from the two schools were joined by young scholars from Paso Robles, San Jose and the Easy Bay.

Though not planned as part of Public Schools Week observances, the events proved a fitting opener to the programs scheduled all this week at Marin and Southern Sonoma schools. An even more ambitious language project is planned at Terra Linda High next Saturday. (For that program, see page 6).

One of the most popular speakers was Brother S. Dominic Ruegge of St. Mary's College, who described diving for Roman artifacts off the coast of Italy. He also told students who attended a series of workshop sessions how to approach the study of archeology and advised them that the best opportunities for joining archeological expeditions now are in Israel.

Prof. David Traill of the University of California at Davis held forth on the influence of the Aeneid, and how Medieval authors and scholars attempted to Christianize classic poets and philosophers. Such attempts resulted in Dante using Virgil as his guide through the Inferno, and mentioning Statius in his version of purgatory, Traill said.

Professor J. K. Anderson led a smaller workshop group in ruffling the pages of lavishly illustrated tomes on classic pottery. He explained how the artistic efforts of the potters became economically unrewarding as the wealthier Greeks and Romans turned more and more to the use of gold and other metal table utensils.

Professor Richard Grimm of Davis showed off mathematical puzzles that intrigued Roman and Medieval scholars; Prof. Alain Renoir discussed Latin influence in contemporary literature; Prof. and Mrs. A. E. Gordon discussed Latin inscriptions that held sway through the centuries, and Paso Robles High School students discussed their trip to Greece.

Athletic young scholars pulled five chariots around the course, each bearing a costumed co-ed, to the cheers of bystanders whose costumes ranged from togas through hotpants.

Public Schools got under way today with open houses at many schools in the Fairfax, Larkspur, Mill Valley, Novato, Old Adobe, Petaluma, San Anselmo, San Rafael and Sausalito school districts.

The council also is slated to again consider applying for federal flood insurance for homeowners. Last year it delayed applying for the low cost insurance so it could make further study.

Snow Says Mao Offers To Host Nixon In China

NEW YORK (UPI) —Sino-American relations may have thawed to the point that President Nixon would be a welcome visitor to Communist China, it was reported Sunday.

In an article published in Life magazine, Edgar Snow, a writer who received a five-hour interview with Communist Party Chairman Mao Tse-Tung, said that Mao told him Nixon could come to China in either an official or an unofficial capacity.

"Mao would be happy to talk to him, either as a tourist or as president," Snow wrote.

Snow, who has frequently visited China, said Mao told him some four months ago during a conversation in the Communist leader's Peking residence that Americans "from the left, middle and right" might be admitted to mainland China.

Snow said he asked if "rightists" like Nixon would be permitted to enter China and received an affirmative reply.

"He should be welcomed because, Mao explained, at present the problems between China and the U.S.A. would have to be solved with Nixon," Snow reported.

Snow said he learned only recently that parts of his interview could be published without direct quotation.

Another article in the same Life issue indicates that Nixon was also deeply concerned with Chinese-American relations.

The story quotes Nixon during the Middle East crisis less than a year ago saying it was "up to the United States" to initiate a rapprochement between China and America.

"Maybe it won't happen in five years, maybe not even in 10 years. But in 20 years it had better be, or the world is in mortal danger," Nixon said.

The article also indicated the President might well be interested in a trip to the Chinese mainland.

"If there is anything I want to do before I die, it is to go to China," the article quotes Nixon as saying privately. "If I don't, I want my children to."

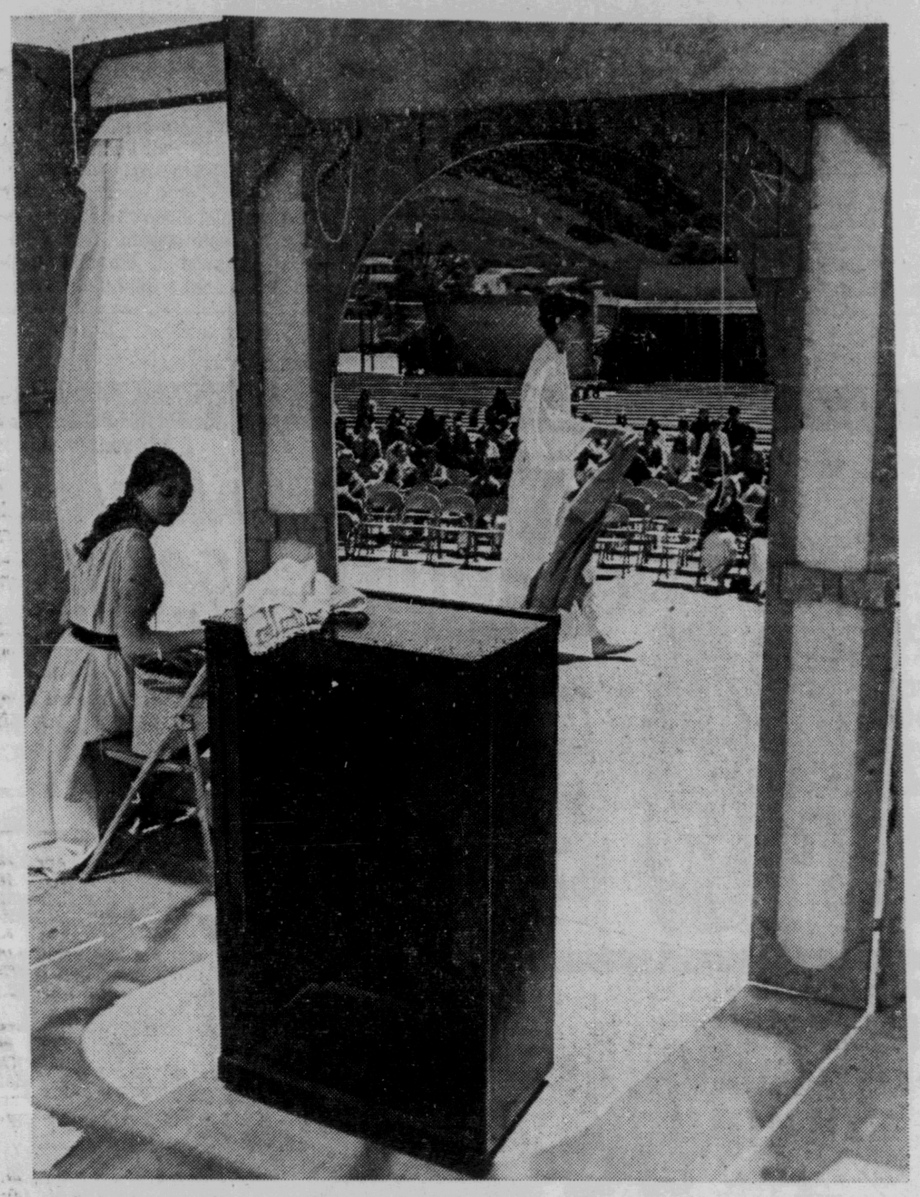
Keeping A Dead Language Alive



ROMAN SHOW — A Roman lady awaits her cue as a toga-clad young man strides across the stage. Roman customs and the Latin language came to life Saturday at Terra Linda High School as more than 300 students gave Roman plays, heard lectures on Rome and participated in a chariot race. Students from schools as far away as Paso Robles attended the Roman Days program.

Sonorous classic Latin echoed from the amphitheater at Terra Linda High School Saturday, as more than 300 students and adults proved that the so-called dead language is still alive and well in the schoolrooms.

Three Latin plays, a Roman style costume parade, a high-spirited chariot race and numerous scholarly lectures occupied the day, under the guidance of Marie Fontenrose and Adeliade Roberts, Latin teachers at Terra Linda and San Rafael high schools. Latin students from the two schools were joined by young scholars from Paso Robles, San Jose and the Easy Bay.

Though not planned as part of Public Schools Week observances, the events proved a fitting opener to the programs scheduled all this week at Marin and Southern Sonoma schools. An even more ambitious language project is planned at Terra Linda High next Saturday. (For that program, see page 6).

One of the most popular speakers was Brother S. Dominic Ruegge of St. Mary's College, who described diving for Roman artifacts off the coast of Italy. He also told students who attended a series of workshop sessions how to approach the study of archeology and advised them that the best opportunities for joining archeological expeditions now are in Israel.

Prof. David Traill of the University of California at Davis held forth on the influence of the Aeneid, and how Medieval authors and scholars attempted to Christianize classic poets and philosophers. Such attempts resulted in Dante using Virgil as his guide through the Inferno, and mentioning Statius in his version of purgatory, Traill said.

Professor J. K. Anderson led a smaller workshop group in ruffling the pages of lavishly illustrated tomes on classic pottery. He explained how the artistic efforts of the potters became economically unrewarding as the wealthier Greeks and Romans turned more and more to the use of gold and other metal table utensils.

Professor Richard Grimm of Davis showed off mathematical puzzles that intrigued Roman and Medieval scholars; Prof. Alain Renoir discussed Latin influence in contemporary literature; Prof. and Mrs. A. E. Gordon discussed Latin inscriptions that held sway through the centuries, and Paso Robles High School students discussed their trip to Greece.

Athletic young scholars pulled five chariots around the course, each bearing a costumed co-ed, to the cheers of bystanders whose costumes ranged from togas through hotpants.

Public Schools got under way today with open houses at many schools in the Fairfax, Larkspur, Mill Valley, Novato, Old Adobe, Petaluma, San Anselmo, San Rafael and Sausalito school districts.

The San Anselmo City Council, meeting Tuesday at 8 p.m. at city hall, will consider requesting federal matching funds for park and recreation projects.

The city's park and recreation commission, at its meeting Wednesday, listed priorities for park improvements. The Robson-Harrington Park, currently being master planned, received highest priority. Also high on the list was $10,000 worth of improvements to Memorial Park.

The council also is slated to again consider applying for federal flood insurance for homeowners. Last year it delayed applying for the low cost insurance so it could make further study.

Snow Says Mao Offers To Host Nixon In China

NEW YORK (UPI) —Sino-American relations may have thawed to the point that President Nixon would be a welcome visitor to Communist China, it was reported Sunday.

In an article published in Life magazine, Edgar Snow, a writer who received a five-hour interview with Communist Party Chairman Mao Tse-Tung, said that Mao told him Nixon could come to China in either an official or an unofficial capacity.

"Mao would be happy to talk to him, either as a tourist or as president," Snow wrote.

Snow, who has frequently visited China, said Mao told him some four months ago during a conversation in the Communist leader's Peking residence that Americans "from the left, middle and right" might be admitted to mainland China.

Snow said he asked if "rightists" like Nixon would be permitted to enter China and received an affirmative reply.

"He should be welcomed because, Mao explained, at present the problems between China and the U.S.A. would have to be solved with Nixon," Snow reported.

Snow said he learned only recently that parts of his interview could be published without direct quotation.

Another article in the same Life issue indicates that Nixon was also deeply concerned with Chinese-American relations.

The story quotes Nixon during the Middle East crisis less than a year ago saying it was "up to the United States" to initiate a rapprochement between China and America.

"Maybe it won't happen in five years, maybe not even in 10 years. But in 20 years it had better be, or the world is in mortal danger," Nixon said.

The article also indicated the President might well be interested in a trip to the Chinese mainland.

"If there is anything I want to do before I die, it is to go to China," the article quotes Nixon as saying privately. "If I don't, I want my children to."

German Rightist Reveals Kidnaping Just A Hoax

BONN (UPI)—A professor who tried to influence a West German election by pretending to be kidnaped by left-wing terrorists may be presented with a bill for the cost of a nationwide three-day police search for him, the public prosecutor said today.

Prof. Berthold Rubin, West Germany's leading expert on Byzantium and an advocate of right-wing causes, confessed to the hoax several hours after he and an associate, Rudolf Metzger, were discovered bound alongside a highway in Bavaria.

Public prosecutor Bruno Schwellnus said Rubin told him he carried out the Hoax in hopes he would "ignite public anger against leftist radical groups" in Sunday's election in the state of Schleswig-Holstein.

Chancellor Willy Brandt's Social Democrats were defeated in the election but analysts said the reasons were unconnected with Rubin's action.

Rubin, 59, and Metzger, 40, disappeared Wednesday while driving from Cologne to Frankfurt and police later received a note purporting to be from their kidnapers that said they would be executed unless authorities released a left-wing lawyer who was on trial in West Berlin for armed assault.

In earlier stunts, Rubin used a hammer and chisel in an attempt to knock a hole in the Berlin wall and parachuted over England to protest the continued imprisonment of Nazi official Rudolf Hess. He made a keynote speech at the founding congress of the ultra rightist National Democratic party.

Stolen Tools

Tools valued at $765 were taken between 6:30 p.m. Friday and 8 a.m. Saturday from Taconronte Auto Body Shop at 862 Vallejo Avenue, Novato, Owner Marlin A. Tacoronte reported to police.

Salary Schedules On Dixie Agenda

Dixie School District trustees will meet Wednesday night to consider adoption of proposed salary schedules for the coming year.

In addition to teacher salaries, trustees will review schedules for administrators, psychologists and a coordinator of music position.

Also under consideration is an amendment to classified personnel job descriptions.

The proposed teacher salary package would cost about $30,000, giving teachers pay raises averaging 10 to 11 per cent and including longevity boosts over which the administration and teachers had earlier differed.

Trustees will meet at 8 p.m. in the Board Room of the Administration Office, 35 Trellis Drive, in San Rafael.

Officials said the results would be announced Tuesday.

Cancer Grant On Hospital Agenda

The Marin Hospital District Board will discuss the use of a $28,724 grant from the American Cancer Society when it meets at 7 p.m. tomorrow in the Coral Room at Marin General Hospital.

The one-year grant will pay for a social worker and related expenses to follow the progress of cancer patients after they leave the hospital.

Also on the agenda is appointment of a board committee to study and update the hospital district's bylaws.

Camps Set By YMCA For Summer

The YMCA of Marin is now accepting applications for camps and trips planned this summer. Camps include three five-day sessions in June and two two-week sessions in July for boys and girls ages 6 - 11.

Trips for junior high school age boys include a tour of the Stanislaus River June 22-24. Boys ages 9 - 11 can choose from a North Coast beach trip, two Yuba River fishing trips and an introduction to back packing in June and July.

Junior and senior high school boys and girls can attend a Rogue River float and a Sierra pack trip. A co-ed camp at Jones Gulep is available for YMCA members ages 9-13. A Sacramento River houseboat trip is planned for high school girls.

In addition to the camps, a leadership development and training program for camp staff and counselors will be held sometime this summer. Minimum age is 14.

A family camp will be held Labor Day weekend.

Four Hurt In Three Accidents

One person was hospitalized and three others injured in three separate accidents over the weekend, California Highway Patrol reported.

Janice C. Underwood, 36, of 405 Corte Madera Avenue, Corte Madera, was reported in satisfactory condition at Marin General Hospital with a back injury.

She was a passenger in a car driven by her husband, Kenneth Ross Underwood, 40, which hit a utility pole at 2:16 p.m. Saturday on Shoreline Highway south of Tennessee Valley Road, patrolmen reported. Underwood was treated at Marin General Hospital for a burn on his leg.

Frank C. Kugelberg, 85, of Walnut Creek was treated at Marin General Hospital for a broken clavicle. He was a passenger in a southbound car driven by his wife, Amy Morris Kugelberg, 75, which hit the center divider on Highway 101 north of the Richardson Bay Bridge at 7:45 p.m. Saturday, patrolmen reported.

Sidney Albert Romer, 61, of Burlingame was to see his own doctor for scrapes and bruises received at 3:40 p.m. Saturday when his southbound car hit the center divider on Highway 101 south of the San Rafael viaduct, according to patrol reports.

Boise Cascade Plans On Agend

The Novato Planning Commission will consider Boise Cascade Building Co.'s plan for 215 townhouse units on the Oliva Ranch property at 8 p.m. today at the Novato Community House.

The project, known as Parkhaven, is scheduled to be constructed on the north side of Novato Boulevard between Regalia Drive and Trumball Estates No. 2.

Commissioners also will consider a request by William V. Hints for a variance to permit construction of a machine shop and office on the north side of Vallejo Avenue, east of Redwood Highway.

German Rightist Reveals Kidnaping Just A Hoax

BONN (UPI)—A professor who tried to influence a West German election by pretending to be kidnaped by left-wing terrorists may be presented with a bill for the cost of a nationwide three-day police search for him, the public prosecutor said today.

Prof. Berthold Rubin, West Germany's leading expert on Byzantium and an advocate of right-wing causes, confessed to the hoax several hours after he and an associate, Rudolf Metzger, were discovered bound alongside a highway in Bavaria.

Public prosecutor Bruno Schwellnus said Rubin told him he carried out the Hoax in hopes he would "ignite public anger against leftist radical groups" in Sunday's election in the state of Schleswig-Holstein.

Chancellor Willy Brandt's Social Democrats were defeated in the election but analysts said the reasons were unconnected with Rubin's action.

Rubin, 59, and Metzger, 40, disappeared Wednesday while driving from Cologne to Frankfurt and police later received a note purporting to be from their kidnapers that said they would be executed unless authorities released a left-wing lawyer who was on trial in West Berlin for armed assault.

In earlier stunts, Rubin used a hammer and chisel in an attempt to knock a hole in the Berlin wall and parachuted over England to protest the continued imprisonment of Nazi official Rudolf Hess. He made a keynote speech at the founding congress of the ultra rightist National Democratic party.

Sonoma-Marin Aqueduct On Board Agenda

Directors of the Marin Municipal Water District Board will hear a progress report on a 19-point study of the proposed $47.7 million Sonoma-Marin Aqueduct when they meet at 1:30 p.m. Wednesday at the district office.

The study was ordered by directors to determine if the project, which has been opposed by conservationists, is necessary and to study other choices.

The study will consider ecology-oriented proposals suggested by critics of the project.

Also on the agenda is the hiring of an environmental consultant to help design a water tank on Elinor Avenue, Mill Valley.

Pool Opening At Terra Linda

A "Fun in the Sun" day to celebrate the opening of the swimming pool at the terra Linda Recreation Center will be held Saturday, beginning at 12:30 p.m. with a parade from the Purity Market to the center.

Musical events scheduled for the afternoon include concerts by the Hamilton Air Force Base Band and the rock groups Happy Daze and Spring Fever.

Races and penny dives will be held throughout the afternoon in the pool.

PARSNIP IT ISN'T — Anne Leary holds a robust cow parsnip, which, despite its name, certainly isn't edible. Fine hairs on the plant's stems prick the skin, allowing the poison to enter. The result is a dermatitis similar to that caused by poison oak. Mrs. Leary is immune to the poison of most contact dermatitis plants, including the cow parsnip.

BLEEDING HEART — The leaves and roots of this plant, prized by gardeners for its purple blossoms, are death to cattle and can cause trembling, staggering and convulsions in humans. The three women who put on the Stinson Beach Wildflower Show hope to warn gardeners away from such toxic plants.

LIVESTOCK, BEWARE — This horse's tail, studied through a magnifying glass by Roberta Shockey, frequently tempts cattle and horses, often with disastrous results. Despite the plant's succulent appearance, it is very poisonous to cattle. Poisonous plants aren't the only growing things to be found at the wildflower show. Many varieties of flowers will grace the Stinson Beach Community Center.

Celebrate May Day At Stinson Beach Wildflower Show

By GEORGE NEVIN

"Name your poison," the rallying cry of social drinkers the world over, also could be the slogan of this year's Stinson Beach Wildflower Show, set for May 1 and 2.

For, tucked into the midst of thousands of fragile, colorful California wildflowers will be 36 varieties of flora known not for their beauty but for their toxicity.

The theme for this year's show, the 13th annual, is "Poisonous Plants of California."

"We thought we'd be doing people in Marin a favor by showing them that some common plants growing by the side of the road or in their garden are poisonous if eaten or touched," said Roberta Shockey, one of three Stinson Beach women who have put on the show for 13 years.

She and Anne Leary and Barbara Menzies are aiming for two more shows and then expect to retire. "Fifteen years is enough for us," said Mrs. Shockey. "People keep telling us they'll help but they never do."

This year's show is set for May 1 and 2 at the Community Center in Stinson Beach. Last year's attendance was 1,900.

For sheer visual glory, the poisonous plants can't compete with the bright wildflowers, mainstay of the show. But the more modest-looking toxic plants have a fascination all their own.

Visitors to the show will see the Castor Bean, two or three seeds of which can kill a man; the Larkspur, with its blue, white or pink blossoms, which gave its name to a city in Marin; Rhododendron, which causes death from three to 14 hours after being eaten; Turkey Mullen, which Bay Area Indians used as a poison for their arrows.

Also on display, will be tree tobacco, with its yellow flowers; Mistletoe, the yuletide symbol whose white berries can be fatal, Oleander, often grown in gardens, and soap plant, which Indians dipped into streams to kill fish.

To collect these often-deadly specimens, the women drove more than 6,000 miles through California and Oregon this year. The plants were painstakingly dug up, placed in containers and gently set inside a station wagon for the ride back to Stinson Beach.

Most of the plants, which are harmful only when eaten, can be handled without danger, said Mrs. Shockey. But, she said, "We always wash our hands after collecting."

Some gardeners grow poisonous plants as ornamentals, and farmers have been known to mix plants deadly to livestock in with cattle food.

The native poisonous plant most likely to be eaten by accident is the Poison Hemlock, said Mrs. Leary, because it looks so appetizing. A member of the carrot family, the dark fern-like leaves look "just right for a salad," she said.

The Hemlock found in California is the kind Socrates took his life with, and it's just as dangerous today. Botanists consider Hemlock, which looks like parsley, among the most deadly of plants.

Many of the poisonous plants at the show are dangerous to animals, although not particularly to people. Horse's tails, for example, often tempt horses and cattle and can prove fatal to them.

In preparing this year's theme, the women learned that the potato family contains many toxic members. Datura, a plant introduced to California, is one. Another is Deadly Nightshade, often responsible for accidental poisonings because its shiny black berries look so tempting.

One story, proving that Deadly Nightshade lives up to its name, tells how two men died after eating jam made of the plant's berries.

Other plants are poisonous to the touch as well as in the eating. The women plan to have California's best known cause of dermatitis, Poison Oak, at the show, as well as less known but equally virulent varieties, such as Phacelia, with its striking blue flowers, and cow parsnip.

"Those two spread their poison by these little hairs," explained Mrs. Leary, pointing out a forest of tiny prickles on the plants.

Examined through a magnifying glass, the hairs appeared to have amber drops on the ends. "That's the poison," said Mrs. Leary. "The hairs break the skin and then the poison goes to work." The effect, she said, is similar to Poison Oak.

Poison plants, however, will be outnumbered greatly by thousands of brightly colored wildflowers at the show, set for 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. May 1 and 2.

To gather the blossoms, Mesdames Manzies, Leary and Shockey travel thousands of miles throughout California and Oregon each year in station wagons laden with flowers kept in fresh water.

While Mrs. Leary drives south to the Mojave Desert and Death Valley, Mrs. Shockey and Mrs. Menzies head north to Oregon. Sierra Nevada flowers won't be heavily represented this year because spring snowstorms in the mountains have pushed the snow level down.

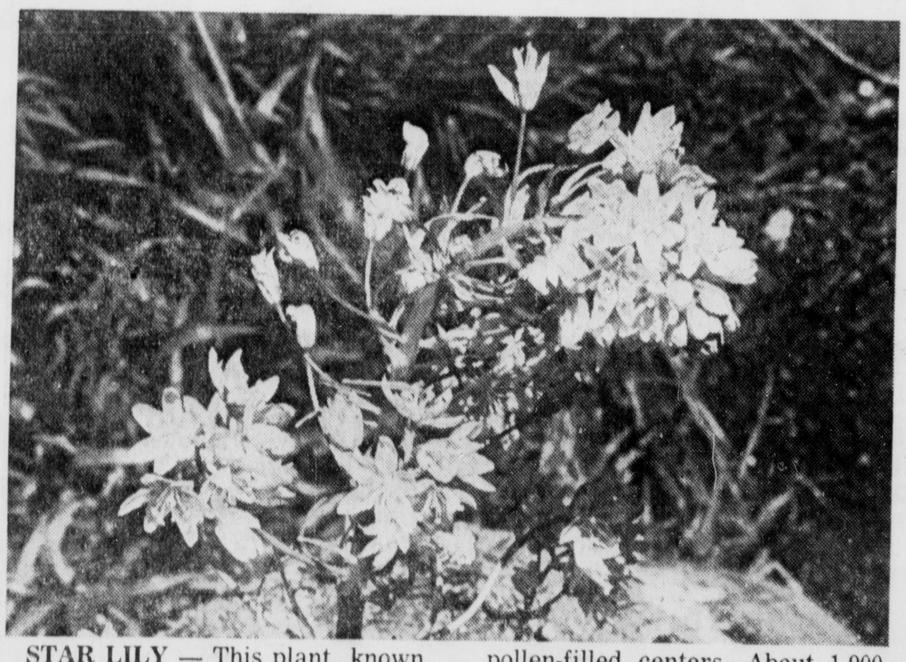
Although the women expect to work on two more of the annual shows after this year's, they're already looking forward to what they'll do in retirement.

"Our big project will be convincing the county and state road departments not to mow wildflowers along the roads and not to spray them with weedkillers," said Mrs. Shockey.

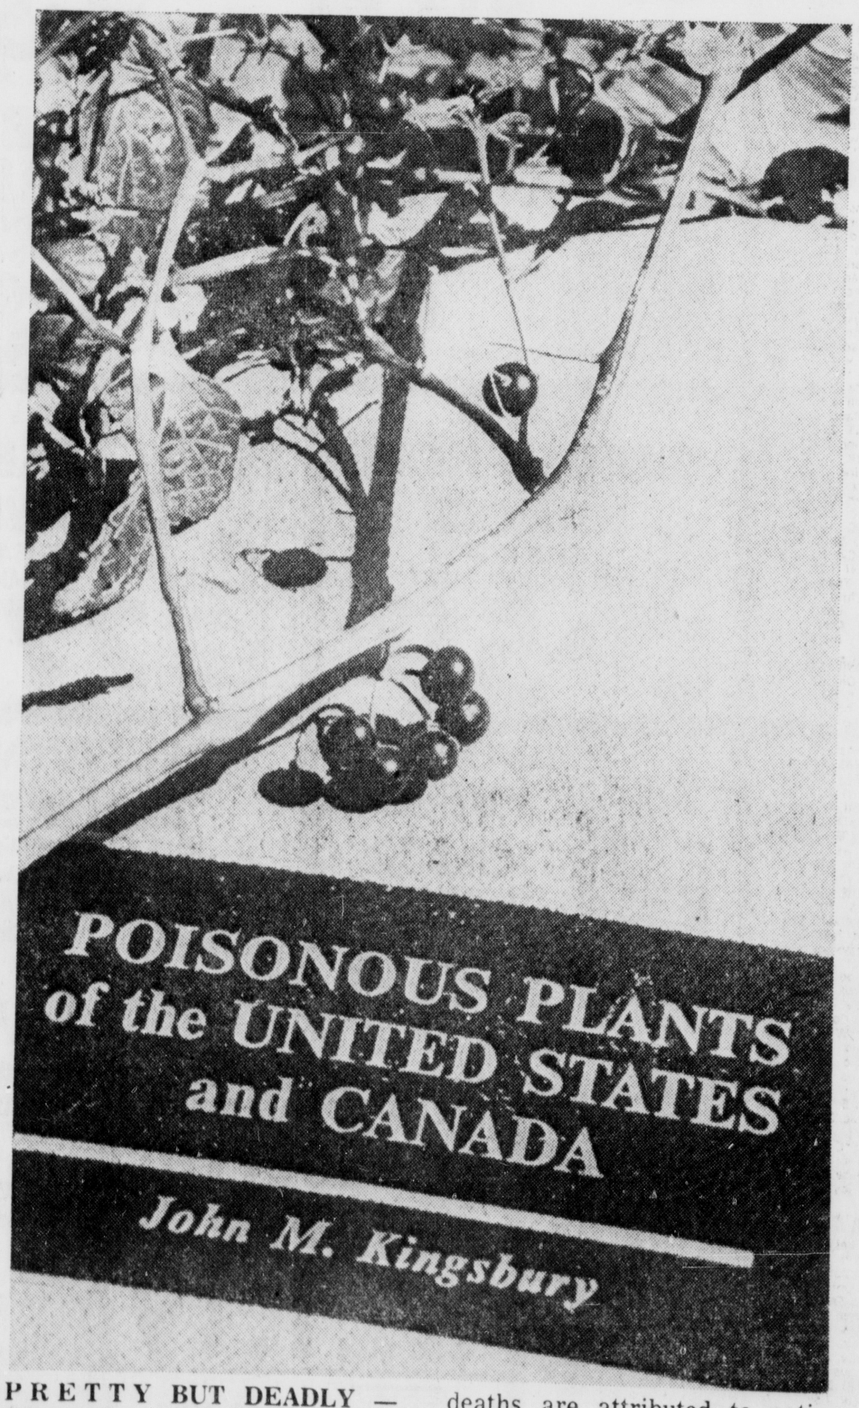
Apparently that will take much work and reeducation Mrs. Shockey said she stopped a state division of highways worker last week just before he mowed down two large clumps of lupine growing along Shoreline Highway near Bolinas.

"The flowers were on the water side of the highway and couldn't have been a fire hazard," she said, "but when I went back the next day the plants were gone — and after that man promised me, too."

DISTINCTIVE MARKINGS — Anne Leary examines small brown spots on the stems of poison hemlock, a member of the carrot family. The spots are a warning not to eat the plant, which looks like fresh parsley and occasionally ends up in salads. Death by paralysis of the expiratory system can follow.



STAR LILY — This plant, known to scientists as zygadenus, grows all over Marin and throughout California. An early bloomer, the light green blossoms have yellow, pollen-filled centers. About 1,900 persons crowded the Stinson Beach Community Center last year to attend the wildflower show, with its specialty of succulents.



PRETTY BUT DEADLY — Bright black berries — looking good enough to eat — belong to deadly nightshade, a member of the potato family. But many deaths are attributed to eating the berries in jams or pies. The book, "Poisonous Plants of the United States and Canada," says that ingestion of three berries has been known to be fatal to a child.

Salary Schedules On Dixie Agenda

Dixie School District trustees will meet Wednesday night to consider adoption of proposed salary schedules for the coming year.

In addition to teacher salaries, trustees will review schedules for administrators, psychologists and a coordinator of music position.

Also under consideration is an amendment to classified personnel job descriptions.

The proposed teacher salary package would cost about $330,000, giving teachers pay raises averaging 10 to 11 per cent and including longevity boosts over which the administration and teachers had earlier differed.

Trustees will meet at 8 p.m. in the Board Room of the Administration Office, 35 Trellis Drive, in San Rafael.

Hungarians Elect New Parliament

BUDAPEST (UPI)—Hungarians picked a new parliament and about 69,000 local councils Sunday in elections that for the first time gave them a choice of candidates.

Officials said the results would be announced Tuesday.

Cancer Grant On Hospital Agenda

The Marin Hospital District Board will discuss the use of a $28,724 grant from the American Cancer Society when it meets at 7 p.m. tomorrow in the Coral Room at Marin General Hospital.

The one-year grant will pay for a social worker and related expenses to follow the progress of cancer patients after they leave the hospital.

Also on the agenda is appointment of a board committee to study and update the hospital district's bylaws.

Camps Set By YMCA For Summer

The YMCA of Marin is now accepting applications for camps and trips planned this summer. Camps include three five-day sessions in June and two two-week sessions in July for boys and girls ages 6 - 11.

Trips for junior high school age boys include a tour of the Stanislaus River June 22-24. Boys ages 9 - 11 can choose from a North Coast beach trip, two Yuba River fishing trips and an introduction to back packing in June and July.

Junior and senior high school boys and girls can attend a Rogue River float and a Sierra pack trip. A co-ed camp at Jones Gulch is available for YMCA members ages 9-13. A Sacramento River houseboat trip is planned for high school girls.

In addition to the camps, a leadership development and training program for camp staff and counselors will be held sometime this summer. Minimum age is 14.

A family camp will be held Labor Day weekend.

Four Hurt In Three Accidents

One person was hospitalized and three others injured in three separate accidents over the weekend, California Highway Patrol reported.

Janice C. Underwood, 36, of 405 Corte Madera Avenue, Corte Madera, was reported in satisfactory condition at Marin General Hospital with a back injury.

She was a passenger in a car driven by her husband, Kenneth Ross Underwood, 40, which hit a utility pole at 2:10 p.m. Saturday on Shoreline Highway south of Tennessee Valley Road, patrolmen reported. Underwood was treated at Marin General Hospital for a burn on his leg.

Frank C. Kugelberg, 85, of Walnut Creek was treated at Marin General Hospital for a broken clavicle. He was a passenger in a southbound car driven by his wife, Amy Morris Kugelberg, 75, which hit the center divider on Highway 101 north of the Richardson Bay Bridge at 7:45 p.m. Saturday, patrolmen reported.

Sidney Albert Romer, 61, of Burlingame was to see his own doctor for scrapes and bruises received at 3:40 p.m. Saturday when his southbound car hit the center divider on Highway 101 south of the San Rafael viaduct, according to patrol reports.

Boise Cascade Plans On Agend

The Novato Planning Commission will consider Boise Cascade Building Co.'s plan for 215 townhouse units on the Oliva Ranch property at 8 p.m. today at the Novato Community House.

The project, known as Parkhaven, is scheduled to be constructed on the north side of Novato Boulevard between Regalia Drive and Trumball Estates No. 2.

Commissioners also will consider a request by William W. Hints for a variance to permit construction of a machine shop and office on the north side of Vallejo Avenue, east of Redwood Highway.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

Hard To Estimate A Security Cushion

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. My wife and I are trying to plan toward retirement in 1985 when we will be 65. Social Security benefits have been boosted recently. Can you give me a rough idea of what to expect from this source? I have always paid the maximum tax. We have $36,000 in stocks and savings are able to add $2,500 each year. Will this be sufficient by the time we retire? — C. U.

A. I assume that your income exceeds $9,000 annually, the maximum salary base which will be taxed beginning next January. Under the new law, the maximum monthly benefit for a couple retiring in 1985 will be $385.

However, not only benefits, but also contributions will increase, from $405.60, which you now pay yearly, to $468 next year and then to $535.50 before you retire. In 1954 your annual contributions amounted to $72, but subsequent boosts in taxable wage base and tax rate will have increased that six-fold by next year. I point this out to emphasize the futility of making predictions in an inflationary economy.

Your present capital plus annual additions and reinvested interest could reach, barring unforeseen calamities, $85,000 or more by 1985. This sum if properly invested should yield sufficient income to "keep the wolf from the door."

Q. I hold First National City Bank 4 per cent convertible notes due 1990. In view of the proposed 2-for-1 split of the common would I be smart to convert now or after the split? — F. K.

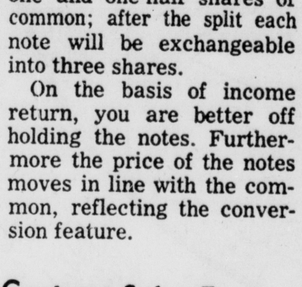
A. It makes no difference since the conversion privilege is protected, under terms of the indenture, against dilution. At present, each note is convertible into one and one-half shares of common; after the split each note will be exchangeable into three shares.

On the basis of income return, you are better off holding the notes. Furthermore the price of the notes moves in line with the common, reflecting the conversion feature.

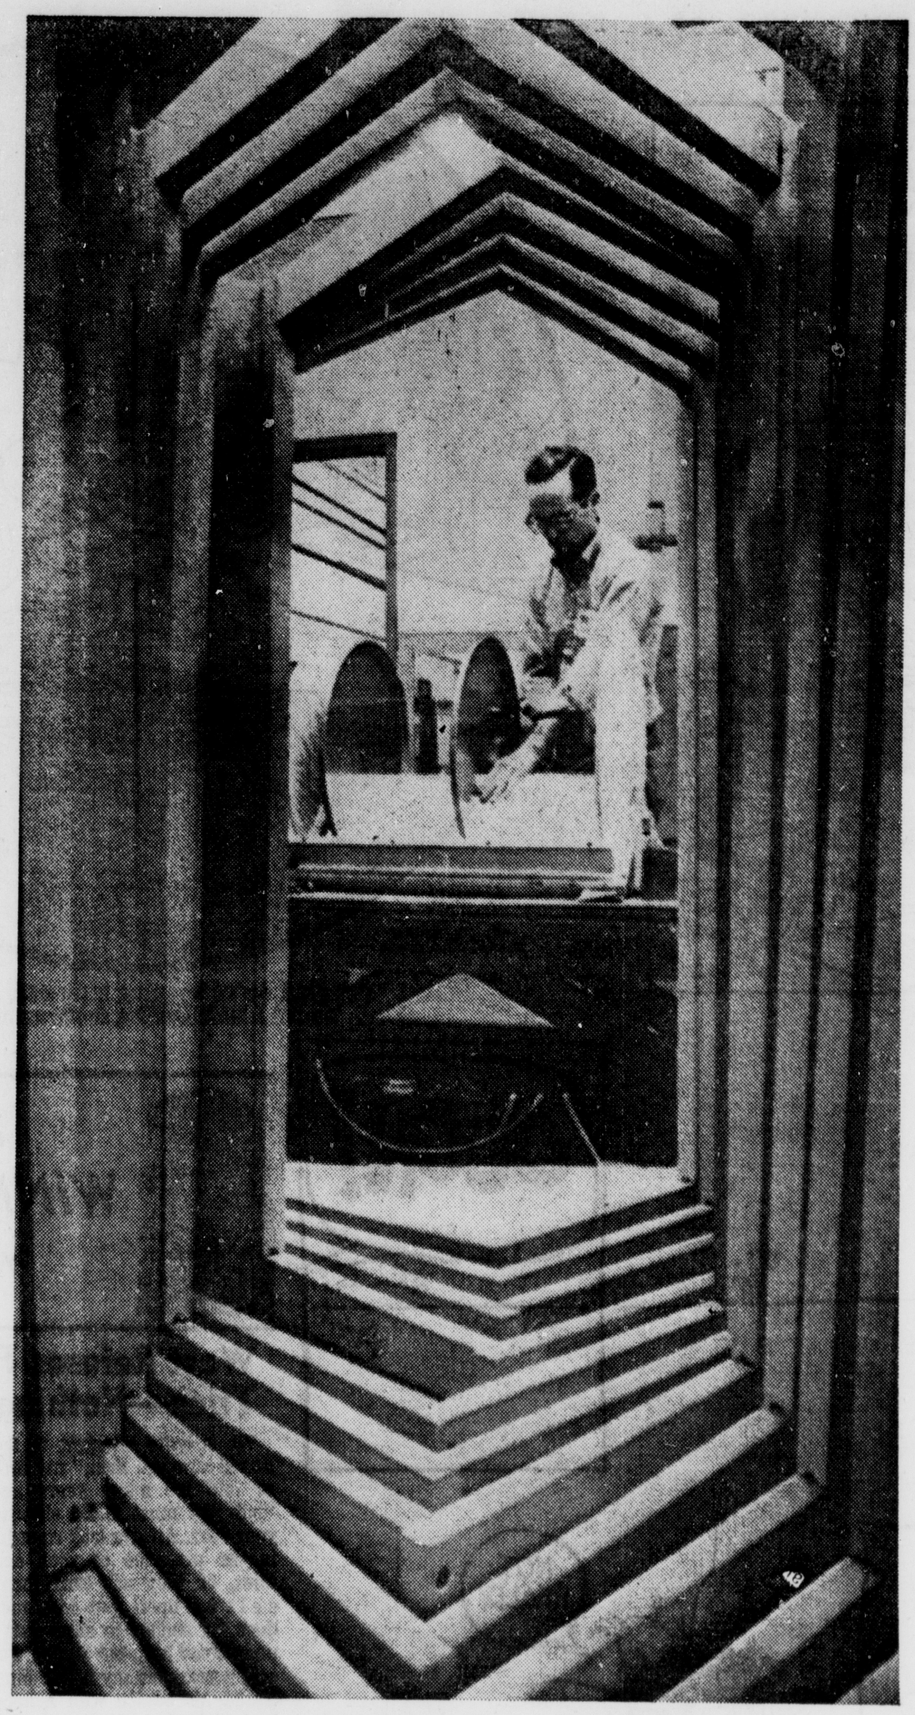
Contract Sales For Carpeting Going Up

SADDLE BROOK, N. J. (UPI)—Contract sales, which accounted for 30 to 35 per cent of total carpeting volume in the United States in 1970, are expected to continue to increase in 1971 and approach 50 per cent of all carpet sales in 1972, according to a carpeting firm head.

"Carpet manufacturers are benefiting from the increasing industrial and commercial use of soft floor coverings, the spread of wall to wall carpeting to all rooms and hallways in the home and the development of strong, new fibers," says Jordan Issackedes, president of the floor covering division of The Okonite Co.



"Sales have opened up on our plumbing pipe."



CATHEDRAL-LIKE SETTING

Front frames for corner cabinets form a cathedral-like setting for an IXL Furniture Co., craftsman in Elizabeth City, N.C., as he assembles shelves for a revolving base cabinet. A division of Westinghouse, IXL produces more than 650 kinds of cabinets and vanities for the building and remodeling markets.

Demand Still Restrained On Exchange

NEW YORK (UPI) —The stock market was mixed in moderately active trading through the first two hours Monday.

Profit taking, which developed in the middle of last week, continued to restrain demand for stocks despite a generally constructive news background.

President Nixon told the U. S. Chamber of Commerce that inflation was now under control and forecast a period of solid, sustainable economic expansion.

Standard & Poor's 500 Stock Index was unchanged.

Prices were firm in brisk trading on the American Stock Exchange. Of the 1,008 issues on the tape, 427 higher and 332 retreated.

Among the most active Amex issues were Republic Mortgage Investors fractionally lower on 85,000 shares, Rath Packing up 1 5-8 on over 50,000 shares, and Ling-Temco warrants slightly higher on a turnover of around 50,000.

On the Big Board, active issues included Fuqua Industries off 5-8, Telex 1 higher, and Ling-Temco-vought 2 1-1 higher. LTV reported a first quarter profit, versus a loss during the year-ago period.

Other firm spots in heavy turnover were Delta Air Lines up 1 1-8, Pennzoil also 1 1-8 higher, and Bausch & Lomb up 3.

Latin American Trade

NEW YORK (UPI)—A rise in U.S. exports to Latin America in 1971 has been forecast by Harold B. Scott, director of the Bureau of International Commerce, U.S. Department of Commerce. The growth would probably be more modest than the 15 per cent increase between 1969 and 1970, when exports increased to a total of $6.4 billion, Scott said.

PARSNIP IT ISN'T — Anne Leary holds a robust cow parsnip, which, despite its name, certainly isn't edible. Fine hairs on the plant's stems prick the skin, allowing the poison to enter. The result is a dermatitis similar to that caused by poison oak. Mrs. Leary is immune to the poison of most contact dermatitis plants, including the cow parsnip.

BLEEDING HEART — The leaves and roots of this plant, prized by gardeners for its purple blossoms, are death to cattle and can cause trembling, staggering and convulsions in humans. The three women who put on the Stinson Beach Wildflower Show hope to warn gardeners away from such toxic plants.

LIVESTOCK, BEWARE — This horse's tail, studied through a magnifying glass by Roberta Shockey, frequently tempts cattle and horses, often with disastrous results. Despite the plant's succulent appearance, it is very poisonous to cattle. Poisonous plants aren't the only growing things to be found at the wildflower show. Many varieties of flowers will grace the Stinson Beach Community Center.

By GEORGE NEVIN

"Name your poison," the rallying cry of social drinkers the world over, also could be the slogan of this year's Stinson Beach Wildflower Show, set for May 1 and 2.

For, tucked into the midst of thousands of fragile, colorful California wildflowers will be 36 varieties of flora known not for their beauty but for their toxicity.

The theme for this year's show, the 13th annual, is "Poisonous Plants of California."

"We thought we'd be doing people in Marin a favor by showing them that some common plants growing by the side of the road or in their garden are poisonous if eaten or touched," said Roberta Shockey, one of three Stinson Beach women who have put on the show for 13 years.

She and Anne Leary and Barbara Menzies are aiming for two more shows and then expect to retire. "Fifteen years is enough for us," said Mrs. Shockey. "People keep telling us they'll help but they never do."

This year's show is set for May 1 and 2 at the Community Center in Stinson Beach. Last year's attendance was 1,900.

For sheer visual glory, the poisonous plants can't compete with the bright wildflowers, mainstay of the show. But the more modest-looking toxic plants have a fascination all their own.

Visitors to the show will see the Castor Bean, two or three seeds of which can kill a man; the Larkspur, with its blue, white or pink blossoms, which gave its name to a city in Marin; Rhododendron, which causes death from three to 14 hours after being eaten; Turkey Mullen, which Bay Area Indians used as a poison for their arrows.

Also on display, will be tree tobacco, with its yellow flowers; Mistletoe, the yuletide symbol whose white berries can be fatal, Oleander, often grown in gardens, and soap plant, which Indians dipped into streams to kill fish.

To collect these often-deadly specimens, the women drove more than 6,000 miles through California and Oregon this year. The plants were painstakingly dug up, placed in containers and gently set inside a station wagon for the ride back to Stinson Beach.

Most of the plants, which are harmful only when eaten, can be handled without danger, said Mrs. Shockey. But, she said, "We always wash our hands after collecting."

Some gardeners grow poisonous plants as ornamentals, and farmers have been known to mix plants deadly to livestock in with cattle food.

The native poisonous plant most likely to be eaten by accident is the Poison Hemlock, said Mrs. Leary, because it looks so appetizing. A member of the carrot family, the dark fern-like leaves look "just right for a salad," she said.

The Hemlock found in California is the kind Socrates took his life with, and it's just as dangerous today. Botanists consider Hemlock, which looks like parsley, among the most deadly of plants.

Many of the poisonous plants at the show are dangerous to animals, although not particularly to people. Horse's tails, for example, often tempt horses and cattle and can prove fatal to them.

In preparing this year's theme, the women learned that the potato family contains many toxic members. Datura, a plant introduced to California, is one. Another is Deadly Nightshade, often responsible for accidental poisonings because its shiny black berries look so tempting.

One story, proving that Deadly Nightshade lives up to its name, tells how two men died after eating jam made of the plant's berries.

Other plants are poisonous to the touch as well as in the eating. The women plan to have California's best known cause of dermatitis, Poison Oak, at the show, as well as less known but equally virulent varieties, such as Phacelia, with its striking blue flowers, and cow parsnip.

"Those two spread their poison by these little hairs," explained Mrs. Leary, pointing out a forest of tiny prickles on the plants.

Examined through a magnifying glass, the hairs appeared to have amber drops on the ends. "That's the poison," said Mrs. Leary. "The hairs break the skin and then the poison goes to work." The effect, she said, is similar to Poison Oak.

Poison plants, however, will be outnumbered greatly by thousands of brightly colored wildflowers at the show, set for 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. May 1 and 2.

To gather the blossoms, Mesdames Manzies, Leary and Shockey travel thousands of miles throughout California and Oregon each year in station wagons laden with flowers kept in fresh water.

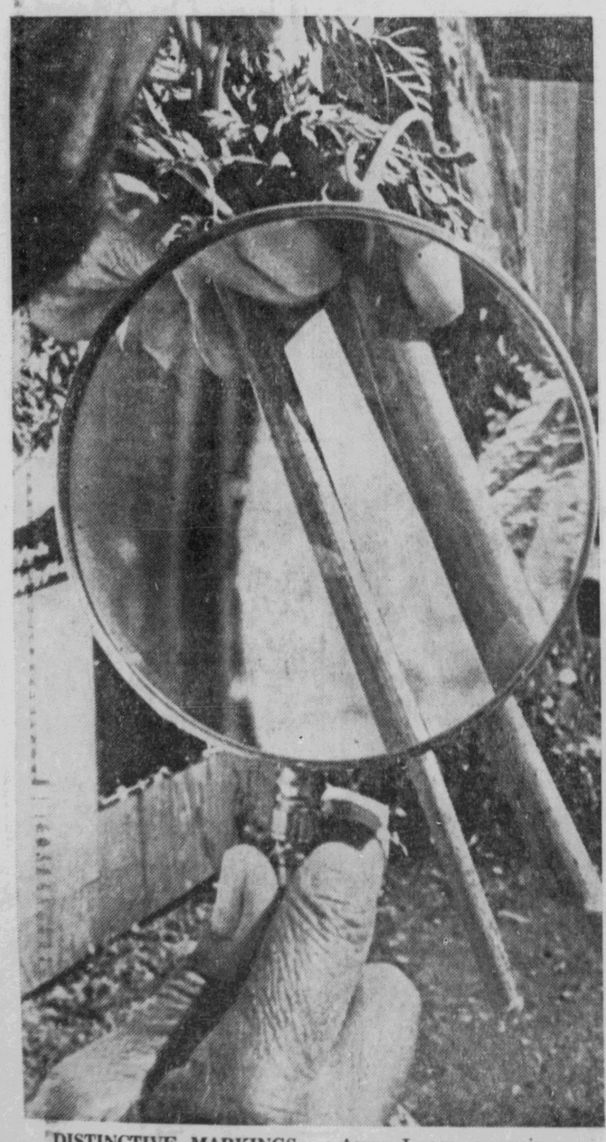
While Mrs. Leary drives south to the Mojave Desert and Death Valley, Mrs. Shockey and Mrs. Menzies head north to Oregon. Sierra Nevada flowers won't be heavily represented this year because spring snowstorms in the mountains have pushed the snow level down.

Although the women expect to work on two more of the annual shows after this year's, they're already looking forward to what they'll do in retirement.

"Our big project will be convincing the county and state road departments not to mow wildflowers along the roads and not to spray them with weedkillers," said Mrs. Shockey.

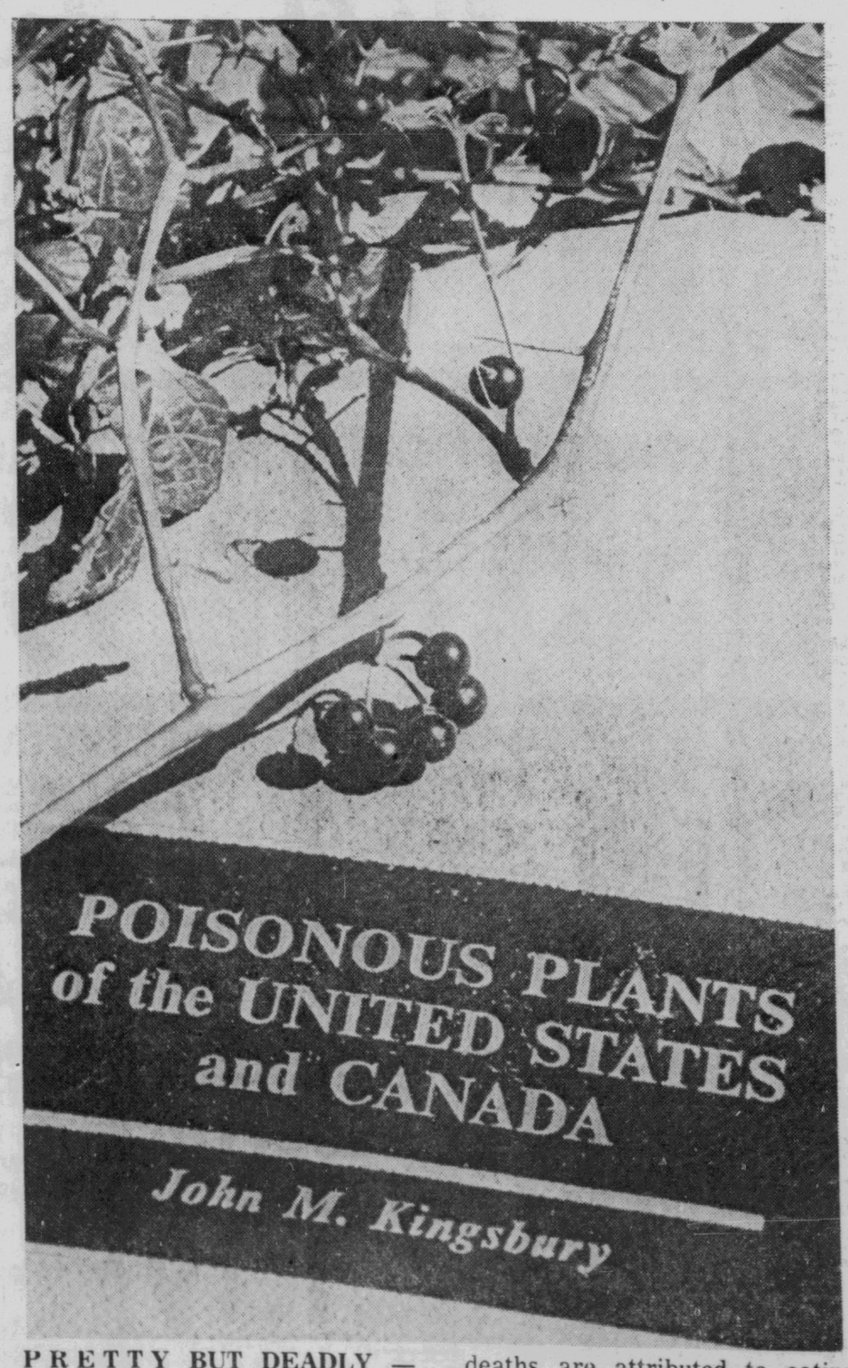
Apparently that will take much work and reeducation Mrs. Shockey said she stopped a state division of highways worker last week just before he mowed down two large clumps of lupine growing along Shoreline Highway near Bolinas.

"The flowers were on the water side of the highway and couldn't have been a fire hazard," she said, "but when I went back the next day the plants were gone — and after that man promised me, too."



DISTINCTIVE MARKINGS — Anne Leary examines small brown spots on the stems of poison hemlock, a member of the carrot family. The spots are a warning not to eat the plant, which looks like fresh parsley and occasionally ends up in salads. Death by paralysis of the expiratory system can follow.

STAR LILY — This plant, known to scientists as zygadenus, grows all over Marin and throughout California. An early bloomer, the light green blossoms have yellow, pollen-filled centers. About 1,900 persons crowded the Stinson Beach Community Center last year to attend the wildflower show, with its specialty of succulents.



PRETTY BUT DEADLY — Bright black berries — looking good enough to eat — belong to deadly nightshade, a member of the potato family. But many deaths are attributed to eating the berries in jams or pies. The book, "Poisonous Plants of the United States and Canada," says that ingestion of three berries has been known to be fatal to a child.

Today is Monday, April 26, the 116th day of 1971.

The moon is between its new phase and first quarter. The morning stars are Mercury, Venus, Mars and Jupiter. The evening star is Saturn.

Those born on this day are under the sign of Taurus.

American naturalist John James Audubon was born April 26, 1785.

On this day in history:

In 1607 the first British colonists to establish a permanent settlement in America landed at Cape Henry, Va.

In 1865 federal troops shot and killed John Wilkes Booth, the assassin of President Lincoln, near Port Royal, Va., despite orders to take him alive.

In 1944 the government took over the Chicago headquarters of Montgomery Ward and Co. after management defied a ruling by the National Labor Relations Board.

In 1954 a nationwide test of the Salk antipolio vaccine began in parts of 45 states.

A thought for today: American philosopher Irwin Edman said, "The gift of gaiety may itself be the greatest good fortune, and the most serious step toward maturity."

West Marin Blood Drive At Tomales

A blood drive for West Marin residents will be held from 3:30 to 8 p.m. May 6 in Tomales. The mobile team of Irwin Memorial Blood Bank will receive donations in the town hall.

All donors will be served a home-cooked dinner prepared by community volunteers. Blood donations credited to the West Marin Blood Reserve will establish blood credit in advance of possible need for all residents and their families.

West Refuses First Heart Trick—Nothing Else Needed

"It is quite all right to feel afraid now and then," my father told me many years ago, "but you must avoid showing your fear. Always look cheerful in the presence of your enemies, or they will hurl themselves upon you like mad dogs." I nodded to show that I understood him, but since I was only 4 years old my father illustrated his advice with a hand he had just played in a bridge tournament.

DEUCE OF DIAMONDS

The deuce of diamonds was led at all tables, my father related, and some declarers refused the first trick. East won with the king of diamonds and returned the jack to dummy's ace.

At these tables West knew that his side could get a second diamond trick since East would have returned a low diamond if he had started with four cards in the suit. West therefore was glad to take the ace of hearts and the ace of clubs at his first opportunity, defeating the contract with the second defensive trick in diamonds.

SOME TABLES

At some tables, declarer took the first trick in dummy with the ace of diamonds and drew two rounds of trumps with the ace and king. South then led his singleton heart. With a trump entry to the dummy in plain sight, West could see no point in refusing the first heart trick. Since the only hope was to cash out, West took his two aces and then returned to diamonds, defeating the contract.

BOLD COURSE

By this time I knew that my father had made four spades by a bold play of some kind. I didn't try to work it out, partly because I was only four and partly because my father wanted to tell the story. But if you, dear reader, are over 4 years old, I have no objection if you want to spot the play by yourself.

After taking the first trick with the ace of diamonds, my father led the queen of spades and then two more rounds of trumps before leading the eight of hearts.

West couldn't believe that my father would deliberately take all the entries out of dummy before leading hearts unless he had more than one heart. West therefore refused the first heart trick. Nothing else was needed.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with one heart, and the next player passes.

You hold:
♥ - 7 4 3
♦ - K J 7
♣ - 10 9 6 5 4.

What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid two hearts.

You count four points in high cards and three points for the singleton (combined with good trump support). This is enough for a single raise.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

Hard To Estimate A Security Cushion

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. My wife and I are trying to plan toward retirement in 1985 when we will be 65. Social Security benefits have been boosted recently. Can you give me a rough idea of what to expect from this source? I have always paid the maximum tax. We have $36,000 in stocks and savings are able to add $2,500 each year. Will this be sufficient by the time we retire? — C. U.

A. I assume that your income exceeds $9,000 annually, the maximum salary base which will be taxed beginning next January. Under the new law, the maximum monthly benefit for a couple retiring in 1985 will be $385.

However, not only benefits, but also contributions will increase, from $405.60, which you now pay yearly, to $468 next year and then to $535.50 before you retire. In 1954 your annual contributions amounted to $72, but subsequent boosts in taxable wage base and tax rate will have increased that six-fold by next year. I point this out to emphasize the futility of making predictions in an inflationary economy.

Your present capital plus annual additions and reinvested interest could reach, barring unforeseen calamities, $85,000 or more by 1985. This sum if properly invested should yield sufficient income to "keep the wolf from the door."

Q. I hold First National City Bank 4 per cent convertible notes due 1990. In view of the proposed 2-for-1 split of the common would I be smart to convert now or after the split? — F. K.

A. It makes no difference since the conversion privilege is protected, under terms of the indenture, against dilution. At present, each note is convertible into one and one-half shares of common; after the split each note will be exchangeable into three shares.

On the basis of income return, you are better off holding the notes. Furthermore the price of the notes moves in line with the common, reflecting the conversion feature.

Contract Sales For Carpeting Going Up

SADDLE BROOK, N. J. (UPI)—Contract sales, which accounted for 30 to 35 per cent of total carpeting volume in the United States in 1970, are expected to continue to increase in 1971 and approach 50 per cent of all carpet sales in 1972, according to a carpeting firm head.

"Carpet manufacturers are benefiting from the increasing industrial and commercial use of soft floor coverings, the spread of wall to wall carpeting to all rooms and hallways in the home and the development of strong, new fibers," says Jordan Issackedes, president of the floor covering division of The Okonite Co.

"Sales have opened up on our plumbing pipe."

Demand Still Restrained On Exchange

NEW YORK (UPI) —The stock market was mixed in moderately active trading through the first two hours Monday.

Profit taking, which developed in the middle of last week, continued to restrain demand for stocks despite a generally constructive news background.

President Nixon told the U. S. Chamber of Commerce that inflation was now under control and forecast a period of solid, sustainable economic expansion.

Standard & Poor's 500 Stock Index was unchanged.

Prices were firm in brisk trading on the American Stock Exchange. Of the 1,008 issues on the tape, 427 higher and 332 retreated.

Among the most active Amex issues were Republic Mortgage Investors fractionally lower on 85,000 shares, Rath Packing up 1 5-8 on over 50,000 shares, and Ling-Temco warrants slightly higher on a turnover of around 50,000.

On the Big Board, active issues included Fuqua Industries off 5-8, Telex 1 higher, and Ling-Temco-vought 2 1-1 higher. LTV reported a first quarter profit, versus a loss during the year-ago period.

Other firm spots in heavy turnover were Delta Air Lines up 1 1-8, Pennzoil also 1 1-8 higher, and Bausch & Lomb up 3.

Partnership Announced For A New Typewritter Ribbon

A new partnership, Jambois and Egan, engaged in marketing a special new typewriter ribbon which corrects mistakes and a new plastic copying film to replace carbon paper has been formed by Timothy Egan and William Jambois of Santa Venetia.

The ribbon, with a plastic backing to reduce cleaning the keys is inked at the top and has a whitened strip at the bottom to eliminate the typing errors. The copying film, a DuPont Mylar product, is reported to outlast ordinary carbon paper used in typing.

Jambois and Egan, both of whom are otherwise employed, are operating from their home at 23 Linda Avenue, Santa Venetia until the business justifies an office. They also market a line of food thermometers and are listed under the firm name in the new telephone directory. Calls are taken during the day.

THEODORE J. JONES of Corte Madera has been promoted to manager of the Van Ness-Clay office of United California Bank in San Francisco. He became assistant manager in 1966 and previously worked at several branches after joining the bank in 1957.

DONALD H. MALNICK of Terra Linda, with Marin Bay Lincoln-Mercury, San Rafael, has been declared salesman of the nation for this district for his 1970 selling performance. He and his wife will be Lincoln-Mercury guests on an all-expense paid trip to Spain next month.

Froehlich of Sleepy Hollow and Edward R. Middendorf of Tiburon, have received Centurion awards for demonstrating professional skill in handling insurance protection during 1970. . . John J. Koss of Novato, associate of the J.L. Pappas Agency in San Francisco for State Mutual of America, has returned from an intensive study of estate planning and advanced underwriting at the Mutual home office in Worcester, Mass.

Latin American Trade

NEW YORK (UPI)—A rise in U.S. exports to Latin America in 1971 has been forecast by Harold B. Scott, director of the Bureau of International Commerce, U.S. Department of Commerce. The growth would probably be more modest than the 15 per cent increase between 1969 and 1970, when exports increased to a total of $6.4 billion, Scott said.

NEW PARK TAKES SHAPE

Nixon Seeks Delay In Soap Labeling

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The Nixon administration said today that any government steps against detergent phosphate should be delayed because alternative ingredients might be more harmful.

Surgeon General Jesse L. Steinfeld and Russell E. Train, chairmen of the Council on Environmental Quality (CEQ), presented the testimony before the Federal Trade Commission.

The FTC opened three days of hearings on proposal for mandatory water pollution warning in advertising and labeling of detergents containing phosphates. The administration spokesman opposed this for the time being at least.

Train's position was at least a partial reversal of past statements. The CEQ said in its annual report several months ago that phosphates should be phased out of detergents to keep lakes and streams from choking with algae and eventually dying.

A statement by Train, read at the hearing by an aide, said: "Prospects for major reductions of phosphates in detergents must be tempered by caution in accepting substitutes with hazardous or unknown health characteristics and by concern over the high alkalinity and corrosiveness of some of the recently introduced phosphate-free detergents."

Steinfeld said some phosphate substitutes now in use "pose serious accident hazards, especially to children."

He said even a fraction of a teaspoon of some caustic phosphate substitutes "may cause severe damage to the skin, eye, mouth, throat, larynx, esophagus or stomach upon contact."

Steinfeld and Train said they agreed that safe phosphate substitutes must be found so the water softening ingredients could be eliminated.

The Association of National Advertisers Inc. (ANA) said in a statement the proposal made about as much sense as the Army trying to recruit men but advertising that their life in uniform might be dull, uncomfortable and could result in death.

Sen. Behr To Talk On His Legislation

Sen. Peter H. Behr, R-San Rafael, will discuss bills he has sponsored in the current legislaative session at 8 p.m. tomorrow at Beasley's Restaurant, Petaluma.

Behr, whose appearance is sponsored by the Petaluma Outdoorsmens' Club, will speak on his legislation to protect three of Northern California's wild rivers and to prohibit the taking of herring eggs from Tomales Bay.

Public Housing Vote Approved By Court

WASHINGTON (UPI) —A divided Supreme Court ruled today that local communities are entitled to prevent construction of public housing projects by use of a special referendum vote.

The 5-3 decision reversed a lower federal court action which held unconstitutional a California law allowing such votes. The case involved the city of San Jose and San Mateo County.

In other actions, the Court:

—Struck a blow at organized crime by upholding a law making loansharking a federal crime.

—Declared unanimously a state may not withhold unemployment insurance benefits to a worker while his former employer appealsk on eligibility grounds.

—Refused to disturb a lower court decision that granting welfare benefits to workers did not interfere with free collective bargaining.

—Agreed to decide next term whether a federal court, at the request of the National Labor Relations Board, could knock down a state court order regulating peaceful picketing.

—Gave a go-ahead to a federal district judge to begin hearings on an assortment of school desegregation plans in Denver, Colo.

In the California housing case, Justice Hugo L. Black ruled for the majority that a three-judge federal court had erred in holding the referendum procedure unconstitutional on the basis of a prior Supreme Court decision.

The earlier ruling, Black said, related to racial discrimination and "this one does not."

"Provisions for referendums demonstrate devotion to democracy, not to bias, discrimination, or prejudice," Black declared.

He added: "The people of California have ... decided by their own vote to require referendum approval of low-rent public housing projects. This procedure ensures that all the people of a community will have a voice in a decision which may lead to large expenditures of local governmental funds for increased public services and to lower tax revenues."

Voters in the California communities had decided by referendum against joining with the federal government in financing of low-cost housing projects. Local housing authorities were barred from applying for federal funds because of the votes.

ALMANAC

Today is Monday, April 26, the 116th day of 1971.

The moon is between its new phase and first quarter. The morning stars are Mercury, Venus, Mars and Jupiter. The evening star is Saturn.

Those born on this day are under the sign of Taurus.

American naturalist John James Audubon was born April 26, 1785.

On this day in history:

In 1607 the first British colonists to establish a permanent settlement in America landed at Cape Henry, Va.

In 1865 federal troops shot and killed John Wilkes Booth, the assassin of President Lincoln, near Port Royal, Va., despite orders to take him alive.

In 1944 the government took over the Chicago headquarters of Montgomery Ward and Co. after management defied a ruling by the National Labor Relations Board.

In 1954 a nationwide test of the Salk antipolio vaccine began in parts of 45 states.

A thought for today: American philosopher Irwin Edman said, "The gift of gaiety may itself be the greatest good fortune, and the most serious step toward maturity."

West Refuses First Heart Trick—Nothing Else Needed

"It is quite all right to feel afraid now and then," my father told me many years ago, "but you must avoid showing your fear. Always look cheerful in the presence of your enemies, or they will hurl themselves upon you like mad dogs." I nodded to show that I understood him, but since I was only 4 years old my father illustrated his advice with a hand he had just played in a bridge tournament.

DEUCE OF DIAMONDS

The deuce of diamonds was led at all tables, my father related, and some declarers refused the first trick. East won with the king of diamonds and returned the jack to dummy's ace.

At these tables West knew that his side could get a second diamond trick since East would have returned a low diamond if he had started with four cards in the suit. West therefore was glad to take the ace of hearts and the ace of clubs at his first opportunity, defeating the contract with the second defensive trick in diamonds.

SOME TABLES

At some tables, declarer took the first trick in dummy with the ace of diamonds and drew two rounds of trumps with the ace and king. South then led his singleton heart. With a trump entry to the dummy in plain sight, West could see no point in refusing the first heart trick. Since the only hope was to cash out, West took his two aces and then returned to diamonds, defeating the contract.

BOLD COURSE

By this time I knew that my father had made four spades by a bold play of some kind. I didn't try to work it out, partly because I was only four and partly because my father wanted to tell the story. But if you, dear reader, are over 4 years old, I have no objection if you want to spot the play by yourself.

After taking the first trick with the ace of diamonds, my father led the queen of spades and then two more rounds of trumps before leading the eight of hearts.

West couldn't believe that my father would deliberately take all the entries out of dummy before leading hearts unless he had more than one heart. West therefore refused the first heart trick. Nothing else was needed.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with one heart, and the next player passes.

You hold:
♠ - 4
♥ - 7 4 3
♦ - K J 7
♣ - 10 9 6 5 4.

What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid two hearts.

You count four points in high cards and three points for the singleton (combined with good trump support). This is enough for a single raise.

History Of Religion To Be Presented

Yan Kane of the San Francisco Institute of Ability will speak at Sonoma State College Wednesday at 8 p.m. in the student lounge.

Kane will speak on abilitism and give a history of the religion. His lecture is co-sponsored by the psychology department and Gardner Rust of the music department.

West Marin Blood Drive At Tomales

A blood drive for West Marin residents will be held from 3:30 to 8 p.m. May 6 in Tomales. The mobile team of Irwin Memorial Blood Bank will receive donations in the town hall.

All donors will be served a home-cooked dinner prepared by community volunteers. Blood donations credited to the West Marin Blood Reserve will establish blood credit in advance of possible need for all residents and their families.

Nixon Seeks Delay In Soap Labeling

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The Nixon administration said today that any government steps against detergent phosphate should be delayed because alternative ingredients might be more harmful.

Surgeon General Jesse L. Steinfeld and Russell E. Train, chairmen of the Council on Environmental Quality (CEQ), presented the testimony before the Federal Trade Commission.

The FTC opened three days of hearings on proposal for mandatory water pollution warning in advertising and labeling of detergents containing phosphates. The administration spokesman opposed this for the time being at least.

Train's position was at least a partial reversal of past statements. The CEQ said in its annual report several months ago that phosphates should be phased out of detergents to keep lakes and streams from choking with algae and eventually dying.

A statement by Train, read at the hearing by an aide, said: "Prospects for major reductions of phosphates in detergents must be tempered by caution in accepting substitutes with hazardous or unknown health characteristics and by concern over the high alkalinity and corrosiveness of some of the recently introduced phosphate-free detergents."

Steinfeld said some phosphate substitutes now in use "pose serious accident hazards, especially to children."

He said even a fraction of a teaspoon of some caustic phosphate substitutes "may cause severe damage to the skin, eye, mouth, throat, larynx, esophagus or stomach upon contact."

Steinfeld and Train said they agreed that safe phosphate substitutes must be found so the water softening ingredients could be eliminated.

The Association of National Advertisers Inc. (ANA) said in a statement the proposal made about as much sense as the Army trying to recruit men but advertising that their life in uniform might be dull, uncomfortable and could result in death.

Sen. Behr To Talk On His Legislation

Behr, whose appearance is sponsored by the Petaluma Outdoorsmens' Club, will speak on his legislation to protect three of Northern California's wild rivers and to prohibit the taking of herring eggs from Tomales Bay.

Public Housing Vote Approved By Court

WASHINGTON (UPI) —A divided Supreme Court ruled today that local communities are entitled to prevent construction of public housing projects by use of a special referendum vote.

The 5-3 decision reversed a lower federal court action which held unconstitutional a California law allowing such votes. The case involved the city of San Jose and San Mateo County.

In other actions, the Court:

—Struck a blow at organized crime by upholding a law making loansharking a federal crime.

—Declared unanimousiy a state may not withhold unemployment insurance benefits to a worker while his former employer appealsk on eligibility grounds.

—Refused to disturb a lower court decision that granting welfare benefits to workers did not interfere with free collective bargaining.

—Agreed to decide next term whether a federal court, at the request of the National Labor Relations Board, could knock down a state court order regulating peaceful picketing.

—Gave a go-ahead to a federal district judge to begin hearings on an assortment of school desegregation plans in Denver, Colo.

In the California housing case, Justice Hugo L. Black ruled for the majority that a three-judge federal court had erred in holding the referendum procedure unconstitutional on the basis of a prior Supreme Court decision.

The earlier ruling, Black said, related to racial discrimination and "this one does not."

"Provisions for referendums demonstrate devotion to democracy, not to bias, discrimination, or prejudice," Black declared.

He added: "The people of California have ... decided by their own vote to require referendum approval of low-rent public housing projects. This procedure ensures that all the people of a community will have a voice in a decision which may lead to large expenditures of local governmental funds for increased public services and to lower tax revenues."

Voters in the California communities had decided by referendum against joining with the federal government in financing of low-cost housing projects. Local housing authorities were barred from applying for federal funds because of the votes.

Mother, Daughter Tell Why We Dress In Certain Ways

By BARBARA HOSMER

Finding the "gut reasons" of why people throughout history wore the clothes they did and do kept a mother and daughter author team busy researching and writing for two and a half years — largely in Marin.

"We actually had the idea for this book 15 years ago," said Moira Johnston, the daughter, when the two returned briefly to Marin last week. They even filed the title 10 years ago, but felt the time wasn't ready then for them to write such a book.

A former fashion artist for Women's Wear Daily now living in San Francisco, Mrs. Johnston moved to Marin four years ago with her husband, Donald, and a tiny baby.

"We arrived at the time of the beginning of the counter-culture and flower child thing," Mrs. Johnston said. People were upset and curious about the hippie way of dress, a whole revolution in clothing.

"People were ready to read about clothes," Moira Johnston said. She and her mother, noted Canadian author Christie Harris of Vancouver, set to work, Moira researching and illustrating and Mrs. Harris doing the writing.

Mrs. Harris and her husband spent several years making trips to the Kent Woodlands hilltop home the Johnstons were renting to do the book.

The research job was tremendous, encompassing something of the entire history of man on the earth.

"We read psychology, sociology, history, anthropology, behavorial studies — Clothes were almost the last part of our study," explained Mrs. Johnston.

Most of their research was conducted through the Marin County Public Library and its Ross Branch, with such valuable assistance from Virginia Borland, Marin County research librarian, and Marie Duffee of the Ross Branch that they are listed in the book's authors' acknowledgement next to the Metropolitan Museum of Art Costume Institute.

"They went to any length to track down information for us through the state library system," says Moira, "so it was easiest to do our research in Marin." Mrs. Johnston did make three trips to New York as well as many to museums and library sources in the Bay Area.

For these reasons it is fitting that the new Novato Branch of the Marin County Library which opened officially Saturday is displaying Mrs. Johnston's illustrations from the book for the opening.

The two wrote their book to develop a theory to fit what's happening in clothing and to bring the study of clothing up to date in the 1970s, say the authors.

Clothes, they say, are an expression of a society's values, and when Hippies chose to wear long hair, conventional adult society felt its very values were threatened by such a different appearance.

"Obviously dress was such a deep expression of a society that to attack its dress was to attack the society itself," they say of the counter-cultures' draping of skins, furs, bells, beads and fringes which has recently caused so much uptightness by the stolid business suited generations.

"Clothes are much, much more than fashion," they state.

The book documents their theory that what people have worn through the ages reflected their deepest values. The authors feel this idea supercedes and includes the previous theories of dress — that clothes are based on utility, hierarchy or seduction.

Instead, clothes largely reflect a people's deepest convictions and everytime there is a change in these convictions there is a change in clothing, they write. Further, when two cultures confront one another, the group that has lost faith in its old convictions has always adopted the dress of the other culture.

Their ideas are borne out through the 228 pages of their book, largely history related to what our ancestors throughout the world wore.

In writing the book, it was Moira who was the clothing expert. "We almost called it, 'Why Who Wore What'," she quipped, adding that her mother is the writer in the family.

"Cultural contact is my field," said Mrs. Harris. "My interest is in the humanity of peoples."

Together the mother and daughter collaborated to help people understand why they wear what they do, where the coat came from, what they express in their clothes.

"We are hoping people will 'read' clothes from their own closets," said Mrs. Johnston.

Costume, or fashion became separated from reality in the industrial age, they believe, when the Western business suit came to express the pure functionalism of the times. Anything else was considered fashion fluff and kookiness decreed by couturiers for the entertainment of a few wealthy. Now, they maintain, more human values are coming through, largely brought on through the Hippie style of dress which emphasizes the more sensual textures and colors. The blending of the two should produce interesting attire for the next decade, they believe.

Canadian College Has Class For Women On The American Male

WINNIPEG, Man. (UPI)— College girls probably have been studying men since the first one enrolled, but 60 in Winnipeg are getting class credit for it —in a special all-female class on the study on the male sex.

They're studying the history of North American dating habits and hearing lectures by women's liberation militants.

The three-hour-a-week course is the brainchild of its teacher, Mrs. Lesley Hughes, who was asked to design an English Department course at Red River Community College for 60 student nurses.

"SO RATHER than set them to studying Shakespeare and Milton, two more men, I decided to give them something useful and with practical application," says 28-year-old Mrs. Hughes.

"I think the girls need it because life is so complicated for women in 1971. There are more choices and decisions open to a woman than ever before."

And despite the guest lectures by women's liberationists, Mrs. Hughes says the course isn't aimed at encouraging revolt by women.

"On the contrary, the point is not to turn out feminists but young women who can cope with the very sophisticated demands made on them by society—namely men ..."

Says Mrs. Hughes:

"This course isn't anti-men. What would we do without them?"

Meanwhile her boss, Len Goodine, says that if the course is successful, it would be offered in other college departments such as secretarial science.

Mrs. Hagler Heads P-TA

Mrs. William Hagler of Greenbrae, new president of the Redwood High School Parent-Teacher Association, has been a member for four years and serves as chairman of various committees.

She believes the P-TA's purpose is to bridge the gap between home and school. Informal meetings between parents and administrators and a back-to-school night are in the planning stages.

A homemaker, Mrs. Hagler is a graduate of the University of California with an elementary teaching credential. She is also president of the Alpha Delta Pi Alumnae of Marin and a member of the Northgate Group of the Marin Art and Garden Center and the Marin County U.C. Berkeley Alumni Committee.

A native of San Bernardino, Mrs. Hagler has lived in Marin for 20 years. Rich, 17, Kathy, 15, and Jack, 13, are her children. She enjoys skiing with her family, bridge and tennis.

Being installed with Mrs. Hagler on May 4 are Donald Kreps, second vice president; and Mmes. Paul O'Neal, first vice president; Marvin Buell, third vice president; Royal Radke, recording secretary; J.W. McClintock, corresponding secretary; Reiko Schroeder, auditor; Jack Van Wart, historian; and William Asiano, treasurer.

Redwood P-TA's honorary service award was given to Mrs. F. Burt Schullerts of Greenbrae for her many years of service to schools and youth groups, especially her service as chairman of the P-TA legislative committee and the open forums for senior government classes.

Second Spouse Tends To Be Like The First

People who remarry tend to choose husbands or wives "remarkably like their first ones," according to an article in a national magazine by a California marriage counselor.

This phenomenon has been observed by every marriage counselor, stated Dr. Floyd Anderson, director of the California Family Guidance Center. Even when the second spouse seems to be quite different on the surface, "there may be great similarities in basic character," he said in the May issue of Ladies' Home Journal.

Statistics show that America's ten million second marriages (for one or both spouses) "when tested by all possible sociological measurements, prove just as happy as first marriages or perhaps even happier," stated the survey article.

"One reason is that people who picked a mate too hastily and thoughtlessly the first time around are more careful the second time," the article said. It quotes a twice-married man as an example: "I knew all the while I was courting my first wife that she hated housekeeping and didn't like children. I could see her defects — but I was in such a love-sick trance that I ignored them."

"People who marry for the second time are also more realistic," asserted the survey article, and "don't start off on that big, foolish, romantic cloud."

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

His Wife Is Always Giving Him The 'Queen Of The Prom' Jazz

DEAR HELEN:

My wife never stops throwing it up to me that she was the c a t c h of the town, and had countless proposals and a hundred men to choose from.

She conveniently forgets (until I r e m i n d her) that those "proposals" weren't all with marriage in mind, and it was the result of one such that I married her.

Then she starts throwing things. Mostly verbal.

As you can see, Helen, it is not a good marriage. We both go out of our way to hurt each other.

It started off wrong. My wife (then single) was pregnant by a man who left town suddenly when she told him. I d i d n ' t know this, when we met, but in all fairness, I must say she confessed before our wedding. I had this protective thing about her and swore it would make no difference.

Well, she had a miscarriage, and life went quite smoothly for over a year. Then, in a fit of anger, she told me she never loved me — I was just a way out.

Maybe love can't die of just one blow, but it happened with me. From that day on — warfare. I've excused my actions with, "She deserves it." My actions have included several unsatisfactory flings with women who probably disliked me as much as my wife d o e s . She retaliates with that old "Queen of the prom" jazz.

We'd split up but there's a baby on the way. Oh yes, It's mine (though I've told her I had my doubts). We loved each other, then — or at least I thought we did.

I always thought a divorce was easy — until it started happening to us. Do we try to make it, or — CALL IT QUITS?

DEAR CIQ:

My "I.G.A.P. (I'm guessing Again Preception)" says that if you and your wife would level with each other, you might find love isn't as dead as you think. If you no longer cared, would you bother with all this hurting and fighting?

You say that one sentence, shouted in anger, killed your marriage. Don't you know a furious woman goes for the jugular, never mind the truth? I'll bet she tried hard to explain, but your pride closed her out.

So you "got even," and she sniped back by making you feel even more inferior, and the war was on.

Why don't you both concede that the score is even, sit down and talk as you've never talked before? Hopefully, you'll discover you want to stay together because you still care, not simply for the sake of the baby (a dangerous reason). — H.

DEAR HELEN:

A friend told me that if you don't wear a bra, you're more likely to get cancer, and you become saggy earlier. Is this true? — K.J.

DEAR K:

First: Not true.

Second: Probable, if you are the pendulous type. Muscles that support the breast are paper thin and need all the help they can get. Once they stretch from too much weight, there's no bringing back their elasticity. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

I heard that if you have a vasectomy it's only good for seven years. Same with a woman who gets her t u b e s tied. Right?

— MR. T.

DEAR MR. T.:

Wrong. Only a doctor can reverse these operations, and then only part of the time.

(My doctor had a busy time this week: I call him on HHU questions so much he never knows any more whether I have a pain or a problem.) — H.

Death Rate Rises With High Carbon Monoxide In Air

By ARTHUR E. ROWSE

WASHINGTON — Results of a four-year study of pollution levels and death rates in Los Angeles County reveal some new clues about the dangers of one of the best known hazards to human life: carbon monoxide.

Everyone learns early in life about this stealthy, invisible, odorless and tasteless gas and the importance of having plenty of ventilation wherever a burning of fuel occurs in the presence of animals or people.

Accidental deaths from carbon monoxide from only one source, unvented gas heaters in homes, have been estimated to be as high as 1,000 per year, according to U.S. Public Health Service data. Many fire victims also succumb to this gas rather than to burns.

But few people are aware of what small amounts of carbon monoxide can do over a long period of time. Even when serious poisoning occurs, the symptoms are often mistaken for signs of food poisoning. The most obvious symptoms are drowsiness, headache, flushed complexion and nausea.

SOME STUDIES have even linked repeated exposure to the gas to a variety of emotional disturbances. Among the less serious effects of breathing heavy concentrations of exhaust fumes are temporary loss of memory and impairment of vision.

The gas accumulates if there is insufficient ventilation in the burning process. As the oxygen in the air disappears, so does the oxygen in the blood and brain, causing the symptoms mentioned above.

Even the relatively small amounts of carbon monoxide in the open air may raise death rates, according to the Los Angeles study, which was reported in the April 16 issue of Science, the weekly journal of the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

In order to determine the effect of the gas, Alfred C. Hexter and John R. Goldsmith, California public health officials, compared d a y - t o - d a y death statistics with temperatures and carbon monoxide levels for the entire years of 1962, 1963, 1964 and 1965.

THE LINES ON the three graphs were remarkably similar in both high points and low points.

The authors concluded that carbon monoxide, when present in the degree found in Los Angeles air, is definitely associated with increased mortality.

They estimated that 11 more people would die on days of highest monoxide concentration (20.2 parts per million) than on days of lowest concentration (7.3 parts per million), all other factors being equal.

Up to 50 parts per million are known to cause temporary impairments of body functions, but the Los Angeles figures indicate that much lower concentrations encountered repeatedly can be far more serious than one-time exposure to higher concentrations.

IF THE figures are indeed valid, they mean that the polluted air of only one large city can raise the number of deaths in only 100 days higher than the 1,000 fatalities attributed to unvented space heaters for an entire year t h r o u g h o u t the country.

People most susceptible to polluted air are those with heart and circulatory ailments or weaknesses. Hexter and Goldsmith found that death rates for these a i l m e n t s matched the pollution rates with a pattern similar to that for all deaths.

The Emporium Women's Hosiery: All 9 Big E's

Mother, Daughter Tell Why We Dress In Certain Ways

By BARBARA HOSMER

Finding the "gut reasons" of why people throughout history wore the clothes they did and do kept a mother and daughter author team busy researching and writing for two and a half years — largely in Marin.

"We actually had the idea for this book 15 years ago," said Moira Johnston, the daughter, when the two returned briefly to Marin last week. They even filed the title 10 years ago, but felt the time wasn't ready then for them to write such a book.

A former fashion artist for Women's Wear Daily now living in San Francisco, Mrs. Johnston moved to Marin four years ago with her husband, Donald, and a tiny baby.

"We arrived at the time of the beginning of the counter-culture and flower child thing," Mrs. Johnston said. People were upset and curious about the hippie way of dress, a whole revolution in clothing.

"People were ready to read about clothes," Moira Johnston said. She and her mother, noted Canadian author Christie Harris of Vancouver, set to work, Moira researching and illustrating and Mrs. Harris doing the writing.

Mrs. Harris and her husband spent several years making trips to the Kent Woodlands hilltop home the Johnstons were renting to do the book.

The research job was tremendous, encompassing something of the entire history of man on the earth.

"We read psychology, sociology, history, anthropology, behavorial studies — Clothes were almost the last part of our study," explained Mrs. Johnston.

Most of their research was conducted through the Marin County Public Library and its Ross Branch, with such valuable assistance from Virginia Borland, Marin County research librarian, and Marie Duffee of the Ross Branch that they are listed in the book's authors' acknowledgement next to the Metropolitan Museum of Art Costume Institute.

"They went to any length to track down information for us through the state library system," says Moira, "so it was easiest to do our research in Marin." Mrs. Johnston did make three trips to New York as well as many to museums and library sources in the Bay Area.

For these reasons it is fitting that the new Novato Branch of the Marin County Library which opened officially Saturday is displaying Mrs. Johnston's illustrations from the book for the opening.

The two wrote their book to develop a theory to fit what's happening in clothing and to bring the study of clothing up to date in the 1970s, say the authors.

Clothes, they say, are an expression of a society's values, and when Hippies chose to wear long hair, conventional adult society felt its very values were threatened by such a different appearance.

"Obviously dress was such a deep expression of a society that to attack its dress was to attack the society itself," they say of the counter-cultures' draping of skins, furs, bells, beads and fringes which has recently caused so much uptightness by the stolid business suited generations.

"Clothes are much, much more than fashion," they state.

The book documents their theory that what people have worn through the ages reflected their deepest values. The authors feel this idea supercedes and includes the previous theories of dress — that clothes are based on utility, hierarchy or seduction.

Instead, clothes largely reflect a people's deepest convictions and everytime there is a change in these convictions there is a change in clothing, they write. Further, when two cultures confront one another, the group that has lost faith in its old convictions has always adopted the dress of the other culture.

Their ideas are borne out through the 228 pages of their book, largely history related to what our ancestors throughout the world wore.

In writing the book, it was Moira who was the clothing expert. "We almost called it, 'Why Who Wore What'," she quipped, adding that her mother is the writer in the family.

"Cultural contact is my field," said Mrs. Harris. "My interest is in the humanity of peoples."

Together the mother and daughter collaborated to help people understand why they wear what they do, where the coat came from, what they express in their clothes.

"We are hoping people will 'read' clothes from their own closets," said Mrs. Johnston.

Costume, or fashion became separated from reality in the industrial age, they believe, when the Western business suit came to express the pure functionalism of the times. Anything else was considered fashion fluff and kookiness decreed by couturiers for the entertainment of a few wealthy. Now, they maintain, more human values are coming through, largely brought on through the Hippie style of dress which emphasizes the more sensual textures and colors. The blending of the two should produce interesting attire for the next decade, they believe.

Canadian College Has Class For Women On The American Male

WINNIPEG, Man. (UPI)— College girls probably have been studying men since the first one enrolled, but 60 in Winnipeg are getting class credit for it —in a special all-female class on the study on the male sex.

They're studying the history of North American dating habits and hearing lectures by women's liberation militants.

The three-hour-a-week course is the brainchild of its teacher, Mrs. Lesley Hughes, who was asked to design an English Department course at Red River Community College for 60 student nurses.

"SO RATHER than set them to studying Shakespeare and Milton, two more men, I decided to give them something useful and with practical application," says 28-year-old Mrs. Hughes.

"I think the girls need it because life is so complicated for women in 1971. There are more choices and decisions open to a woman than ever before."

And despite the guest lectures by women's liberationists, Mrs. Hughes says the course isn't aimed at encouraging revolt by women.

"On the contrary, the point is not to turn out feminists but young women who can cope with the very sophisticated demands made on them by society—namely men ..."

Says Mrs. Hughes:

"This course isn't anti-men. What would we do without them?"

Meanwhile her boss, Len Goodine, says that if the course is successful, it would be offered in other college departments such as secretarial science.

Mrs. Hagler Heads P-TA

Mrs. William Hagler of Greenbrae, new president of the Redwood High School Parent-Teacher Association, has been a member for four years and serves as chairman of various committees.

She believes the P-TA's purpose is to bridge the gap between home and school. Informal meetings between parents and administrators and a back-to-school night are in the planning stages.

A homemaker, Mrs. Hagler is a graduate of the University of California with an elementary teaching credential. She is also president of the Alpha Delta Pi Alumnae of Marin and a member of the Northgate Group of the Marin Art and Garden Center and the Marin County U.C. Berkeley Alumni Committee.

A native of San Bernardino, Mrs. Hagler has lived in Marin for 20 years. Rich, 17, Kathy, 15, and Jack, 13, are her children. She enjoys skiing with her family, bridge and tennis.

Being installed with Mrs. Hagler on May 4 are Donald Kreps, second vice president; and Mmes. Paul O'Neal, first vice president; Marvin Buell, third vice president; Royal Radke, recording secretary; J.W. McClintock, corresponding secretary; Reiko Schroeder, auditor; Jack Van Wart, historian; and William Asiano, treasurer.

Redwood P-TA's honorary service award was given to Mrs. F. Burt Schullerts of Greenbrae for her many years of service to schools and youth groups, especially her service as chairman of the P-TA legislative committee and the open forums for senior government classes.

Second Spouse Tends To Be Like The First

People who remarry tend to choose husbands or wives "remarkably like their first ones," according to an article in a national magazine by a California marriage counselor.

This phenomenon has been observed by every marriage counselor, stated Dr. Floyd Anderson, director of the California Family Guidance Center. Even when the second spouse seems to be quite different on the surface, "there may be great similarities in basic character," he said in the May issue of Ladies' Home Journal.

Statistics show that America's ten million second marriages (for one or both spouses) "when tested by all possible sociological measurements, prove just as happy as first marriages or perhaps even happier," stated the survey article.

"One reason is that people who picked a mate too hastily and thoughtlessly the first time around are more careful the second time," the article said. It quotes a twice-married man as an example: "I knew all the while I was courting my first wife that she hated housekeeping and didn't like children. I could see her defects — but I was in such a love-sick trance that I ignored them."

"People who marry for the second time are also more realistic," asserted the survey article, and "don't start off on that big, foolish, romantic cloud."

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

His Wife Is Always Giving Him The 'Queen Of The Prom' Jazz

DEAR HELEN:

My wife never stops throwing it up to me that she was the catch of the town, and had countless proposals and a hundred men to choose from.

She conveniently forgets (until I remind her) that those "proposals" weren't all with marriage in mind, and it was the result of one such that I married her.

Then she starts throwing things. Mostly verbal.

As you can see, Helen, it is not a good marriage. We both go out of our way to hurt each other.

It started off wrong. My wife (then single) was pregnant by a man who left town suddenly when she told him. I didn't know this, when we met, but in all fairness, I must say she confessed before our wedding. I had this protective thing about her and swore it would make no difference.

Well, she had a miscarriage, and life went quite smoothly for over a year. Then, in a fit of anger, she told me she never loved me — I was just a way out.

Maybe love can't die of just one blow, but it happened with me. From that day on — warfare. I've excused my actions with, "She deserves it." My actions have included several unsatisfactory flings with women who probably disliked me as much as my wife does. She retaliates with that old "Queen of the prom" jazz.

We'd split up but there's a baby on the way. Oh yes, It's mine (though I've told her I had my doubts). We loved each other, then — or at least I thought we did.

I always thought a divorce was easy — until it started happening to us. Do we try to make it, or — CALL IT QUITS?

DEAR CIQ:

My "I.G.A.P. (I'm guessing Again Preception)" says that if you and your wife would level with each other, you might find love isn't as dead as you think. If you no longer cared, would you bother with all this hurting and fighting?

You say that one sentence, shouted in anger, killed your marriage. Don't you know a furious woman goes for the jugular, never mind the truth? I'll bet she tried hard to explain, but your pride closed her out.

So you "got even," and she sniped back by making you feel even more inferior, and the war was on.

Why don't you both concede that the score is even, sit down and talk as you've never talked before? Hopefully, you'll discover you want to stay together because you still care, not simply for the sake of the baby (a dangerous reason). — H.

DEAR HELEN:

A friend told me that if you don't wear a bra, you're more likely to get cancer, and you become saggy earlier. Is this true? — K.J.

DEAR K:

First: Not true.

Second: Probable, if you are the pendulous type. Muscles that support the breast are paper thin and need all the help they can get. Once they stretch from too much weight, there's no bringing back their elasticity. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

I heard that if you have a vasectomy it's only good for seven years. Same with a woman who gets her tubes tied. Right?

— MR. T.

DEAR MR. T.:

Wrong. Only a doctor can reverse these operations, and then only part of the time.

(My doctor had a busy time this week: I call him on HHU questions so much he never knows any more whether I have a pain or a problem.) — H.

This column is dedicated to family living, so if you're having kid trouble or just plain trouble, let Helen help you. Address Helen Bottel in care of the Independent-Journal.

Death Rate Rises With High Carbon Monoxide In Air

By ARTHUR E. ROWSE

WASHINGTON — Results of a four-year study of pollution levels and death rates in Los Angeles County reveal some new clues about the dangers of one of the best known hazards to human life: carbon monoxide.

Everyone learns early in life about this stealthy, invisible, odorless and tasteless gas and the importance of having plenty of ventilation wherever a burning of fuel occurs in the presence of animals or people.

Accidental deaths from carbon monoxide from only one source, unvented gas heaters in homes, have been estimated to be as high as 1,000 per year, according to U.S. Public Health Service data. Many fire victims also succumb to this gas rather than to burns.

But few people are aware of what small amounts of carbon monoxide can do over a long period of time. Even when serious poisoning occurs, the symptoms are often mistaken for signs of food poisoning. The most obvious symptoms are drowsiness, headache, flushed complexion and nausea.

SOME STUDIES have even linked repeated exposure to the gas to a variety of emotional disturbances. Among the less serious effects of breathing heavy concentrations of exhaust fumes are temporary loss of memory and impairment of vision.

The gas accumulates if there is insufficient ventilation in the burning process. As the oxygen in the air disappears, so does the oxygen in the blood and brain, causing the symptoms mentioned above.

Even the relatively small amounts of carbon monoxide in the open air may raise death rates, according to the Los Angeles study, which was reported in the April 16 issue of Science, the weekly journal of the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

In order to determine the effect of the gas, Alfred C. Hexter and John R. Goldsmith, California public health officials, compared day-to-day death statistics with temperatures and carbon monoxide levels for the entire years of 1962, 1963, 1964 and 1965.

THE LINES ON the three graphs were remarkably similar in both high points and low points.

The authors concluded that carbon monoxide, when present in the degree found in Los Angeles air, is definitely associated with increased mortality.

They estimated that 11 more people would die on days of highest monoxide concentration (20.2 parts per million) than on days of lowest concentration (7.3 parts per million), all other factors being equal.

Up to 50 parts per million are known to cause temporary impairments of body functions, but the Los Angeles figures indicate that much lower concentrations encountered repeatedly can be far more serious than one-time exposure to higher concentrations.

IF THE figures are indeed valid, they mean that the polluted air of only one large city can raise the number of deaths in only 100 days higher than the 1,000 fatalities attributed to unvented space heaters for an entire year throughout the country.

People most susceptible to polluted air are those with heart and circulatory ailments or weaknesses. Hexter and Goldsmith found that death rates for these ailments matched the pollution rates with a pattern similar to that for all deaths.

Work Savers Need Cleaning

NEW YORK (UPI)—Frost-free refrigerator-freezers certainly are work savers. However, homemakers do need to clean these appliances thoroughly a few times each year.

For safety, before starting to clean the appliances, unplug refrigerator and turn all controls to off, especially the signal arm of the automatic icemaker.

RAP SESSION

with

Youth & the Over-Thirties

Expressing the ideas, the opinions, the conflicts and agreements between younger & older people...

aimed at a better understanding of one another

Are you open to new ideas? To opinions which may be too far out or too "straight" for you? Can you stand to have your generation constructively criticized — and can you also take applause? This I-J two-part program is an attempt to bring out in the open what's wrong and what's right about the relationship today between youth and older people. In a series of 24 interviews the I-J will present people of diverse backgrounds and opinions expressing their views, their feelings, on the so-called generation gap . . . and what youth and the over-thirties might do to see one another in a more understanding light.

To further focus on this the Independent-Journal presents a contest with substantial prizes for the best letters on how "you" think a better rapport between youth and older people can best be reached. If you have ideas on this, here is your chance to candidly express them. . . with the possibility that your letter may be published whether or not it wins an award. Read the interviews, enter the contest. Ideas are now in session!

STARTS APRIL 26
RUNS THROUGH MAY 22

Interviews with younger and with older people will be presented on alternate days. In the course of a month readers will see a broad spectrum of opinions and ideas. This special I-J feature starts April 26 and will run daily through May 22 - 24 interviews in all. Look for them.

Cycles Tested — No Noise

By M. STREET BROOKS

The voice on the other end of the two-way radio said the motorcyclists were out on the course, but the three Marin County supervisors said they could not hear anything.

"There was no noise," said Arnold M. Baptiste, supervisor from Novato. Baptiste, Michael Wornum and Peter R. Arrigoni Jr. were at the Alvin Gambonini Ranch on Marshall-Petaluma Road in West Marin Saturday morning to determine whether or not a use permit should be allowed for use of the ranch by the 105 member Marin Motorcycle Association.

Adjacent landowners claim they have invested almost $1,000,000 in the property and that the noises of cycles would ruin their plans to build a subdivision of secluded homes on the property.

But the supervisors, about one mile away at the adjacent property line, said they could not hear the bikes racing around the tight and bumpy scrambles course.

First they listened for about 30 minutes while a dozen riders with silencers attached to the exhaust pipes of their bikes tested the flaglined half mile course. The silencers are used during all Marin Motorcycle Association events, according to association spokesmen.

Then, just to show how much noise the machines can produce, Bill Verbiscio, owner of Cycle Town in San Rafael, started his 360-cc CZ cycle. Verbiscio's bike is equipped with an expansion chamber, a device used to increase horsepower.

It also increases noise. Standing nearby while Verbiscio went airborne over a pile of soft dirt, the noise was like that of a continuous explosion.

"Like an aircraft in the far distance," was how Baptiste described it from the property line. "It was lower than a voice."

"I just came out to see if they were racing," he said straightfaced. Sadie stood still as though bored as the cycles sped by on the straightaway.

"My tractor makes more noise when I plow the field," Gambonini said.

About 25 people, most of them parents, watched the young riders. "We're after a place where these kids who can't be licensed can ride," explained Dean W. Everett, a forester from Woodacre. "We have seven children and they all ride."

There is also a motorcycle riding trail on the 1,400-are farm's brush covered hills and valleys. Like the scramble course, it is almost one mile from the adjacent land at its closest point. The trail is not used for racing.

Cycling is popular in Marin County with its 16,000 motorcycles, and the Marin Motorcycle Association has had to put a temporary freeze on membership. It is a family club.

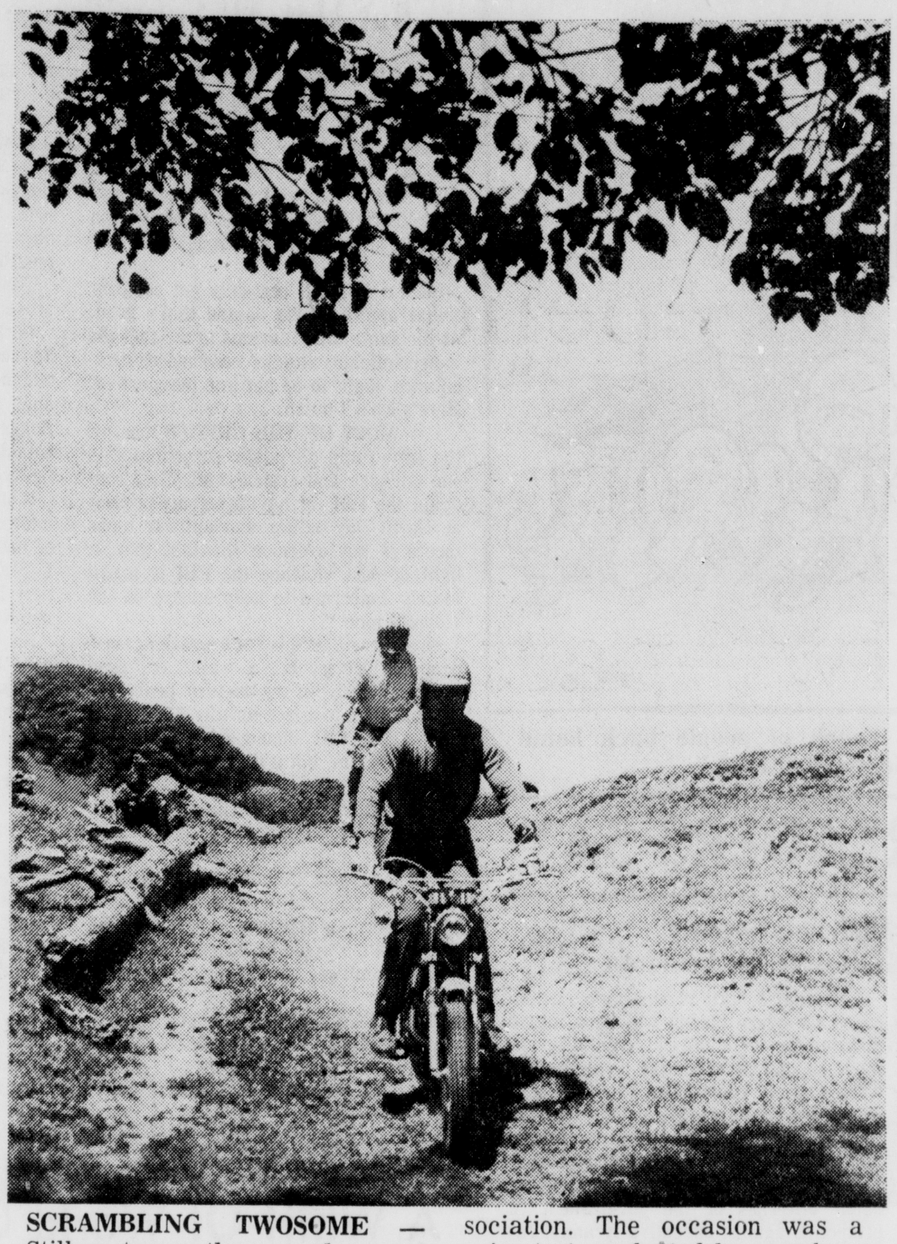
"There is a big problem," Baptiste said. "Not with the racing bikes, but the smaller bikes youngsters use on streets and the mini-bikes.

Baptiste, Wornum and Arrigoni are members of a supervisors' committee studying noise problems caused by cycles. They will report their views to the full board.

"We're looking to a noise ordinance," Baptiste said. "But this would apply to any noise — not just cycles."

He said the committee is considering setting aside outlying areas for riding.

"We have to look at it like any other recreational activity," Baptiste said. "It's not the type of sport that's going to go away."



SCRAMBLING TWOSOME — Still on top as they speed around the obstacle filled scrambles course at the Alvin Gambonini Ranch in West Marin are members of the Marin Motorcycle Association. The occasion was a noise test conducted by members of an ad hoc committee of Marin supervisors to determine if the cycles create a nuisance on adjacent property where a housing development is planned.

Three Injured In San Rafael

Three persons received minor injuries in two separate accidents over the weekend, San Rafael police reported.

George Thomas Swift, Jr., 17, of 12 Portola Drive, San Rafael, was treated at Marin General Hospital for a cut nose and multiple scrapes and bruises. Leslie Littman, 16, of 20 Portola Drive, San Rafael was treated at Marin General Hospital, for a broken nose and facial bruises.

Swift was driving south on Hetherton Street, at 8:36 p.m. when his car collided with one going west on Third Street, driven by Norman Eskelson, 43, of 3227 Shelter Bay Avenue, Mill Valley, police reported. Littman was a passenger in Swift's car.

James Michael Dunn, 76, of San Francisco, received minor bruises at 3:13 p.m. yesterday when his car, eastbound on Second Street west of C Street, hit a parking sign and utility pole, police reported.

Arraignment Slated In Assault

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — John Turner, 25, of Mill Valley, is to be arraigned in San Francisco Superior Court May 14 on a charge of felonious assault stemming from an uproar at a pretrial hearing for the Soledad Brothers.

Turner was bound over to superior court Friday after a preliminary hearing in municipal court.

Turner and two other men were arrested April 6 after a courtroom brawl in the Hall of Justice in which they battled bailiffs.

The Soledad Brothers, George Jackson, Fleeta Drumgo and John Cluchette, are scheduled to stand trial in August in connection with murder of a Soledad Prison guard in January 1970.

Jackson's younger brother, Jonathan, was killed in the Marin Civic Center shoot-out last August which also took the life of Judge Harold J. Haley.

Woman Treated After Accident

A 26-year-old San Anselmo woman was treated yesterday at Marin General Hospital for possible head injuries sustained when the auto in which she was riding collided with another in San Anselmo.

Officers said Jean B. Hall of 4 Herrera Court was injured when her husband, Norman, was unable to stop for traffic and rammed the rear of another vehicle on Sir Francis Drake Boulevard at Cordone Drive.

School Office Is Ransacked

A burglar entered Cherry Valley School on Cherry Street, Petaluma, about 2 p.m. yesterday and ransacked the main office, police said.

It was not immediately determined whether anything had been taken.

County Raises $3,800 In Auction Of Surplus

Approximately $3,800 was raised Saturday at a Marin County auction at Northgate Industrial Park in San Rafael.

Eugene R. Fontaine, assistant public administrator, said rough figures indicated $2,100 was paid for about 200 county surplus items, and about $1,700 for 82 probate items from the estates of deceased.

Funds from the surplus sale will go into the county's general fund, Fontaine said, and proceeds of the probate sale go to the estates of the items' owners.

Fontaine said 295 persons signed up to bid in the auction.

Bidding was especially active, he said, on a rocking chair that went for $88; a brass-bound chest that sold for $170, and on a dozen surplus fire alarm boxes which went for figures ranging from $4 to $15.

Probation, Prison In Cocaine Sale

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — Judge Albert C. Wollenberg of U.S. District Court has placed one Marin woman on straight probation and sent another to federal prison in connection with a $250,000 cocaine sale.

Receiving probation was Maureen Booth, 24, of San Anselmo, who had earlier pleaded guilty to conspiracy. Marcia Freet, 27, of Sausalito, who had failed to show up for trial on Feb. 1, turned herself in to federal authorities last week and pleaded guilty to a count of selling cocaine.

Judge Wollenberg ordered her to Terminal Island prison for a 60-day study before he determines the length of her prison term. She is due back in court July 23.

The two women were among seven Marinites arrested last May at the San Francisco Airport and in Sausalito as a result of a long investigation.

The only other person to be sentenced to prison in connection with the case, Sharon Ann Needelman, 26, of San Anselmo, has been sought by authorities since she failed to show up Jan. 18 to serve a year in federal prison.

RAP SESSION

with

Youth & the Over-Thirties

Expressing the ideas, the opinions, the conflicts and agreements between younger & older people... aimed at a better understanding of one another

Are you open to new ideas? To opinions which may be too far out or too "straight" for you? Can you stand to have your generation constructively criticized — and can you also take applause? This I-J two-part program is an attempt to bring out in the open what's wrong and what's right about the relationship today between youth and older people. In a series of 24 interviews the I-J will present people of diverse backgrounds and opinions expressing their views, their feelings, on the so-called generation gap . . . and what youth and the over-thirties might do to see one another in a more understanding light.

To further focus on this the Independent-Journal presents a contest with substantial prizes for the best letters on how "you" think a better rapport between youth and older people can best be reached. If you have ideas on this, here is your chance to candidly express them. . . with the possibility that your letter may be published whether or not it wins an award. Read the interviews, enter the contest. Ideas are now in session!

TODAY'S EDITORIAL

Did The Old Man Really Learn Anything?

Mark Twain once wrote: "When I way a boy of 14, my father was so ignorant I could hardly stand to have the old man around. But when I got to be 21, I was astonished at how much the old man had learned in seven years."

Today, many youths of 21 still have a low opinion of "the old man". There is a popular saying among them, "Don't trust anyone over 30."

IS TODAY'S "GENERATION gap" merely the gap that always has existed between each younger generation and its elders? Or is it something much more?

Are the concerns of our juniors really very different from the concerns of the "over 30s"? Or are they merely expressed differently?

Just what "Establishment" is it against which youth rebels so fervently and sometimes violently? Are not the rebelling youths themselves members of an establishment that is at least in part of their own creation?

THESE ARE QUESTIONS which many answers are offered. But none of the answers seems satisfactory. "Communication" has become a catch word; yet there seems to be great difficulty in young communicating with old, and vice versa. "Dialogues" end up as shouting matches — or as monologues with a Jerry Rubin or a Spiro Agnew "laying it on the line" and everyone else expected to remain silent.

A common complaint of young people is that they are repressed. A common complaint among their elders is that this generation of youth has been coddled by over-permissive parents. Both can't be right. Is either of them?

Spokesmen for youth (or at least, those who claim to be spokesmen for youth) claim "the system" doesn't work. Some of them want to destroy the system. Their elders, some of whom are trying hard to make the system work (and many of whom, unfortunately, seem to feel it will work automatically and they can just have a free ride) challenge youth to say what system it would evolve to replace what we now have.

In every generation, the enthusiasm and idealism of youth serves as a goad for elders whose knowledge and experience is inclined to become corroded by cynicism. But today, the generations appear too much divided for the yeast of youth to provide ferment without explosion.

IT IS TO PROBE into where youth and what it calls the "Establishment" differ, into what youth really wants and what its elders want for it, that the Independent-Journal today begins a "Rap Session" series, to continue for four weeks.

We seek letters from those of all ages, voicing their concerns and their ideas on what divides younger from older and what brings them together.

Poppies And Lupine

The delicate orange blossoms with the fine fern-like foliage are blooming in the knee-high grass of the next-door orchard.

The Spanish called them cups of gold. They are a golden flower for the Golden State. These California poppies are longer blooming than most wildflowers and can be found in flower in some parts of Marin from March through May.

Now they are being joined by the shorter-lived stalks of purple lupine. Together they make a kind of wildflower royalty — the purple and gold — to grace our green Marin hills and dales each spring.

One-Man Conservation Lobby In Behalf Of Lame Ducks

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

One member of the Marin County Board of Supervisors has been conducting a solitary campaign in Sacramento against legislation that would cut short the political life of lame duck supervisors.

Supervisor Louis H. Baar, however, never has consulted his four fellow board members publicly on their position on the legislation. One reason may be that they would disagree with him.

A supervisor has the same right as any citizen to lobby in Sacramento. But we question his propriety in lobbying against a measure that could affect directly all other members of his board.

It is possible, of course, that Baar expects lame duckhood to be his personal problem.

THE LEGISLATION was introduced initially by Assemblyman William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael, but he dropped it, reportedly after strong appeals from Baar. The same measure, however, quickly resurfaced with a new author, Assemblyman John T. Knox, D-Richmond.

It would put newly elected supervisors in office 29 days after being elected. A supervisor winning a June primary thus would take his seat by early July.

A CONSTITUTIONAL amendment to approve the law would be on the ballot in June, 1972, thus would apply to supervisorial candidates in that primary election if it passed.

Seating 29 days after election was aimed at preventing lame ducks from passing ordinances after their defeat, as happened with several controversial land uses last year in Sacramento County. Ordinances generally take 30 days to become effective, so a newly elected supervisor could vote to reverse approval of any ordinance which he opposed.

Former Marin Supervisor Ernest N. Kettenhofen, incidentally, called for such legislation when he lost in the June, 1968, primary to Peter R. Arrigoni Jr.

The full board could resolve the issue by taking a public stand on the legislation. It shouldn't take all that much political courage to vote to support the legislation.

Opposing it, after all, would appear to be an admission of less than overwhelming confidence that the voters want you enough to keep you in office.

REP. WILLIAM S. Mailliard, R-Sixth District, was criticized here recently for supporting the supersonic transport. His staff promptly sent us a protest — and mailed it to San Rafael from San Francisco with an airmail stamp.

Maybe they thought it was coming by SST?

A TINY TRIUMPH for candor was uttered this month by former County Supervisor Thomas T. Storer: "It has been my considered opinion that most people holding public office are extremely limited and usually totally lacking in imagination."

Making the comment to the Independent-Journal after the Larkspur City Council approved a creekside development he was protesting, Storer said, "Nothing happened here tonight to change that opinion."

MAN BITES DOG

"How can we get out of Vietnam when we can't even get out of our cities?"

"Well, I sure wish WE had a bunch of people back home demanding a complete withdrawal."

Mental Health Center Assisted Program

I appreciate the coverage your newspaper gave to "A Night at Generation Gap" held at Adaline E. Kent School, March 17 and 24. However, I would like to add further information and acknowledge the important contribution by personnel from the Community Mental Health Center.

The program was organized by a committee of Kentfield parents under the chairmanship of Mrs. Nancy Osborn. The committee sought and received consultant help from Mrs. Connie Lashbrook, mental health educator at the Community Mental Health Center. Mrs. Lashbrook devoted many hours in training students and parents for their role as facilitators in group discussions ...

It was the enthusuasm of all participants which helped to make the evenings beneficial and I am grateful for the knowledge that such agencies and services as the Community Mental Health Center are available in Marin County.

Judicial Tyranny Disaster For Children

Yesterday's April 20 supreme court decision on school busing will be a major disaster for our children. Judicial tyranny is as bad as executive tyranny. The writers of our constitution were students of history and were aware of executive tyranny - chiefly of kings and emperors. Judicial tyranny had not yet appeared. The founding fathers gave us three coequal branches of the government to protect us against executive tyranny. Judicial tyranny did not occur to them, and they provided us no defense against it.

Toliver Charges Called Incongruous

I can't help seriously questioning the incongruous charges of "incompetence" and "disruptive behavior" brought against special assistant James T. Toliver Jr. by Supt. Lawrence A. Lindberg of the Sausalito School District.

I find them inconsistent with our experience and observation during the years our son attended Martin Luther King and I worked there regularly as a library volunteer. We came to trust and depend on Mr. Toliver as a man of thorough competence and integrity.

When Mr. Toliver first came to the school he was one of the counselors in Guidance, where it was the enlightened policy to send children whose behavior was disrupting the class. His handling of problems showed excellent training and skill...

During the next two years at Martin Luther King most of the responsibility for handling disciplinary problems and explosive situations devolved on Mr. Toliver and he continued to handle them basically in this manner which proved effective regardless of the current mechanics for handling discipline problems, which changed each year under different administrators, and at the same time he seemed to be able to work in harmony with the different regimes...

I am convinced that if Mr. Toliver's performance were evaluated by professionals qualified by similar training and experience to judge it, it would be found that his work meets high professional standards, and that his behavior, rather than disruptive, is consistent with the highest professional ethical standards...

Track Team Member Supports Principal

I believe Mr. (Donald) Kreps made the right move in the recent track controversy at Redwood High School. I also believe Steve Levintow had every right to ask him for help.

This particular episode was brought upon by stubbornness on both sides, the failing to reach a compromise, and was climaxed by Coach (Stanley) Tobiason's quitting.

Mr. Kreps stepped into the controversy when Coach Tobiason wouldn't let Levintow on the team. Coach Tobiason had no reason other than his own personal dislike for Levintow to keep him off the team. Now don't get me wrong, Levintow and other members of past Redwood teams have given Coach Tobiason much trouble in the past, much of it completely uncalled for and unfair. However Coach Tobiason invented ways to keep Levintow off the team. One reason was his hair length. Steve's hair was shorter than members of our team. Another reason for banning him from the team was because he hadn't practiced with the team. Coach Tobiason had forbade him from practicing on the track. Steve did show up for practice but he was turned away.

I must disagree with Joe Clark when he says the team morale was hurt when our coaches quit. Now the team has more responsibility and everyone is pulling together to help out our new coaches, Mr. Russ Hill and Mr. Don Shaver. Mr. Hill has made a great effort to help our team. Mr. Hill really cares about all of us and tries to help us all.

Believe me, the Redwood track team will carry on and you will hear great things from us and our new coaches.

Too Much Spying On Americans, But Not All Surveillance Wrong

WASHINGTON — There has been too much blunderbuss spying going on in the United States. It is unhealthy and unnecessary.

It is, therefore, eminently welcome that Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C., a great civil libertarian, is preparing legislation to bring surveillance activities under control.

Such a bill will certainly get congressional approval, too — and that's good. At the same time it seems to me that the indiscriminate attacks on needed surveillance ought to be put into perspective. Here's what I mean:

1 — MOST OF THE CRITICS most of the time lump all public surveillance in one package and attack it all. They condemn the FBI for having agents present at Earth Day rallies and antiwar mass meetings but overlook the fact that in light of past violence the FBI is legitimately concerned to keep an eye on the violent-prone.

This surveillance is not a watch against peaceful protest but a watch on those who are likely to try to turn peaceable assemblies into a free-for-all.

2 — The FBI should not be immune from criticism, but it is intolerable that it should be made the target of meat-ax attacks without proof. This is a Hitler tactic. Assert the unproved and keep on repeating it until it is believed.

3 — And now Democrats are making the FBI a political football. They kick it every morning and twice and night and nearly all the would-be Democratic presidential nominees are chorusing the same things.

IT IS REVEALING to note how eagerly many liberals hop on President Nixon, Attorney General Mitchell, J. Edgar Hoover and others for lack of credibility. But then these liberals become chastened beyond words when those who make these attacks fail to provide proof.

The most vivid example is the accusation House Democratic Leader Hale Boggs, D-La., made April 15 when he accused the FBI of "tapping the telephones of members of this body and of members of the Senate."

That was 20 days ago. No evidence to prove the accusation.

IT HAS BEEN demonstrated that the Justice Department obtained from the telephone company records of long-distance calls made from the offices of Boggs and former Speaker John McCormack in connection with criminal investigations of two of McCormack's aides.

It has been demonstrated that an FBI informant made a secret tape-recording of his interview with Rep. John Dowdy, D-Tex., in connection with alleged bribery for which Rep. Dowdy is now under indictment.

As the Washington Post fairly points out, these incidents "do not support Boggs' April 5 accusations and the FBI can hardly be condemned for investigating allegedly illegal acts even when they touch congressmen."

NO CONGRESSMAN or senator has come forward to support Rep. Boggs's accusations. Senator Ervin says he has yet to find any evidence of illegal actions by the FBI and Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield, D-Mont., says the same thing.

Despite unfair criticism of legitimate surveillance, Senator Ervin makes a good case that it has gone too far. Congress is rightly planning to lay down careful guidelines to control such surveillance and will almost certainly prohibit civilian spying by the military.

BY NO MEANS NEUTRAL

A Whiff Of World Outside For Ghetto Fifth-Graders

By ERNEST B. FURGURSON

THURMONT, Md.— Camp David lies quiet on weekdays behind ranks of "no trespassing" signs, two strands of steel wire, two tall chain-link fences with barbed wire on top and a cleared lane between, floodlights with interlocking coverage, and guardhouses positioned for maximum field of view. To the passer-by driving through Catoctin Mountain National Park, it looks more like a concentration camp than a presidential retreat.

But to the 1,200 District of Columbia fifth-graders who will have spent a week in the park before school adjourns for the summer, Camp David may be the least impressive thing on the mountain. Some of them never heard of it.

They are public school children from the blackest big city in America. About 90 per cent of them are black, and many are poor. Many have never been outside their home neighborhoods before. Almost none ever has spent a night away from home. Home, for most, is the far-reaching ghetto of Washington, which is not the same city of green spaces, monuments and flowering trees that constitutes picture-book Washington.

UNDER THOSE circumstances, what is so impressive about seeing a barbed-wire barrier, compared to smelling your first pine tree? As one 10-yearold described the sensation of sitting in a grove beside Hunting Creek, "It smelled just like bathroom cleaner."

That is the kind of particularly urban insight heard by schoolteachers and park rangers every day as they lead the children through their first experience in a world most of us take for granted, one only 75 miles from Washington, yet as foreign as Urdu to a ghetto fifth-grader.

The program ostensibly is five days of environmental education. The park service and the Washington School Board co-operate on it. It is the first time the park service has taken an active part in teaching groups of overnight visitors to the national parks, rather than merely playing landlord for them. Frank Mentzer, the park superintendent and an eager advocate of the program, sees it as a pilot project that could lead the nationwide service further into dealing with people as much as with trees, with wide-eyed city children as much as with experienced family campers.

IN SEVERAL WAYS, the program takes up where the late Job Corps left off when it was abolished by Mr. Nixon. The schoolchildren live in a former Job Corps camp at Round Meadow. The park service official in direct charge is Oliver Gillespie, who was a Job Corps teacher before he switched titles. Most of those in class are from the same background as the Job Corps enrollees were, only younger.

On the bookshelf in Gillespie's office, mixed in with National Wildlife magazines and the other conservation publications you would expect, are books on SNCC, on black progress since slavery and other subjects more likely for the sociologist than the ranger.

And while the program teaches subjects entitled, "Man and His Environment," "Stream Ecology," "Animal Habitats" and "Geology," teachers and rangers alike agree that the main thing the students take back to the city is less specific environmental knowledge than a new way of looking at themselves and what is around them.

BEFORE THE FIRST group arrived, Mentzer was told, "My God, those inner-city kids are going to tear the place apart." But the only damage was a broken window pane, result of an honest foul tip.

The former professional football guard who supervises the program from the city side is amazed that there is almost no disciplinary problem among a group of children who would never let a day pass without a series of fights in their regular schools. He attributes it to the newness of it all, the fact that nobody is bored. Some of the children are experiencing the luxury of sleeping in a bed alone for the first time, for example.

There are challengers to such a program, who maintain it is unfair to expose poor children to a world beyond their attainment, thus inviting resentment and later trouble. To a man, the staff here takes the opposite view: that teaching a child that there is more out there than asphalt and pollution will encourage him to work harder toward a place in that cleaner, calmer world.

THE KIDS from the Charles Young School, which sits alongside the foul Anacostia River in Washington, know now that up in Maryland where the Anacostia begins, it is just as clean and sweet as Hunting Creek.

And some know now what a student pointed out to his classmates as he shushed them along a trail climbing near the barbed-wire of Camp David: "If you go too fast, you miss a lot of things. It's just like it is in life."

It is not a thought very likely to occur to the typical fifth-grader shut up in the spring in a school in the inner city.

Cycles Tested — No Noise

By M. STREET BROOKS

The voice on the other end of the two-way radio said the motorcyclists were out on the course, but the three Marin County supervisors said they could not hear anything.

"There was no noise," said Arnold M. Baptiste, supervisor from Novato. Baptiste, Michael Wornum and Peter R. Arrigoni Jr. were at the Alvin Gambonini Ranch on Marshall-Petaluma Road in West Marin Saturday morning to determine whether or not a use permit should be allowed for use of the ranch by the 105 member Marin Motorcycle Association.

Adjacent landowners claim they have invested almost $1,000,000 in the property and that the noises of cycles would ruin their plans to build a subdivision of secluded homes on the property.

But the supervisors, about one mile away at the adjacent property line, said they could not hear the bikes racing around the tight and bumpy scrambles course.

First they listened for about 30 minutes while a dozen riders with silencers attached to the exhaust pipes of their bikes tested the flaglined half mile course. The silencers are used during all Marin Motorcycle Association events, according to association spokesmen.

Then, just to show how much noise the machines can produce, Bill Verbiscio, owner of Cycle Town in San Rafael, started his 360-cc CZ cycle. Verbiscio's bike is equipped with an expansion chamber, a device used to increase horsepower.

It also increases noise. Standing nearby while Verbiscio went airborne over a pile of soft dirt, the noise was like that of a continuous explosion.

"Like an aircraft in the far distance," was how Baptiste described it from the property line. "It was lower than a voice."

"I just came out to see if they were racing," he said straightfaced. Sadie stood still as though bored as the cycles sped by on the straightaway.

"My tractor makes more noise when I plow the field," Gambonini said.

About 25 people, most of them parents, watched the young riders. "We're after a place where these kids who can't be licensed can ride," explained Dean W. Everett, a forester from Woodacre. "We have seven children and they all ride."

There is also a motorcycle riding trail on the 1,400-are farm's brush covered hills and valleys. Like the scramble course, it is almost one mile from the adjacent land at its closest point. The trail is not used for racing.

Cycling is popular in Marin County with its 16,000 motorcycles, and the Marin Motorcycle Association has had to put a temporary freeze on membership. It is a family club.

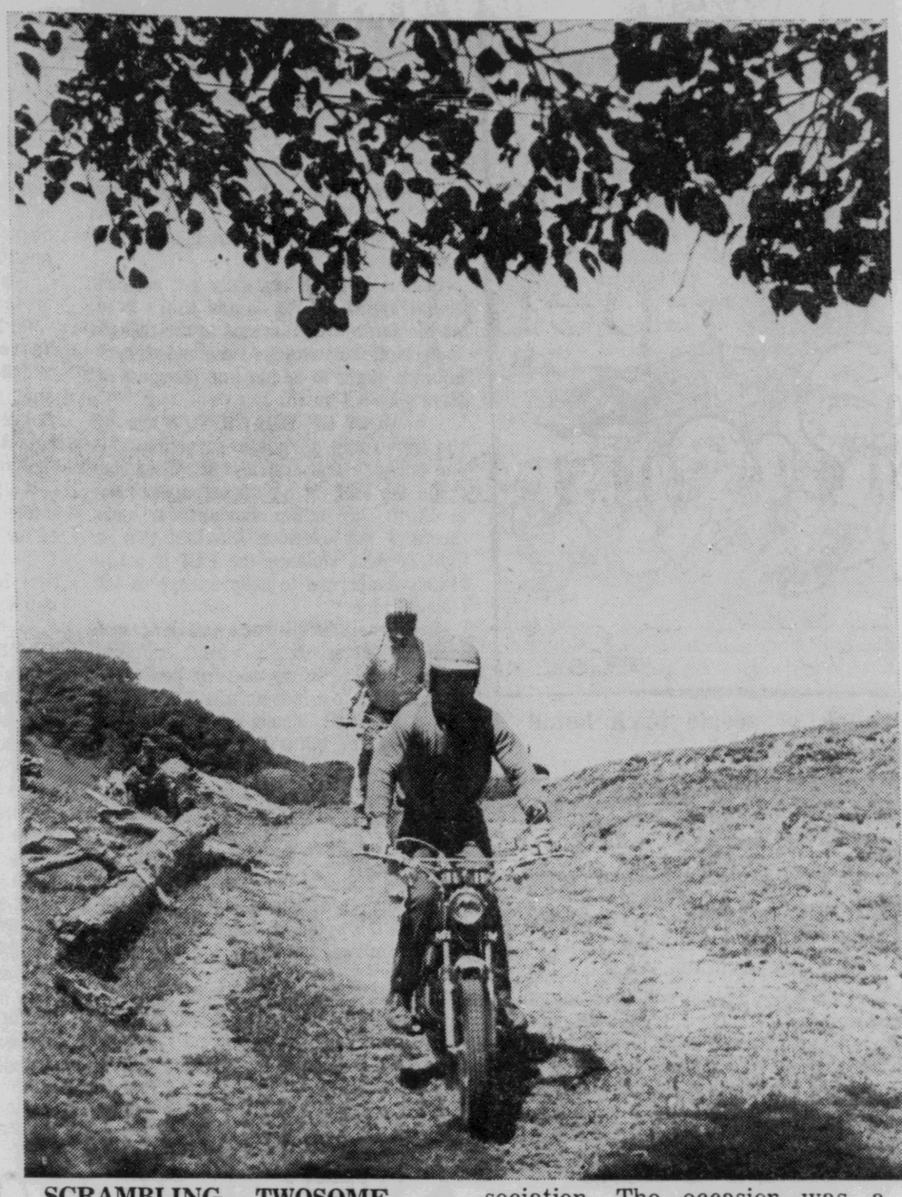
"There is a big problem," Baptiste said. "Not with the racing bikes, but the smaller bikes youngsters use on streets and the mini-bikes.

Baptiste, Wornum and Arrigoni are members of a supervisors' committee studying noise problems caused by cycles. They will report their views to the full board.

"We're looking to a noise ordinance," Baptiste said. "But this would apply to any noise — not just cycles."

He said the committee is considering setting aside outlying areas for riding.

"We have to look at it like any other recreational activity," Baptiste said. "It's not the type of sport that's going to go away."



SCRAMBLING TWOSOME — Still on top as they speed around the obstacle filled scrambles course at the Alvin Gambonini Ranch in West Marin are members of the Marin Motorcycle Association. The occasion was a noise test conducted by members of an ad hoc committee of Marin supervisors to determine if the cycles create a nuisance on adjacent property where a housing development is planned.

Arraignment Slated In Assault

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — John Turner, 25, of Mill Valley, is to be arraigned in San Francisco Superior Court May 14 on a charge of felonious assault stemming from an uproar at a pretrial hearing for the Soledad Brothers.

Turner was bound over to superior court Friday after a preliminary hearing in municipal court.

Turner and two other men were arrested April 6 after a courtroom brawl in the Hall of Justice in which they battled bailiffs.

The Soledad Brothers, George Jackson, Fleeta Drumgo and John Cluchette, are scheduled to stand trial in August in connection with murder of a Soledad Prison guard in January 1970.

Jackson's younger brother, Jonathan, was killed in the Marin Civic Center shoot-out last August which also took the life of Judge Harold J. Haley.

Woman Treated After Accident

A 26-year-old San Anselmo woman was treated yesterday at Marin General Hospital for possible head injuries sustained when the auto in which she was riding collided with another in San Anselmo.

Officers said Jean B. Hall of 4 Herrera Court was injured when her husband, Norman, was unable to stop for traffic and rammed the rear of another vehicle on Sir Francis Drake Boulevard at Cordone Drive.

School Office Is Ransacked

County Raises $3,800 In Auction Of Surplus

Approximately $3,800 was raised Saturday at a Marin County auction at Northgate Industrial Park in San Rafael.

Eugene R. Fontaine, assistant public administrator, said rough figures indicated $2,100 was paid for about 200 county surplus items, and about $1,700 for 82 probate items from the estates of deceased.

Funds from the surplus sale will go into the county's general fund, Fontaine said, and proceeds of the probate sale go to the estates of the items' owners.

Fontaine said 295 persons signed up to bid in the auction.

Bidding was especially active, he said, on a rocking chair that went for $88; a brass-bound chest that sold for $170, and on a dozen surplus fire alarm boxes which went for figures ranging from $4 to $15.

Probation, Prison In Cocaine Sale

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — Judge Albert C. Wollenberg of U.S. District Court has placed one Marin woman on straight probation and sent another to federal prison in connection with a $250,000 cocaine sale.

Receiving probation was Maureen Booth, 24, of San Anselmo, who had earlier pleaded guilty to conspiracy. Marcia Freet, 27, of Sausalito, who had failed to show up for trial on Feb. 1, turned herself in to federal authorities last week and pleaded guilty to a count of selling cocaine.

Judge Wollenberg ordered her to Terminal Island prison for a 60-day study before he determines the length of her prison term. She is due back in court July 23.

The two women were among seven Marinites arrested last May at the San Francisco Airport and in Sausalito as a result of a long investigation.

The only other person to be sentenced to prison in connection with the case, Sharon Ann Needelman, 26, of San Anselmo, has been sought by authorities since she failed to show up Jan. 18 to serve a year in federal prison.

Question On Your Income Tax? Just Call Your Friendly IRS

About six weeks ago, on a dark rainy evening, I arrived home late after a long day in court with Angela Davis to find:

1. Garbage had been strewn all over the kitchen floor by the dog.

2. My youngest son had left the thermostat set at 90 degrees.

3. I had received a notice from the Internal Revenue Service that my 1969 income tax return was being audited.

After cleaning up the garbage and turning down the heat, I began to try to cope with the IRS.

FIRST OF ALL, the unsigned form letter asked for information on two children whose names were typed on the forms. One was easy — it said "John," and I have a son named John. The other asked for detailed information about a person named "Mark."

I know any number of kids named Mark, but none that I wanted to discuss with the IRS, at least at any length.

The next day, after a not very good night's sleep, I decided against the advice of helpful friends, to call the IRS office in San Francisco and ask just what they wanted.

("Don't talk to them," my income tax man had said ominously, "with them, one thing just leads to another.")

I dialed the number listed in the phone book and after talking with three successive people who suggested I come over there if I had a problem, I finally found a voice that resignedly offered a little help.

"JUST READ ME the numbers and letters on the form you got," she said.

I read them off — a string of letters sort of like those the computer puts on the bottom of checks — the symbols ended with C. Ah-Tye-2001.

"Oh," said the voice, "you want to talk to Miss Ah-Tye."

For a moment I was so confused I thought that she was either putting me on or that people who work for the IRS call each other by code names.

However, a few seconds later, a pleasant voice came on the phone, saying, "This is Miss Ah-Tye. May I help you?"

NOT ONLY DID Miss Ah-Tye seem to be a real person, she made good her promise to call me back later that day.

She solved the "Mark" problem as being a typist's error and reassured me that I didn't have to send her all my cancelled checks for 1969. "Just give your best estimate about food costs," she said cheerfully.

I was so reassured by the pleasant Miss Ah-Tye that I soon spent a Sunday afternoon getting together the figures she wanted and sending them off.

After a month and no word from the IRS, I decided my worries were over until someone told me that the IRS always lets people know about the outcome of the audits.

Well, I thought, I'll just call my friend, Miss Ah-Tye, and ask her about it.

THIS WEEK I again dialed the number listed in the phone book, having lost the special phone number where Miss A-T could be reached. This time it took four attempts to get her office — then to be told firmly, "Miss Ah-Tye is no longer with us."

"Miss Ah-Tye is no longer with you!" I gasped.

I managed to find out that she had been transferred to Oakland and even got the number there.

After three more attempts, I got Miss A-T on the phone, and she seemed, at least vaguely, to remember my "case."

However, she said all her former cases were still in San Francisco, and I should call there.

After telling her that I had tried there and had been told that she was still assigned to my case, she had one final suggestion.

"GO OVER THERE," she said firmly. "If they see you standing at the counter, they can't ignore you. Some clerk will finally find your case."

Instead of that move, which I'm saving as the final one to make when all else fails, I called San Francisco again.

This time a clerk told me that there were "a whole bunch of cases in limbo," caused apparently by transfer not only of Miss Ah-Tye but of several other people.

The clerk couldn't find my case at all that time but made one final suggestion, "If you don't hear from us in six weeks, you really should call again."

Half-Million Runaways: Why Do They Do It?

By LOUIS CASSELS
UPI Senior Editor

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Each year, about 500,000 boys and girls under the age of 17 run away from home.

Why do they do it? Where do they go? How do they fare? What can worried parents do?

Sensible and compassionate answers to these questions are found in a book called "Runaways" by Lillian Ambrosino, published this week by Beacon Press.

MISS AMBROSINO'S extensive research into the growing runaway problem indicates that many different motives may drive a teen-ager to leave home in search of a new life. Some children flee from alcoholic parents. Others leave homes that have been broken and demoralized by divorce or desertion.

"Ironically, many runaways actually love or respect their parents. Departure signifies disappointment: parents do not understand, or they are unrealistically harsh in their rules or expectations, or the runaway fears recrimination for poor school grades."

Some runaways seek to lose themselves in the anonymity of the nearest big city. But the usual pattern is to go farther afield, to another state or another part of the country.

Most of them are ill-equipped to make it on their own. Their average age is 15. They have no job skills, and even if they could find jobs, they would be barred from employment by the laws of most states requiring work permits for minors.

ABOUT HALF of the runaways are girls: they are particularly vulnerable to the machinations of "friendly strangers" who pose as benefactors but actually propose to introduce them to drugs and prostitution.

Fortunately, there are other friendly strangers who respond in kindness to the need of a strayed child. "Among the most moving experiences recalled by reconciled runaways," reports Miss Ambrosino, "is the generous nature of some of the poor. For every predatory adult who stalks the innocent, there are countless others who will unhesitatingly offer a complete stranger room, food, money. People who have little sometimes share it most; they can easily empathize with misery."

More and more urban churches are learning that the provision of food, shelter and friendly counsel to runaway kids is a form of Christian service they are emiently equipped to undertake. There also are in most major cities branches of the Travelers Aid society. "Probably no single agency has done as much" for runaway children as this voluntary service organization, Miss Ambrosino says.

SOME CITES now have "half-way houses," such as Huckleberry's in San Francisco or Project Place in Boston, where young people can find a temporary home while they work out their decisions on what to do now.

More informal and perhaps even more effective is the growing network of "hotlines" —such as The Switchboard in Washington or HELP in Philadelphia —which are staffed by young people. A runaway can call the hotline number at any hour of day or night, and a sympathetic voice will advise him where he can find a bite to eat and a safe place to "crash" (sleep overnight).

What can worried parents do? They can file a "missing child" report with the police, who are already swamped with such reports. They can go in person to search for their child in the known runaway centers of nearby cities, but this is a difficult, expensive and often frustrating course.

ON THE WHOLE, she concludes, the most pracitical thing parents can do is simply wait and hope. As they sweat out the agony of waiting, they may take some comfort from the knowledge that "most first-time runaways do come back home within a week." They usually will have learned something worthwhile from their experience. And hopefully, their parents may also have learned something — about the need to listen and care.

Did The Old Man Really Learn Anything?

Mark Twain once wrote: "When I way a boy of 14, my father was so ignorant I could hardly stand to have the old man around. But when I got to be 21, I was astonished at how much the old man had learned in seven years."

Today, many youths of 21 still have a low opinion of "the old man". There is a popular saying among them, "Don't trust anyone over 30."

IS TODAY'S "GENERATION gap" merely the gap that always has existed between each younger generation and its elders? Or is it something much more?

Are the concerns of our juniors really very different from the concerns of the "over 30s"? Or are they merely expressed differently?

Just what "Establishment" is it against which youth rebels so fervently and sometimes violently? Are not the rebelling youths themselves members of an establishment that is at least in part of their own creation?

THESE ARE QUESTIONS which many answers are offered. But none of the answers seems satisfactory. "Communication" has become a catch word; yet there seems to be great difficulty in young communicating with old, and vice versa. "Dialogues" end up as shouting matches — or as monologues with a Jerry Rubin or a Spiro Agnew "laying it on the line" and everyone else expected to remain silent.

A common complaint of young people is that they are repressed. A common complaint among their elders is that this generation of youth has been coddled by over-permissive parents. Both can't be right. Is either of them?

Spokesmen for youth (or at least, those who claim to be spokesmen for youth) claim "the system" doesn't work. Some of them want to destroy the system. Their elders, some of whom are trying hard to make the system work (and many of whom, unfortunately, seem to feel it will work automatically and they can just have a free ride) challenge youth to say what system it would evolve to replace what we now have.

In every generation, the enthusiasm and idealism of youth serves as a goad for elders whose knowledge and experience is inclined to become corroded by cynicism. But today, the generations appear too much divided for the yeast of youth to provide ferment without explosion.

IT IS TO PROBE into where youth and what it calls the "Establishment" differ, into what youth really wants and what its elders want for it, that the Independent-Journal today begins a "Rap Session" series, to continue for four weeks.

We seek letters from those of all ages, voicing their concerns and their ideas on what divides younger from older and what brings them together.

Poppies And Lupine

The delicate orange blossoms with the fine fern-like foliage are blooming in the knee-high grass of the next-door orchard. The Spanish called them cups of gold. They are a golden flower for the Golden State. These California poppies are longer blooming than most wildflowers and can be found in flower in some parts of Marin from March through May.

Now they are being joined by the shorter-lived stalks of purple lupine. Together they make a kind of wildflower royalty — the purple and gold — to grace our green Marin hills and dales each spring.

GOLDEN GATE VIEW

One-Man Conservation Lobby In Behalf Of Lame Ducks

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

One member of the Marin County Board of Supervisors has been conducting a solitary campaign in Sacramento against legislation that would cut short the political life of lame duck supervisors.

Supervisor Louis H. Baar, however, never has consulted his four fellow board members publicly on their position on the legislation. One reason may be that they would disagree with him.

A supervisor has the same right as any citizen to lobby in Sacramento. But we question his propriety in lobbying against a measure that could affect directly all other members of his board.

It is possible, of course, that Baar expects lame duckhood to be his personal problem.

THE LEGISLATION was introduced initially by Assemblyman William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael, but he dropped it, reportedly after strong appeals from Baar. The same measure, however, quickly resurfaced with a new author, Assemblyman John T. Knox, D-Richmond.

It would put newly elected supervisors in office 29 days after being elected. A supervisor winning a June primary thus would take his seat by early July.

A CONSTITUTIONAL amendment to approve the law would be on the ballot in June, 1972, thus would apply to supervisorial candidates in that primary election if it passed.

Seating 29 days after election was aimed at preventing lame ducks from passing ordinances after their defeat, as happened with several controversial land uses last year in Sacramento County. Ordinances generally take 30 days to become effective, so a newly elected supervisor could vote to reverse approval of any ordinance which he opposed.

Former Marin Supervisor Ernest N. Kettenhofen, incidentally, called for such legislation when he lost in the June, 1968, primary to Peter R. Arrigoni Jr.

The full board could resolve the issue by taking a public stand on the legislation. It shouldn't take all that much political courage to vote to support the legislation.

Opposing it, after all, would appear to be an admission of less than overwhelming confidence that the voters want you enough to keep you in office.

REP. WILLIAM S. Mailliard, R-Sixth District, was criticized here recently for supporting the supersonic transport. His staff promptly sent us a protest — and mailed it to San Rafael from San Francisco with an airmail stamp.

Maybe they thought it was coming by SST?

A TINY TRIUMPH for candor was uttered this month by former County Supervisor Thomas T. Storer: "It has been my considered opinion that most people holding public office are extremely limited and usually totally lacking in imagination."

Making the comment to the Independent-Journal after the Larkspur City Council approved a creekside development he was protesting, Storer said, "Nothing happened here tonight to change that opinion."

MAN BITES DOG

"How can we get out of Vietnam when we can't even get out of our cities?"

"Well, I sure wish WE had a bunch of people back home demanding a complete withdrawal."

Mental Health Center Assisted Program

I appreciate the coverage your newspaper gave to "A Night at Generation Gap" held at Adaline E. Kent School, March 17 and 24. However, I would like to add further information and acknowledge the important contribution by personnel from the Community Mental Health Center.

The program was organized by a committee of Kentfield parents under the chairmanship of Mrs. Nancy Osborn. The committee sought and received consultant help from Mrs. Connie Lashbrook, mental health educator at the Community Mental Health Center. Mrs. Lashbrook devoted many hours in training students and parents for their role as facilitators in group discussions . . .

It was the enthusuasm of all participants which helped to make the evenings beneficial and I am grateful for the knowledge that such agencies and services as the Community Mental Health Center are available in Marin County.

Judicial Tyranny Disaster For Children

Yesterday's April 20 supreme court decision on school busing will be a major disaster for our children. Judicial tyranny is as bad as executive tyranny. The writers of our constitution were students of history and were aware of executive tyranny - chiefly of kings and emperors. Judicial tyranny had not yet appeared. The founding fathers gave us three coequal branches of the government to protect us against executive tyranny. Judicial tyranny did not occur to them, and they provided us no defense against it.

Toliver Charges Called Incongruous

I can't help seriously questioning the incongruous charges of "incompetence" and "disruptive behavior" brought against special assistant James T. Toliver Jr. by Supt. Lawrence A. Lindberg of the Sausalito School District.

I find them inconsistent with our experience and observation during the years our son attended Martin Luther King and I worked there regularly as a library volunteer. We came to trust and depend on Mr. Toliver as a man of thorough competence and integrity.

When Mr. Toliver first came to the school he was one of the counselors in Guidance, where it was the enlightened policy to send children whose behavior was disrupting the class. His handling of problems showed excellent training and skill. . .

During the next two years at Martin Luther King most of the responsibility for handling disciplinary problems and explosive situations devolved on Mr. Toliver and he continued to handle them basically in this manner which proved effective regardless of the current mechanics for handling discipline problems, which changed each year under different administrators, and at the same time he seemed to be able to work in harmony with the different regimes. . .

I am convinced that if Mr. Toliver's performance were evaluated by professionals qualified by similar training and experience to judge it, it would be found that his work meets high professional standards, and that his behavior, rather than disruptive, is consistent with the highest professional ethical standards. . .

Track Team Member Supports Principal

I believe Mr. (Donald) Kreps made the right move in the recent track controversy at Redwood High School. I also believe Steve Levintow had every right to ask him for help.

This particular episode was brought upon by stubbornness on both sides, the failing to reach a compromise, and was climaxed by Coach (Stanley) Tobiason's quitting.

Mr. Kreps stepped into the controversy when Coach Tobiason wouldn't let Levintow on the team. Coach Tobiason had no reason other than his own personal dislike for Levintow to keep him off the team. Now don't get me wrong, Levintow and other members of past Redwood teams have given Coach Tobiason much trouble in the past, much of it completely uncalled for and unfair. However Coach Tobiason invented ways to keep Levintow off the team. One reason was his hair length. Steve's hair was shorter than members of our team. Another reason for banning him from the team was because he hadn't practiced with the team. Coach Tobiason had forbade him from practicing on the track. Steve did show up for practice but he was turned away.

I must disagree with Joe Clark when he says the team morale was hurt when our coaches quit. Now the team has more responsibility and everyone is pulling together to help out our new coaches, Mr. Russ Hill and Mr. Don Shaver. Mr. Hill has made a great effort to help our team. Mr. Hill really cares about all of us and tries to help us all.

Believe me, the Redwood track team will carry on and you will hear great things from us and our new coaches.

APRIL 26, 1961

The Marin County Board of Supervisors by 3-2 vote set a June 27 special election on approval of federal construction of up to 300 low-rent homes and of a $1 million county hospital bond issue. Supervisors Walter R. Castro and William A. Gnoss dissented.

Too Much Spying On Americans, But Not All Surveillance Wrong

WASHINGTON — There has been too much blunderbuss spying going on in the United States. It is unhealthy and unnecessary.

It is, therefore, eminently welcome that Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C., a great civil libertarian, is preparing legislation to bring surveillance activities under control.

Such a bill will certainly get congressional approval, too — and that's good. At the same time it seems to me that the indiscriminate attacks on needed surveillance ought to be put into perspective. Here's what I mean:

1 — MOST OF THE CRITICS most of the time lump all public surveillance in one package and attack it all. They condemn the FBI for having agents present at Earth Day rallies and antiwar mass meetings but overlook the fact that in light of past violence the FBI is legitimately concerned to keep an eye on the violent-prone.

This surveillance is not a watch against peaceful protest but a watch on those who are likely to try to turn peaceable assemblies into a free-for-all.

2 — The FBI should not be immune from criticism, but it is intolerable that it should be made the target of meat-ax attacks without proof. This is a Hitler tactic. Assert the unproved and keep on repeating it until it is believed.

3 — And now Democrats are making the FBI a political football. They kick it every morning and twice and night and nearly all the would-be Democratic presidential nominees are chorusing the same things.

IT IS REVEALING to note how eagerly many liberals hop on President Nixon, Attorney General Mitchell, J. Edgar Hoover and others for lack of credibility. But then these liberals become chastened beyond words when those who make these attacks fail to provide proof.

The most vivid example is the accusation House Democratic Leader Hale Boggs, D-La., made April 15 when he accused the FBI of "tapping the telephones of members of this body and of members of the Senate."

That was 20 days ago. No evidence to prove the accusation.

IT HAS BEEN demonstrated that the Justice Department obtained from the telephone company records of long-distance calls made from the offices of Boggs and former Speaker John McCormack in connection with criminal investigations of two of McCormack's aides.

It has been demonstrated that an FBI informant made a secret tape-recording of his interview with Rep. John Dowdy, D-Tex., in connection with alleged bribery for which Rep. Dowdy is now under indictment.

As the Washington Post fairly points out, these incidents "do not support Boggs' April 5 accusations and the FBI can hardly be condemned for investigating allegedly illegal acts even when they touch congressmen."

NO CONGRESSMAN or senator has come forward to support Rep. Boggs's accusations. Senator Ervin says he has yet to find any evidence of illegal actions by the FBI and Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield, D-Mont., says the same thing.

Despite unfair criticism of legitimate surveillance, Senator Ervin makes a good case that it has gone too far. Congress is rightly planning to lay down careful guidelines to control such surveillance and will almost certainly prohibit civilian spying by the military.

BY NO MEANS NEUTRAL

By ERNEST B. FURGURSON

THURMONT, Md.— Camp David lies quiet on weekdays behind ranks of "no trespassing" signs, two strands of steel wire, two tall chain-link fences with barbed wire on top and a cleared lane between, floodlights with interlocking coverage, and guardhouses positioned for maximum field of view. To the passer-by driving through Catoctin Mountain National Park, it looks more like a concentration camp than a presidential retreat.

But to the 1,200 District of Columbia fifth-graders who will have spent a week in the park before school adjourns for the summer, Camp David may be the least impressive thing on the mountain. Some of them never heard of it.

They are public school children from the blackest big city in America. About 90 per cent of them are black, and many are poor. Many have never been outside their home neighborhoods before. Almost none ever has spent a night away from home. Home, for most, is the far-reaching ghetto of Washington, which is not the same city of green spaces, monuments and flowering trees that constitutes picture-book Washington.

UNDER THOSE circumstances, what is so impressive about seeing a barbed-wire barrier, compared to smelling your first pine tree? As one 10-yearold described the sensation of sitting in a grove beside Hunting Creek, "It smelled just like bathroom cleaner."

That is the kind of particularly urban insight heard by schoolteachers and park rangers every day as they lead the children through their first experience in a world most of us take for granted, one only 75 miles from Washington, yet as foreign as Urdu to a ghetto fifth-grader.

The program ostensibly is five days of environmental education. The park service and the Washington School Board co-operate on it. It is the first time the park service has taken an active part in teaching groups of overnight visitors to the national parks, rather than merely playing landlord for them. Frank Mentzer, the park superintendent and an eager advocate of the program, sees it as a pilot project that could lead the nationwide service further into dealing with people as much as with trees, with wide-eyed city children as much as with experienced family campers.

IN SEVERAL WAYS, the program takes up where the late Job Corps left off when it was abolished by Mr. Nixon. The schoolchildren live in a former Job Corps camp at Round Meadow. The park service official in direct charge is Oliver Gillespie, who was a Job Corps teacher before he switched titles. Most of those in class are from the same background as the Job Corps enrollees were, only younger.

On the bookshelf in Gillespie's office, mixed in with National Wildlife magazines and the other conservation publications you would expect, are books on SNCC, on black progress since slavery and other subjects more likely for the sociologist than the ranger.

And while the program teaches subjects entitled, "Man and His Environment," "Stream Ecology," "Animal Habitats" and "Geology," teachers and rangers alike agree that the main thing the students take back to the city is less specific environmental knowledge than a new way of looking at themselves and what is around them.

BEFORE THE FIRST group arrived, Mentzer was told, "My God, those inner-city kids are going to tear the place apart." But the only damage was a broken window pane, result of an honest foul tip.

The former professional football guard who supervises the program from the city side is amazed that there is almost no disciplinary problem among a group of children who would never let a day pass without a series of fights in their regular schools. He attributes it to the newness of it all, the fact that nobody is bored. Some of the children are experiencing the luxury of sleeping in a bed alone for the first time, for example.

There are challengers to such a program, who maintain it is unfair to expose poor children to a world beyond their attainment, thus inviting resentment and later trouble. To a man, the staff here takes the opposite view: that teaching a child that there is more out there than asphalt and pollution will encourage him to work harder toward a place in that cleaner, calmer world.

THE KIDS from the Charles Young School, which sits alongside the foul Anacostia River in Washington, know now that up in Maryland where the Anacostia begins, it is just as clean and sweet as Hunting Creek.

And some know now what a student pointed out to his classmates as he shushed them along a trail climbing near the barbed-wire of Camp David: "If you go too fast, you miss a lot of things. It's just like it is in life."

It is not a thought very likely to occur to the typical fifth-grader shut up in the spring in a school in the inner city.

COUNTRY PARSON

I-J REPORTER'S NOTEBOOK

By MARY LEYDECKER

Question On Your Income Tax? Just Call Your Friendly IRS

About six weeks ago, on a dark rainy evening, I arrived home late after a long day in court with Angela Davis to find:

1. Garbage had been strewn all over the kitchen floor by the dog.

2. My youngest son had left the thermostat set at 90 degrees.

3. I had received a notice from the Internal Revenue Service that my 1969 income tax return was being audited.

After cleaning up the garbage and turning down the heat, I began to try to cope with the IRS.

FIRST OF ALL, the unsigned form letter asked for information on two children whose names were typed on the forms. One was easy — it said "John," and I have a son named John. The other asked for detailed information about a person named "Mark."

I know any number of kids named Mark, but none that I wanted to discuss with the IRS, at least at any length.

The next day, after a not very good night's sleep, I decided against the advice of helpful friends, to call the IRS office in San Francisco and ask just what they wanted.

("Don't talk to them," my income tax man had said ominously, "with them, one thing just leads to another.")

I dialed the number listed in the phone book and after talking with three successive people who suggested I come over there if I had a problem, I finally found a voice that resignedly offered a little help.

"JUST READ ME the numbers and letters on the form you got," she said.

I read them off — a string of letters sort of like those the computer puts on the bottom of checks — the symbols ended with C. Ah-Tye-2001.

"Oh," said the voice, "you want to talk to Miss Ah-Tye."

For a moment I was so confused I thought that she was either putting me on or that people who work for the IRS call each other by code names.

However, a few seconds later, a pleasant voice came on the phone, saying, "This is Miss Ah-Tye. May I help you?"

NOT ONLY DID Miss Ah-Tye seem to be a real person, she made good her promise to call me back later that day.

She solved the "Mark" problem as being a typist's error and reassured me that I didn't have to send her all my cancelled checks for 1969. "Just give your best estimate about food costs," she said cheerfully.

I was so reassured by the pleasant Miss Ah-Tye that I soon spent a Sunday afternoon getting together the figures she wanted and sending them off.

After a month and no word from the IRS, I decided my worries were over until someone told me that the IRS always lets people know about the outcome of the audits.

Well, I thought, I'll just call my friend, Miss Ah-Tye, and ask her about it.

THIS WEEK I again dialed the number listed in the phone book, having lost the special phone number where Miss A-T could be reached. This time it took four attempts to get her office — then to be told firmly, "Miss Ah-Tye is no longer with us."

"Miss Ah-Tye is no longer with you!" I gasped.

I managed to find out that she had been transferred to Oakland and even got the number there.

After three more attempts, I got Miss A-T on the phone, and she seemed, at least vaguely, to remember my "case."

However, she said all her former cases were still in San Francisco, and I should call there.

After telling her that I had tried there and had been told that she was still assigned to my case, she had one final suggestion.

"GO OVER THERE," she said firmly. "If they see you standing at the counter, they can't ignore you. Some clerk will finally find your case."

Instead of that move, which I'm saving as the final one to make when all else fails, I called San Francisco again.

This time a clerk told me that there were "a whole bunch of cases in limbo," caused apparently by transfer not only of Miss Ah-Tye but of several other people.

The clerk couldn't find my case at all that time but made one final suggestion, "If you don't hear from us in six weeks, you really should call again."

Half-Million Runaways: Why Do They Do It?

By LOUIS CASSELS
UPI Senior Editor

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Each year, about 500,000 boys and girls under the age of 17 run away from home.

Why do they do it? Where do they go? How do they fare? What can worried parents do?

Sensible and compassionate answers to these questions are found in a book called "Runaways" by Lillian Ambrosino, published this week by Beacon Press.

MISS AMBROSINO'S extensive research into the growing runaway problem indicates that many different motives may drive a teen-ager to leave home in search of a new life. Some children flee from alcoholic parents. Others leave homes that have been broken and demoralized by divorce or desertion.

"Ironically, many runaways actually love or respect their parents. Departure signifies disappointment: parents do not understand, or they are unrealistically harsh in their rules or expectations, or the runaway fears recrimination for poor school grades."

Some runaways seek to lose themselves in the anonymity of the nearest big city. But the usual pattern is to go farther afield, to another state or another part of the country.

Most of them are ill-equipped to make it on their own. Their average age is 15. They have no job skills, and even if they could find jobs, they would be barred from employment by the laws of most states requiring work permits for minors.

ABOUT HALF of the runaways are girls: they are particularly vulnerable to the machinations of "friendly strangers" who pose as benefactors but actually propose to introduce them to drugs and prostitution.

Fortunately, there are other friendly strangers who respond in kindness to the need of a strayed child. "Among the most moving experiences recalled by reconciled runaways," reports Miss Ambrosino, "is the generous nature of some of the poor. For every predatory adult who stalks the innocent, there are countless others who will unhesitatingly offer a complete stranger room, food, money. People who have little sometimes share it most; they can easily empathize with misery."

More and more urban churches are learning that the provision of food, shelter and friendly counsel to runaway kids is a form of Christian service they are eminently equipped to undertake. There also are in most major cities branches of the Travelers Aid society. "Probably no single agency has done as much" for runaway children as this voluntary service organization, Miss Ambrosino says.

SOME CITES now have "half-way houses," such as Huckleberry's in San Francisco or Project Place in Boston, where young people can find a temporary home while they work out their decisions on what to do now.

More informal and perhaps even more effective is the growing network of "hotlines" —such as The Switchboard in Washington or HELP in Philadelphia —which are staffed by young people. A runaway can call the hotline number at any hour of day or night, and a sympathetic voice will advise him where he can find a bite to eat and a safe place to "crash" (sleep overnight).

What can worried parents do? They can file a "missing child" report with the police, who are already swamped with such reports. They can go in person to search for their child in the known runaway centers of nearby cities, but this is a difficult, expensive and often frustrating course.

ON THE WHOLE, she concludes, the most practical thing parents can do is simply wait and hope. As they sweat out the agony of waiting, they may take some comfort from the knowledge that "most first-time runaways do come back home within a week." They usually will have learned something worthwhile from their experience. And hopefully, their parents may also have learned something — about the need to listen and care.

Council, Library Board To Meet

Commencement Speaker Told

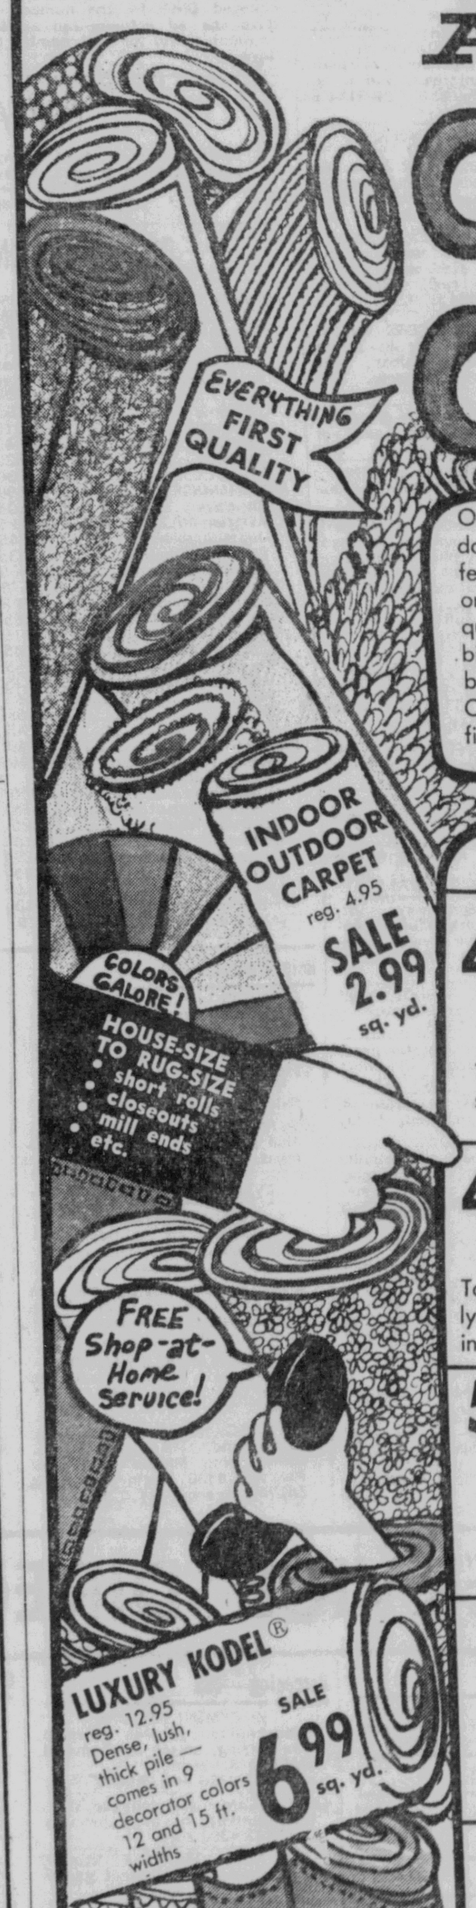
Abbey CARPET CLEARANCE



Once in a while we go through our entire inventory and mark down all the carpets that have been on our floor for more than a few months. If you're on the look-out for a great carpet buy, call or come in during this one-week clearance sale. These are all first quality. Some are roll remainders left from larger jobs. Some are big enough for a whole house. Others are just right for a small bedroom or hall. We only had room to list a few of them here. Come see them all. But hurry. Naturally, everything will sell on a first-come basis. Storewide Savings — This Week Only!

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Many Older Persons Ignore Signs Of Ailments Due To Their Age

Many oldsters regard any distress as their penalty for living so long. They get into trouble when a new sickness is confused with being old. Most physicians have seen 80-year-old men and women wait until an acute appendix has ruptured before calling for help. Some are so accustomed to chronic distress that they do not feel the pain or report to the doctor. Now and then oldsters neglect the pain of a recent heart attack. A 77-year-old woman did this even though 10 years earlier, her husband, a son and one brother had died of similar symptoms. She considered the chest pain to be "bad indigestion." Furthermore, she thought such distress was to be expected at her age.

BRONCHOPNEUMONIA can incapacitate a younger person but may be mild in the elderly. The senior citizen may consider it no worse than a "bad cold." Some continue with their chores until completely exhausted.

With age it is natural to develop more ailments but illnesses are not necessarily caused by advancing years. The older person who thinks he is supposed to be sick is missing the boat. Aches and pains are to be expected but being over 65 does not immunize a person against infections, liver trouble, appendicitis, or a kidney infection.

AS THE YEARS pass, many organs may deteriorate but the structures have enough reserve to function adequately. But let us assume that the individual develops a bladder infection. Not only is his resistance lowered but the disorder places an extra burden on his slightly handicapped heart and circulation.

Now he develops cardiac symptoms or perhaps the mind becomes a bit foggy because the brain is not receiving enough blood. Unless the chain of events is recognized, the untreated bladder infection keeps the heart and brain below par. This interrelationship between the organs is important because a disturbance of one structure upsets the balance and efficiency of the others.

DEGREES OF FEVER

F. M. writes: Is a fever of 103 more serious in an adult than in a child?

REPLY

Children run higher temperatures than do adults with comparable infections. In this respect, a temperature of 103 is more serious in grownups. But the outlook depends upon the cause of the fever. A mann or woman with measles may be twice as sick as a child, even with the same degree of fever.

MATERNAL NURSING

Mrs. F. G. writes: Are there any special advantages to breast feeding?

REPLY

Yes, mainly because mother's milk is what nature intended for her child. Examples of the advantages are that breast feeding is safer and more convenient; the food provided is nutritionally superior, and the method is of psychological value to the baby and the mother.

HYPNOSIS NOT FOR ALL

H. P. writes: You once said that women who have had a nervous breakdown should not be hypnotized. Any reason for your comment?

REPLY

Why take a chance on opening old emotional wounds? On the other hand, psychiatrists have found hypnosis useful in certain types of mental illness.

Nhan Dan Sees 'Great Storm' Against Nixon

TOKYO (UPI)—North Vietnam said today this weekend's antiwar demonstrations show "a great storm of the American peoples' fury is overwhelming the bellicose clique of Nixon."

The official Hanoi newspaper Nhan Dan said in an editorial broadcast by the North Vietnamese radio that the "peace now" shouts were thrown "in the face of the cruel chieftains of the White House and the Pentagon by tens of thousands of Americans."

It said ranks of the antiwar demonstrators were swelled by "congressmen and politicians who have realized that the Nixon clique's blind war policy is driving the capitalist United States close to disaster."

Good Prospects For 1971 Grads

PITTSBURGH (UPI) —Elliot L. Richardson, secretary of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW), said Sunday this year's graduating college students will have a better chance of landing a job.

"I don't anticipate many graduates to be jobless, except by choice," Richardson told newsmen prior to receiving an honorary doctor of laws degree at commencement exercises at the University of Pittsburgh.

McElroy said employment opportunities are favorable for engineering and science graduates but not for aerospace engineers.

Helen Hayes Well

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Helen Hayes, 70, was reported "resting well" at Providence Hospital today where she was admitted over the weekend for treatment of a respiratory infection.

Bruce's Successor On Board's Agenda

A replacement for County Administrator Alan Bruce, who resigned under pressure last week, will be discussed by the Marin County Board of Supervisors tomorrow.

When the agenda was complete Friday, Chairman Louis H. Baar was out of town, and Vice Chairman Peter R. Arrigoni Jr. reserved time on the agenda for a closed meeting at 11:30 a.m. to discuss the appointment of a county administrator.

Arrigoni said the closed meeting is not definite. He said he reserved the time in case the board wants to consider a successor to Bruce, who will leave July 1.

Other items on the supervisors' agenda include:

FLOOD ZONE — Supervisor Michael Wornum will ask that the Richardson Bay Flood Control Zone advisory board be increased from five to seven members.

APPOINTMENTS — Appointments or reappointments will be made to the Building Code Board of Appeals, Association of Bay Area Governments, Law Library board of trustees, and Richardson Bay Flood Control Zone Advisory Board.

PERSONNEL COMMISSION — Personnel Director Maren Rinne will ask that personnel commission members not be limited to $50 per month per diem payments because they are forced to meet as many as five or six times per month.

CAPITAL PROGRAM — A public hearing is set for 11 a.m. to discuss the county administrator's recommendation for roads and building construction for the next six years.

MOTORCYCLE — At 1:45 p.m., the supervisors will get results of a field test of motorcycle trail riding on the Anita Gambonini Ranch on Marshall-Petaluma Road. Marin Motorcycle Association wants permission for riding on the ranch, but adjacent landowners object to the noise and traffic.

TOMALES BAY RANCH — Bruce Wendell Beebe's request for rezoning of his Tomales Bay Ranch a half mile south of Blake's Landing to permit eight residences.

AIRPORT OVERLAY — Public Works Director Donald R. Frost will report that the runway overlay at Gnoss Field will cost $5,458 more than the $13,500 budgeted for 1970-71. He said the increase is due to new federal laws.

Marin Ballet Scholarship Trials Set

Auditions for a Marin Music Chest ballet scholarship will be held June 5 in Angelico Hall at Dominican College of San Rafael, according to Mrs. Samuel Archibald, Music Chest President.

Marin ballet students between the ages of 14 and 19 who have studied a minimum of four years are eligible to audition.

Vocal and instrumental auditions will be held sometime in August, Mrs. Archibald said.

Requests for audition blanks are available by writing Marin Music Chest, Box 468, Ross.

Five per cent of the money taken in during the current summer concert subscriptions drive goes into the scholarship fund, according to Mrs. Archibald. The balance is used for artists' fees.

The 1971 concert series opens June 20 in Forest Meadows, San Rafael

Free Rides For Poor Planned

The Economic Opportunity Council will provide free transportation one day a week for low income families in Southern Marin cities beginning May 7, Doretha Mitchell, director of community organization, announced today.

The EOC will provide five volunteers every Thursday and will coordinate passenger scheduling. The Red Cross will provide a car for this use.

The service, based at the EOC office at 630 Drake Avenue, Marin City, is available for persons needing transportation to "just about anywhere," Mrs. Mitchell said.

Council Post To Be Filled In Novato

The Novato City Council is scheduled to appoint a councilman Tuesday night to fill the seat vacated by Douglas M. Merrill, an appointment which has been shrouded in mystery.

Councilmen have refused to disclose the identity of the nine candidates, but five have become known.

If the council fails to select someone to succeed Merrill by Mary 13, there will be an election. The new councilman will complete Merrill's term, which expires in April, 1972.

The scheduled hearing on Sono-Marin Builder's appeal of planning commission denial of a tentative map for an 81-lot subdivision will be postponed until May 4, City Mgr. Charles A. Brown said.

Gambling Research Turns Up Proof Some Are 'Born Losers'

DAVIS, Calif. (UPI)—The longshot gambler with a steady record of losing can be the victim of a personality quirk and not just bad luck, according to a University of California researcher in psychology.

Robert P. Crandall said a study showed that a person with low self-esteem generally assumes "great risks with the greater consequent possibility of failure."

Crandall, a senior at he UC Davis campus, conducted the study under the supervision of Dr. Stanley Coopersmith, a professor of psychology, with a grant from the President's Undergraduate Fellowship Program.

"Persons with high self-esteem take less risks that more frequently pay off in tangible success," Coopersmith said in commenting on Crandall's survey.

The professor said that Crandall's findings suggested a "useful, practical method of affecting self-esteem."

Coopersmith said, "It may be possible to raise a person's regard for himself and thus change his overall personality for the better because his (Crandall's) experimental results show that one's self-esteem is continually affected by a process based on consistent successes or failure in the 'experimental field' of daily life."

To get a person to think better of himself, the psychologist said, a therapist would only have to "structure his experience so that he is taking risks at a level that will pay off consistently.

"Although early development and unconscious factors have a bearing on our later level of self-esteem, continuing environmental influences can affect and possibly change our view of ourselves."

To clarify the results of his study, Crandall said he was not trying to imply that persons with high self-esteem never take chances or "rise to impossible challenges."

Instead, he said, he believes that "perhaps a background of consistent success, characteristic of the person with high self-esteem who makes few risks resulting in failure, makes unusual risks subjectively possible.

"In other words, high-esteem people may try occasional longshots and can afford to fail at them while low-esteem people aren't able to cope constructively with longshots though they may take more of them."

To Be Honored

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Many Older Persons Ignore Signs Of Ailments Due To Their Age

Many oldsters regard any distress as their penalty for living so long. They get into trouble when a new sickness is confused with being old. Most physicians have seen 80-year-old men and women wait until an acute appendix has ruptured before calling for help. Some are so accustomed to chronic distress that they do not feel the pain or report to the doctor. Now and then oldsters neglect the pain of a recent heart attack. A 77-year-old woman did this even though 10 years earlier, her husband, a son and one brother had died of similar symptoms. She considered the chest pain to be "bad indigestion." Furthermore, she thought such distress was to be expected at her age.

BRONCHOPNEUMONIA can incapacitate a younger person but may be mild in the elderly. The senior citizen may consider it no worse than a "bad cold." Some continue with their chores until completely exhausted.

With age it is natural to develop more ailments but illnesses are not necessarily caused by advancing years. The older person who thinks he is supposed to be sick is missing the boat. Aches and pains are to be expected but being over 65 does not immunize a person against infections, liver trouble, appendicitis, or a kidney infection.

AS THE YEARS pass, many organs may deteriorate but the structures have enough reserve to function adequately. But let us assume that the individual develops a bladder infection. Not only is his resistance lowered but the disorder places an extra burden on his slightly handicapped heart and circulation.

Now he develops cardiac symptoms or perhaps the mind becomes a bit foggy because the brain is not receiving enough blood. Unless the chain of events is recognized, the untreated bladder infection keeps the heart and brain below par. This interrelationship between the organs is important because a disturbance of one structure upsets the balance and efficiency of the others.

DEGREES OF FEVER

F. M. writes: Is a fever of 103 more serious in an adult than in a child?

REPLY

Children run higher temperatures than do adults with comparable infections. In this respect, a temperature of 103 is more serious in grownups. But the outlook depends upon the cause of the fever. A mann or woman with measles may be twice as sick as a child, even with the same degree of fever.

MATERNAL NURSING

Mrs. F. G. writes: Are there any special advantages to breast feeding?

REPLY

Yes, mainly because mother's milk is what nature intended for her child. Examples of the advantages are that breast feeding is safer and more convenient; the food provided is nutritionally superior, and the method is of psychological value to the baby and the mother.

HYPNOSIS NOT FOR ALL

H. P. writes: You once said that women who have had a nervous breakdown should not be hypnotized. Any reason for your comment?

REPLY

Why take a chance on opening old emotional wounds? On the other hand, psychiatrists have found hypnosis useful in certain types of mental illness.

Nhan Dan Sees 'Great Storm' Against Nixon

TOKYO (UPI)—North Vietnam said today this weekend's antiwar demonstrations show "a great storm of the American peoples' fury is overwhelming the bellicose clique of Nixon."

The official Hanoi newspaper Nhan Dan said in an editorial broadcast by the North Vietnamese radio that the "peace now" shouts were thrown "in the face of the cruel chieftains of the White House and the Pentagon by tens of thousands of Americans."

It said ranks of the antiwar demonstrators were swelled by "congressmen and politicians who have realized that the Nixon clique's blind war policy is driving the capitalist United States close to disaster."

Good Prospects For 1971 Grads

PITTSBURGH (UPI) —Elliot L. Richardson, secretary of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW), said Sunday this year's graduating college students will have a better chance of landing a job.

"I don't anticipate many graduates to be jobless, except by choice," Richardson told newsmen prior to receiving an honorary doctor of laws degree at commencement exercises at the University of Pittsburgh.

McElroy said employment opportunities are favorable for engineering and science graduates but not for aerospace engineers.

Helen Hayes Well

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Helen Hayes, 70, was reported "resting well" at Providence Hospital today where she was admitted over the weekend for treatment of a respiratory infection.

DRAMA REVIEW

Different Points Of View On Play

By KAY KSANDA

When two theater groups in Marin County produce the same play at the same time, they automatically set up a contest of competence and talents. As with ladies in identical ballgowns, one is apt to notice which has the better figure, and who has the greater style.

Within one week of each other, the Ross Valley Players of the Marin Art and Garden Center, and the Actors Playhouse of Marin, at Congregation Rodef Sholom in San Rafael, have presented "Plaza Suite." The Actors Playhouse version (reviewed last week) runs Saturday and Sunday nights through May 8th. Productions in Ross are Friday and Saturday nights at 8:30 p.m. through May 22. With such scheduling everyone, and particularly the casts, can see both interpretations of this wildly funny, and widely known Neil Simon comedy.

There are striking differences, and few similarities in the two productions.

"Plaza Suite," is three comedies, three different stories in the common setting of Suite 719 at the Savoy-Plaza in New York. All have "marriage" as an object of kindly ridicule, with dialogue and situation staying witty, brittle, and in the Ross version, sometimes not so light and gay.

In the first story, in which Karen Nash attempts to resurrect her 23-year-old failing marriage by returning to the honeymoon suite with her abstracted husband, the situation in Ross is no longer funny. After five minutes of listening to Mrs. Nash's whiny monotone, one wonders if Mr. Nash will show up at all. The once acid and clever remarks fade into just another soap opera.

In the second story, Hollywood producer Jesse Kiplinger (Robert Salvas) has invited his old high school sweetheart, Muriel Tate (Betty Sawyer), up to his hotel suite for an "old acquaintance" chat. He has seduction in mind, but she wants the inside news on the jet set. There are few nuances. The proposition is pretty clear, and although both of the personalities have their pretensions, they play an almost jaded game... an interesting interpretation.

The third story has Mr. and Mrs. Hubley in a hilarious farce trying to extricate their reluctant daughter, in her bridal finery, from her barricade in the hotel bathroom. Ernest Widlund and Virginia O'Brien as Mr. and Mrs. Hubley use every line, every situation to drop the audience in the aisle. They do a beautiful job! This act is the best of the play, with memorable lines and looks.

Obviously director Bill Derveniotes went for social comment more than laughs in his first two acts. Much of the stilleto witticism was lost in the first act by turning Mrs. Nash into a complete frump. Every woman in the audience was against her. No woman that fat, wearing sausage curls and a pant suit, should expect to keep her husband. More than a second honeymoon, she needed shaping up.

In act two, the characters were more selfish than evolved. However, this again is another way to see it.

The last act was absolutely marvelous! Ernest Widlund has the harrassed father at perfect pitch.

The set in both productions is about the same...you've seen one hotel room, you've seen 'em all.

"PLAZA SUITE" — A comedy in three acts by Neil Simon; presented by the Ross Valley Players and directed by Bill Derveniotes and assisted by Mona Horwitz. Set by Mario Gianetti, with costumes by Virginia O'Brien. The Cast: Act 1: Bell Boy, Scott Burton; Karen Nash, Patricia Hicks; Sam Nash, Roger Garety; Waiter, Mike Lopez; Jean McCormick, Marianne Richardson. Act 2: Waiter, Mike Lopez; Jesse Kiplinger, Robert Salvas; Muriel Tate, Betty Sawyer; Act 3: Norma Hubley, Virginia O'Brien; Roy Hubley, Ernest Widlund; Borden Eisler, Scott Burton; Mimsey Hubley, Barbara Morrisey.

MINI ROCKET TAKES TO THE AIR

Teacher Mary Lou Gamby watches as one of her Greenbrae School pupils' rockets takes off at the Redwood Sanitary Landfill in Novato. Rockets reached a top altitude of 500 feet. Approximately 30 students capped classroom research into rockets and model rocket firing with the launch day Friday. Civil Air Patrol Col. Mike Patterson supervised the firings along with safety standards set by National Association of Rocketry. Participants, from grades 3 to 6, used scale models of actual experimental and space rockets powered by solid fuel. The children are trying to form a Marin chapter of NAR.

Earth Day Location Changed

Plans for Earth Day II on Saturday are continuing, but the location of the celebration has been changed from the College of Marin to the Isabel Cook School in San Anselmo, according to Patrick Heffernan, publicity chairman.

A program of speakers, exhibits and performances is scheduled from 10 a.m. to sunset Saturday at the school and on the grounds nearby. Earth Day IIwill be sponsored by the Marin Ecology Center and will include participation by conservation groups and other organizations.

In addition to previously announced activities set for Saturday, musicians and puppeteers will gather at the People's Community Market (the former flea market) at Paradise Drive and Highway 101 in Corte Madera from noon until sunset Sunday to continue the celebration. The program, called "Children of the Earth," will include an ecology puppet show, song, minstrels and dancing.

Cities Stability Of Haiti Regime

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti (UPI)—U.S. Ambassador Clinton E. Knox defended the government of the late President Francois Duvalier Sunday and said the United States should increase aid to Haiti.

Knox told a news conference at his residence in the hills above Port-au-Prince that Duvalier had created political stability in Haiti during his 14-year reign and passed it along to his son Jean-Claude, the new president.

Duvalier's opponents have characterized him as a brutal dictator.

Knox said the government was supported by the various military groups in Haiti and would remain stable for the foreseeable future.

MUSIC REVIEW

Novato's Robin Miler Is Bound For Stardom

By MAYBELLE SPECKMAN

Robin Miler. Remember that name, for it will be a big one some day in the world of music. That is, it will be if the 22-year-old soprano from Novato has the ambition, perseverance and capacity for hard work that are perhaps even more important in reaching that goal than God-given talent and a glorious voice.

Until Saturday night in her recital in Caleruega Hall of Dominican College, I had heard the young singer only in college opera workshop performances, which gave her little opportunity to show her full potentials. Since then she has been a finalist in Metropolitan Opera auditions in San Francisco and won the top $500 L.H. Garland Study Award this year in San Francisco Opera Association auditions.

Despite her youth Miss Miler has a mature, powerful voice of great flexibility, warmth, purity and tonal beauty that she produces with ease and freedom over a wide range. It was thrilling to hear her soar into her highest register without loss of that lovely tonal quality, and she can do this without the facial distortion that mars many a soprano's top notes.

There was some evidence of incomplete control in audible, spasmodic breathing, which more relaxation and practice should conquer.

An innate ability to express dramatic situations and emotion indicate a natural suitability for opera. This was demonstrated in her opening aria, "Dove sono" from Mozart's "Le Nozze di Figaro," and later in the famed "Un Bel Di Vedremo" from Puccini's "Madama Butterfly."

In addition to her vocal assets the young singer has poise, presence and a sparkling personality, and, as if all this were not enough, she has gift for and special interest in languages. A junior at Dominican, she is, in fact, majoring in Spanish, not music.

Her two operatic arias were sung in Italian, and her linguistic facility was further evident in a group of German lieder by Brahms and Schubert and art songs in French by Debussy and ones in Spanish by De Falla.

Though she sang them well, this is where she can benefit from further study. She has such an exuberantly vital temperament and sings with such intense joyousness at full volume that these traits have a tendency to influence and color songs of subtle character requiring more delicate shadings. I should like to hear her develop finer spun, sustained pianissimo.

Two religious songs by Barber and a delightful group of little haiku by Birch showed her command of English diction and versatility in singing music of different styles.

Concluding her concert were a Cole Porter medley and Lerner and Loewe "Brigadoon" medley that were pure entertainment.

Correspondents Attack Nixon Press Relations

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (UPI)—President Nixon's press relations and Vice President Spiro T. Agnew's outspokenness were attacked by White House correspondents Sunday during a panel discussion.

White House News Secretary Ronald L. Zeigler also had some criticism of the news media during the hour-long program at the regional convention of the Sigma Delta Chi professional journalism fraternity.

Helen Thomas, a UPI White House correspondent, said Nixon holds too few news conferences to keep the people informed. And she said the administration "packages the palatable news and hopes you won't find the rest."

Hugh Sidey of Life Magazine characterized Agnew as an "unguided missile" seeking a constituency separate from the Nixon Administration while Dan Rather of CBS said the vice president "has a role to play—to give us Wallacism without Wallace, and to wean away the votes Wallace received in 1968."

Douglas Cornell of the Associated press moderated the discussion.

Ziegler labeled a recent CBS documentary critical of Pentagon publicity techniques as an example of a "bad job" done by newsmen.

But Rather said "The Selling of the Pentagon" probably "didn't hit hard enough."

"Whenever you hit close to home with the truth, you hear a lot of screaming, and that's what you're hearing now," Rather said.

Regarding a presidential credibility gap, Sidey said that a president—no matter how many people he sees—is isolated from the people, because isolation is a state of mind.

"Americans have the tendency to confuse this isolation with the personality of the President," Sidey said.

Rather disagreed, saying every President also is a politician.

"A politician will lie to you and a president will lie to you," he said.

Apartment Use On Planning Agenda

A use permit for a 32-unit apartment building at 270 Channing Way will be considered by the San Rafael Planning Commission when it meets at 7:30 p.m. tomorrow at city hall.

Also on the agenda are use permit applications for a five-building office development at 4360 Redwood Highway and for an existing Standard Oil service station at 3 Loch Lomond Drive.

Art Trends Topic At Garden Center

Harry X. Ford, president of California College of Arts and Crafts, will give an illustrated talk on current trends in art and education at 8 p.m. Wednesday at Frances Young Gallery in the Marin Art and Garden Center.

The presentation will open the Marin Society of Artists' spring series of programs at the Center.

Bruce's Successor On Board's Agenda

A replacement for County Administrator Alan Bruce, who resigned under pressure last week, will be discussed by the Marin County Board of Supervisors tomorrow.

When the agenda was complete Friday, Chairman Louis H. Baar was out of town, and Vice Chairman Peter R. Arrigoni Jr. reserved time on the agenda for a closed meeting at 11:30 a.m. to discuss the appointment of a county administrator.

Arrigoni said the closed meeting is not definite. He said he reserved the time in case the board wants to consider a successor to Bruce, who will leave July 1.

Other items on the supervisors' agenda include:

FLOOD ZONE — Supervisor Michael Wornum will ask that the Richardson Bay Flood Control Zone advisory board be increased from five to seven members.

APPOINTMENTS — Appointments or reappointments will be made to the Building Code Board of Appeals, Association of Bay Area Governments, Law Library board of trustees, and Richardson Bay Flood Control Zone Advisory Board.

PERSONNEL COMMISSION — Personnel Director Maren Rinne will ask that personnel commission members not be limited to $50 per month per diem payments because they are forced to meet as many as five or six times per month.

CAPITAL PROGRAM — A public hearing is set for 11 a.m. to discuss the county administrator's recommendation for roads and building construction for the next six years.

MOTORCYCLE — At 1:45 p.m., the supervisors will get results of a field test of motorcycle trail riding on the Anita Gambonini Ranch on Marshall-Petaluma Road. Marin Motorcycle Association wants permission for riding on the ranch, but adjacent landowners object to the noise and traffic.

TOMALES BAY RANCH — Bruce Wendell Beebe's request for rezoning of his Tomales Bay Ranch a half mile south of Blake's Landing to permit eight residences.

AIRPORT OVERLAY — Public Works Director Donald R. Frost will report that the runway overlay at Gnoss Field will cost $5,458 more than the $13,500 budgeted for 1970-71. He said the increase is due to new federal laws.

Council Post To Be Filled In Novato

The Novato City Council is scheduled to appoint a councilman Tuesday night to fill the seat vacated by Douglas M. Merrill, an appointment which has been shrouded in mystery.

Councilmen have refused to disclose the identity of the nine candidates, but five have become known.

If the council fails to select someone to succeed Merrill by May 13, there will be an election. The new councilman will complete Merrill's term, which expires in April, 1972.

The scheduled hearing on Sono-Marin Builder's appeal of planning commission denial of a tentative map for an 81-lot subdivision will be postponed until May 4, City Mgr. Charles A. Brown said.

Marin Ballet Scholarship Trials Set

Auditions for a Marin Music Chest ballet scholarship will be held June 5 in Angelico Hall at Dominican College of San Rafael, according to Mrs. Samuel Archibald, Music Chest President.

Marin ballet students between the ages of 14 and 19 who have studied a minimum of four years are eligible to audition.

Vocal and instrumental auditions will be held sometime in August, Mrs. Archibald said.

Requests for audition blanks are available by writing Marin Music Chest, Box 468, Ross.

Five per cent of the money taken in during the current summer concert subscriptions drive goes into the scholarship fund, according to Mrs. Archibald. The balance is used for artists' fees.

The 1971 concert series opens June 20 in Forest Meadows, San Rafael

Free Rides For Poor Planned

The Economic Opportunity Council will provide free transportation one day a week for low income families in Southern Marin cities beginning May 7, Doretha Mitchell, director of community organization, announced today.

The EOC will provide five volunteers every Thursday and will coordinate passenger scheduling. The Red Cross will provide a car for this use.

The service, based at the EOC office at 630 Drake Avenue, Marin City, is available for persons needing transportation to "just about anywhere," Mrs. Mitchell said.

Gambling Research Turns Up Proof Some Are 'Born Losers'

DAVIS, Calif. (UPI)—The longshot gambler with a steady record of losing can be the victim of a personality quirk and not just bad luck, according to a University of California researcher in psychology.

Robert P. Crandall said a study showed that a person with low self-esteem generally assumes "great risks with the greater consequent possibility of failure."

Crandall, a senior at he UC Davis campus, conducted the study under the supervision of Dr. Stanley Coopersmith, a professor of psychology, with a grant from the President's Undergraduate Fellowship Program.

"Persons with high self-esteem take less risks that more frequently pay off in tangible success," Coopersmith said in commenting on Crandall's survey.

The professor said that Crandall's findings suggested a "useful, practical method of affecting self-esteem."

Coopersmith said, "It may be possible to raise a person's regard for himself and thus change his overall personality for the better because his (Crandall's) experimental results show that one's self-esteem is continually affected by a process based on consistent successes or failure in the 'experimental field' of daily life."

To get a person to think better of himself, the psychologist said, a therapist would only have to "structure his experience so that he is taking risks at a level that will pay off consistently.

"Although early development and unconscious factors have a bearing on our later level of self-esteem, continuing environmental influences can affect and possibly change our view of ourselves."

To clarify the results of his study, Crandall said he was not trying to imply that persons with high self-esteem never take chances or "rise to impossible challenges."

Instead, he said, he believes that "perhaps a background of consistent success, characteristic of the person with high self-esteem who makes few risks resulting in failure, makes unusual risks subjectively possible.

"In other words, high-esteem people may try occasional longshots and can afford to fail at them while low-esteem people aren't able to cope constructively with longshots though they may take more of them."

Winning Day For Marin Yachtsmen

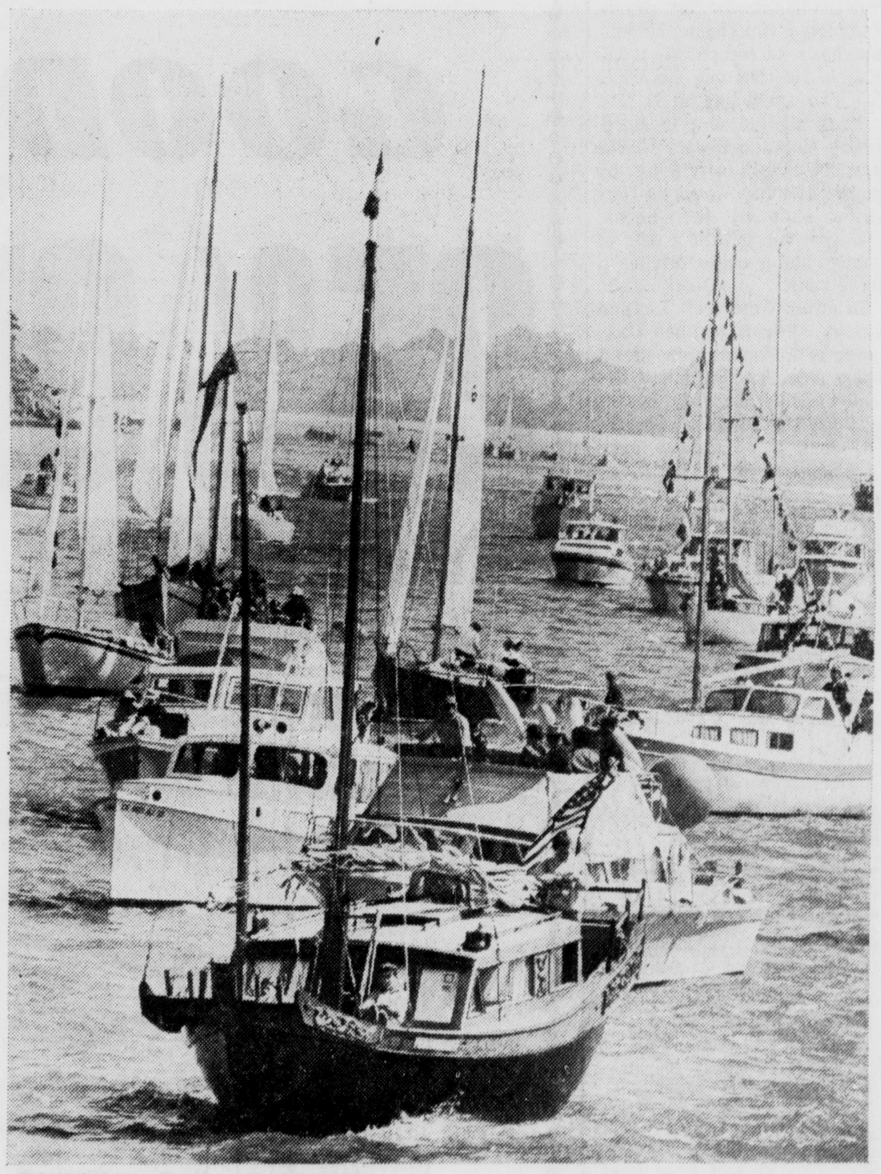
Three boats sailing under the colors of different yacht clubs in Marin County swept the top awards in the San Francisco Chronicle's best decorated boats contest yesterday during the opening day parade of the 1971 yachting season.

Making history by becoming the first sailboat to win the overall title in the contest's 10-year history was Bill Doucet of San Rafael's North Bay Yacht club, with his 37-foot sloop Bridget. Jerry Bredahl of San Rafael Yacht club repeated as winner of the power division aboard his 45-foot cruiser, Ann-Tiki. She was decorated in an American Patrol motif.

Ross Wood of Tiburon's Corinthian Yacht Club took the sail division crown, with deference to Doucet's overall championship. The 29-foot sloop St. Magnus belonging to Wood was decked out in a "Boston Tea Party" theme, which included a tomahawk-wielding Indian and a group of hearties who tossed four large (tea) boxes over the side.

Doucet's boat, entered as "Bridget the Irish Frigate," was dressed in kelly-green, except for her white hull, and her one-masted sail structure was designed to depict a legendary Irish harp. On the foredeck, a half dozen colleens danced a jig accompanied by a band playing folk tunes from the boat's cockpit.

More than 2,000 pleasure craft of all shapes and sizes took part in the armada off Raccoon Straits in Tiburon, in the most delightful weather to grace a season-opening parade in years.



BEFORE THE BLESSING — Pleasure craft in all shapes and sizes graced the waters off Raccoon Straits in Tiburon yesterday morning in preparation for the blessing of the fleet that kicked off the opening day parade of the yacht season. The blessing was given from the deck of the U.S.S. Badger.

14-Hit Attack Wins For Marin Nine, 11-2

The College of Marin Tars found a sure cure for their two game losing streak Saturday as they mounted a 14-hit attack to dismantle Skyline J.C. for the third time this season, 11-2 in San Bruno.

In winning their ninth Camino Norte Conference game against five losses, the Kentfield team got a two-run homer by Larry Brazda, a pair of triples by Rafael Gallardo, and four singles in five at bats by Ken Roby. Gerry Goodrick went the distance on the mound, scattering nine hits.

The Tars got off on the right foot in the first inning when Gallardo banged his first triple and Brazda, the league's leading hitter with a .450 average, rocked his homer, a two run shot. Marin wrapped up the win with a five-run outburst in the fifth.

Machette Loses In Ojai Finals

OJAI, Calif. (UPI)—University of Southern California-bound Raul Ramirez of Mexico captured the invitational men's singles title at the Ojai Valley tennis tournament Sunday with a 6-7, 7-6, 6-4 victory over Trojan sophomore Mike Machette of Belvedere.

Ramirez, from Ensenada, teamed with Jim Hobson, an ex-USC player, to win the doubles 6-2, 7-6 over Machette and John Andrews, also of Southern Cal.

Powerful Bucks Roll On

BALTIMORE (UPI) — The Milwaukee Bucks, combining their own overwhelming power along with an emotional letdown suffered by Baltimore, appeared in excellent shape today to capture the National Basketball Association championship in only their third year of existence.

Milwaukee routed the Bullets, 102-83, in a nationally televised game at Baltimore Sunday to take a 2-0 lead in their best-of-seven final series. The teams move back to Milwaukee for the third game Wednesday and it wouldn't be too much of a surprise if the Bucks win it all in the fourth game at Baltimore next Friday.

But, before the Bucks get too carried away with themselves, it should be remembered that the Bullets have been in a hole before. They lost the opening game of their quarter-final series against Philadelphia and the first two against New York in the semi-finals before rallying to win both sets.

However, Coach Gene Shue admits that his team may be playing one series too many in

CHAMP OF CHAMPS

Nicklaus Breezes To Easy Victory

At 31, he is at the height of his powers. He has all the physical equipment and the right mental attitude to become the greatest golfer in history.

He won the MONY Tournament of Champions going away Sunday as they say at the races. He had an eight-stroke margin, greatest in two years on the pro tour.

On a tough golf course with overgrown rough and narrow fairways and sometimes gusty winds, he shot 69-71-69-70—279, nine under par for the La Costa Country Club.

The $33,000 first prize put him over the $100,000 mark for the ninth consecutive year. He has won $102,930 this year, only a few thousand less than the No. 1 man, Arnold Palmer. At 41, Palmer must be considered on the way downhill.

Three pros tied for second eight back of Nicklaus. They were Gary Player, 70-71-74-72—287; Bruce Devlin, 72-70-72-73, and Dave Stockton, 71-72-72-72. Each collected $12,760.

Stockton played with Nicklaus in the last round and said, "Jack's like a foxy card player. He plays good enough to win. He's the greatest I've ever seen. If he entered 30 tournaments a year, I think he'd win eight or ten of them."

Nicklaus said he thought he played better in the Masters at Augusta, Ga., where he tied for second with John Miller behind Charles Coody.

Coody shot a 75 in the T of C Sunday for a 290 total, good for a tie for seventh with Frank Beard and worth $4,930.

Gene Littler, three-time T of C winner, shot a final 71 which put him at even par 288 in fifth place and good for $6,770.

Palmer stayed atop the money pile by shooting a one over par 73 for a 295 total and $3,100.

The course was rough, all the pros agreed. The rough was ankle deep and the fairways narrow—some just 80 feet. All the other pros said Nicklaus fared better in the rough

A's To Challenge Champion Orioles

Oakland's Win Streak Is Ended

OAKLAND (UPI)—The Oakland A's winning streak is at an end, which had to happen, and now all they can think about is starting a new one.

It will be a tall order because the Baltimore Orioles, defending world champions, are in town tonight for the first game of a four-game series.

"I don't think this is a bigger series than the one we just finished," said A's manager Dick Williams Sunday after his club was thrashed by the Detroit Tigers, 10-2, "But psychologically it could be something more."

Williams acknowledged the Orioles are tops "but we have the best record this year, so right now we are the best in our league and with the Giants we are the best in baseball. What happened last year is history."

Williams sends flame-thrower Vida Blue, 4-1 against the Orioles' Pat Dibson, 1-1, tonight and will follow with Diego Segui vs. Dave McNally, Jim Hunter against Mike Cuellar and Rollie Fingers against Jim Palmer.

"It's no make or break series," said Williams, "and we feel right now we can beat anyone. We went into Minnesota last week and beat them twice and we followed that with a three-game sweep in Anaheim. Winning those two series gave us a big lift and if we can beat the Orioles, so much the better."

Williams doesn't care to dwell too long on what happened to the A's Sunday when Mickey Lolich and Fred Scherman held them to just three hits while the Tigers were mauling five Oakland pitchers for 15 hits.

"If you have to lose," said Williams, "that's the way to do it. We weren't in the game for more than the first four innings and they simply beat the hell out of us."

Dick McAuliffe drove in five runs for the Tigers with a homer and double and Bill Freehan and Willie Horton added homers to send Fingers down to his second defeat against one victory. Seven of the 10 Detroit runs were charged to Fingers.

The victory snapped the A's winning streak at seven games. Still, though, they have an overall record of 14-6, which is tops in the American league.

A crowd of only 10,677 saw Sunday's game and the three-game weekend series against the Tigers produced a total of 25,563 and gave the A's a home season attendance of 62,000 for eight dates, down about 10,000 from a year ago.

Of course, the A's are hoping to pick up this week during the big series with the Orioles plus pennant day on Saturday and a doubleheader next Sunday.

"Somebody has to bring them out," said Williams. "They aren't going to see much better baseball than we have been playing."

A DAY OFF

Giants Head For Atlanta

ATLANTA (UPI) — After the two youngsters of the San Francisco pitching staff notched their first major league shutouts against Pittsburgh, the Giants' ace — Juan Marichal — had his troubles with the Pirates.

Complaining of a bad back, Marichal left the game Sunday in the fifth inning, but he still absorbed the loss, his second in a row, as the Pirates took a 6-2 victory to prevent a Giants sweep.

Marichal's troubles started in the third inning when the Giants were leading 1-0. Vic Davalillo, who drove in three runs in the game, singled between walks to Dave Cash and Roberto Clemente to load the bases.

Marichal struck out Willie Stargell, but Milt May drove in one run with an infield bouncer and Al Oliver doubled to center on a ball misjudged by Cesar Rosario to score two more.

The Pirates got two more runs in the sixth on a single by Davilillo. The little first baseman drove in his third run on another single in the eighth.

The Giants scored first in the second inning when Oliver dropped a line drive in center field, allowing Al Gallagher to score from second. San Francisco got its second run in the fifth when Willie McCovey belted one into the leftfield seats for his second homer of the season.

Double Signing By Porter?

PITTSBURGH (UPI)—Mark Binstein, general manager of the Pittsburgh Condors, admitted today he never has seen the contract which Howard Porter allegedly signed with the American Basketball Association team.

But Binstein remained insistent the Condors will be able to prove they signed Porter before he signed a five-year contract Saturday with the Chicago Bulls of the rival NBA.

"I doubt that seven days will go by without the Pittsburgh fans being satisfied," Binstein said, using a time period he has used before in the Porter fiasco.

DRAMA REVIEW

Different Points Of View On Play

By KAY KSANDA

When two theater groups in Marin County produce the same play at the same time, they automatically set up a contest of competence and talents. As with ladies in identical ballgowns, one is apt to notice which has the better figure, and who has the greater style.

Within one week of each other, the Ross Valley Players of the Marin Art and Garden Center, and the Actors Playhouse of Marin, at Congregation Rodef Sholom in San Rafael, have presented "Plaza Suite." The Actors Playhouse version (reviewed last week) runs Saturday and Sunday nights through May 8th. Productions in Ross are Friday and Saturday nights at 8:30 p.m. through May 22. With such scheduling everyone, and particularly the casts, can see both interpretations of this wildly funny, and widely known Neil Simon comedy.

There are striking differences, and few similarities in the two productions.

"Plaza Suite," is three comedies, three different stories in the common setting of Suite 719 at the Savoy-Plaza in New York. All have "marriage" as an object of kindly ridicule, with dialogue and situation staying witty, brittle, and in the Ross version, sometimes not so light and gay.

In the first story, in which Karen Nash attempts to resurrect her 23-year-old failing marriage by returning to the honeymoon suite with her abstracted husband, the situation in Ross is no longer funny. After five minutes of listening to Mrs. Nash's whiny monotone, one wonders if Mr. Nash will show up at all. The once acid and clever remarks fade into just another soap opera.

In the second story, Hollywood producer Jesse Kiplinger (Robert Salvas) has invited his old high school sweetheart, Muriel Tate (Betty Sawyer), up to his hotel suite for an "old acquaintance" chat. He has seduction in mind, but she wants the inside news on the jet set. There are few nuances. The proposition is pretty clear, and although both of the personalities have their pretensions, they play an almost jaded game... an interesting interpretation.

The third story has Mr. and Mrs. Hubley in a hilarious farce trying to extricate their reluctant daughter, in her bridal finery, from her barricade in the hotel bathroom. Ernest Widlund and Virginia O'Brien as Mr. and Mrs. Hubley use every line, every situation to drop the audience in the aisle. They do a beautiful job! This act is the best of the play, with memorable lines and looks.

Obviously director Bill Derveniotes went for social comment more than laughs in his first two acts. Much of the stilleto witticism was lost in the first act by turning Mrs. Nash into a complete frump. Every woman in the audience was against her. No woman that fat, wearing sausage curls and a pant suit, should expect to keep her husband. More than a second honeymoon, she needed shaping up.

In act two, the characters were more selfish than evolved. However, this again is another way to see it.

The last act was absolutely marvelous! Ernest Widlund has the harrassed father at perfect pitch.

The set in both productions is about the same...you've seen one hotel room, you've seen 'em all.

"PLAZA SUITE" — A comedy in three acts by Neil Simon; presented by the Ross Valley Players and directed by Bill Derveniotes and assisted by Mona Horwitz. Set by Mario Gianetti, with costumes by Virginia O'Brien. The Cast: Act 1: Bell Boy, Scott Burton; Karen Nash, Patricia Hicks; Sam Nash, Roger Garety; Waiter, Mike Lopez; Jean McCormick, Marianne Richardson. Act 2: Waiter, Mike Lopez; Jesse Kiplinger, Robert Salvas; Muriel Tate, Betty Sawyer; Act 3: Norma Hubley, Virginia O'Brien; Roy Hubley, Ernest Widlund; Borden Eisler, Scott Burton; Mimsey Hubley, Barbara Morrisey.

MINI ROCKET TAKES TO THE AIR

Teacher Mary Lou Gamby watches as one of her Greenbrae School pupils' rockets takes off at the Redwood Sanitary Landfill in Novato. Rockets reached a top altitude of 500 feet. Approximately 30 students capped classroom research into rockets and model rocket firing with the launch day Friday. Civil Air Patrol Col. Mike Patterson supervised the firings along with safety standards set by National Association of Rocketry. Participants, from grades 3 to 6, used scale models of actual experimental and space rockets powered by solid fuel. The children are trying to form a Marin chapter of NAR.

Earth Day Location Changed

Plans for Earth Day II on Saturday are continuing, but the location of the celebration has been changed from the College of Marin to the Isabel Cook School in San Anselmo, according to Patrick Heffernan, publicity chairman.

A program of speakers, exhibits and performances is scheduled from 10 a.m. to sunset Saturday at the school and on the grounds nearby. Earth Day IIwill be sponsored by the Marin Ecology Center and will include participation by conservation groups and other organizations.

In addition to previously announced activities set for Saturday, musicians and puppeteers will gather at the People's Community Market (the former flea market) at Paradise Drive and Highway 101 in Corte Madera from noon until sunset Sunday to continue the celebration. The program, called "Children of the Earth," will include an ecology puppet show, song, minstrels and dancing.

Cities Stability Of Haiti Regime

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti (UPI)—U.S. Ambassador Clinton E. Knox defended the government of the late President Francois Duvalier Sunday and said the United States should increase aid to Haiti.

Knox told a news conference at his residence in the hills above Port-au-Prince that Duvalier had created political stability in Haiti during his 14-year reign and passed it along to his son Jean-Claude, the new president.

Duvalier's opponents have characterized him as a brutal dictator.

Knox said the government was supported by the various military groups in Haiti and would remain stable for the foreseeable future.

MUSIC REVIEW

Novato's Robin Miler Is Bound For Stardom

By MAYBELLE SPECKMAN

Robin Miler. Remember that name, for it will be a big one some day in the world of music. That is, it will be if the 22-year-old soprano from Novato has the ambition, perseverance and capacity for hard work that are perhaps even more important in reaching that goal than God-given talent and a glorious voice.

Until Saturday night in her recital in Caleruega Hall of Dominican College, I had heard the young singer only in college opera workshop performances, which gave her little opportunity to show her full potentials. Since then she has been a finalist in Metropolitan Opera auditions in San Francisco and won the top $500 L.H. Garland Study Award this year in San Francisco Opera Association auditions.

Despite her youth Miss Miler has a mature, powerful voice of great flexibility, warmth, purity and tonal beauty that she produces with ease and freedom over a wide range. It was thrilling to hear her soar into her highest register without loss of that lovely tonal quality, and she can do this without the facial distortion that mars many a soprano's top notes.

There was some evidence of incomplete control in audible, spasmodic breathing, which more relaxation and practice should conquer.

An innate ability to express dramatic situations and emotion indicate a natural suitability for opera. This was demonstrated in her opening aria, "Dove sono" from Mozart's "Le Nozze di Figaro," and later in the famed "Un Bel Di Vedremo" from Puccini's "Madama Butterfly."

In addition to her vocal assets the young singer has poise, presence and a sparkling personality, and, as if all this were not enough, she has gift for and special interest in languages. A junior at Dominican, she is, in fact, majoring in Spanish, not music.

Her two operatic arias were sung in Italian, and her linguistic facility was further evident in a group of German lieder by Brahms and Schubert and art songs in French by Debussy and ones in Spanish by De Falla.

Though she sang them well, this is where she can benefit from further study. She has such an exuberantly vital temperament and sings with such intense joyousness at full volume that these traits have a tendency to influence and color songs of subtle character requiring more delicate shadings. I should like to hear her develop finer spun, sustained pianissimo.

Two religious songs by Barber and a delightful group of little haiku by Birch showed her command of English diction and versatility in singing music of different styles.

Concluding her concert were a Cole Porter medley and Lerner and Loewe "Brigadoon" medley that were pure entertainment.

Apartment Use On Planning Agenda

A use permit for a 32-unit apartment building at 270 Channing Way will be considered by the San Rafael Planning Commission when it meets at 7:30 p.m. tomorrow at city hall.

Also on the agenda are use permit applications for a five-building office development at 4360 Redwood Highway and for an existing Standard Oil service station at 3 Loch Lomond Drive.

Correspondents Attack Nixon Press Relations

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (UPI)—President Nixon's press relations and Vice President Spiro T. Agnew's outspokenness were attacked by White House correspondents Sunday during a panel discussion.

White House News Secretary Ronald L. Zeigler also had some criticism of the news media during the hour-long program at the regional convention of the Sigma Delta Chi professional journalism fraternity.

Helen Thomas, a UPI White House correspondent, said Nixon holds too few news conferences to keep the people informed. And she said the administration "packages the palatable news and hopes you won't find the rest."

Hugh Sidey of Life Magazine characterized Agnew as an "unguided missile" seeking a constituency separate from the Nixon Administration while Dan Rather of CBS said the vice president "has a role to play—to give us Wallacism without Wallace, and to wean away the votes Wallace received in 1968."

Douglas Cornell of the Associated press moderated the discussion.

Ziegler labeled a recent CBS documentary critical of Pentagon publicity techniques as an example of a "bad job" done by newsmen.

But Rather said "The Selling of the Pentagon" probably "didn't hit hard enough."

"Whenever you hit close to home with the truth, you hear a lot of screaming, and that's what you're hearing now," Rather said.

Regarding a presidential credibility gap, Sidey said that a president—no matter how many people he sees—is isolated from the people, because isolation is a state of mind.

"Americans have the tendency to confuse this isolation with the personality of the President," Sidey said.

Rather disagreed, saying every President also is a politician.

"A politician will lie to you and a president will lie to you," he said.

Torre Continues Clutch Hitting

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

Joe Torre is a jolly fellow despite an imposing physique and bushy eyebrows which remind sports fans of boxing's Sonny Liston and Sunday night he threw a barbecue for all his neighbors in St. Louis.

Joe can afford it because he is a $100,000-a-year player and he played the good host because he is off to what could be the best season of his career. He has hit safely in all 19 of the St. Louis Cardinals' games, has a .384 season average and came through Sunday with the winning hit in a 5-4 victory over the Philadelphia Phillies.

The victory gave the Cardinals a 12-7 season record and left them only a few percentage points behind the Montreal Expos in the National League's Eastern Division race. The Cardinals, NL champions in 1967 and 1968, finished fourth, 13 games out of first place in the Eastern Division, in 1970.

Torre's single with two out in the ninth drove in Lou Brock with the winning run. The blow climaxed a three-run rally which gave Frank Linzy his first victory of the season for the Cardinals and tagged the Phillies' Woody Fryman with his third straight loss.

The Cincinnati Reds downed the Los Angeles Dodgers, 2-0, after a 4-2 loss, the Chicago Cubs ripped the New York Mets, 9-3, the Pittsburgh Pirates defeated the San Francisco Giants, 6-2, the Montreal Expos shaded the Houston Astros, 2-1, and the Atlanta Braves nipped the San Diego Padres, 4-3, in 10 innings after a 3-2 defeat, in other NL games.

Bill Singer pitched a five-hitter as the Dodgers extended their winning streak to six games but the Reds won the second game of the doubleheader behind the six-hit pitching of Don Gullett. Willie Davis' triple and a double by Steve Garvey were the big blows of a four-run, fourth-inning uprising by the Dodgers in the first game. Tommy Helms singled home one run and Tony Perez homered for the Reds in the second game as Gullett struck out five and walked three in raising his record to 2-0.

Ferguson Jenkins, the only major league pitcher who has won 20 games in each of the last four seasons, won his third game of the current campaign with a nine-hitter for the Cubs.

Ron Hunt's single drove in the second of two unearned runs in the third inning to provide the Expos with their margin of victory at Houston. Jack Billingham and Jim Ray held the Expos to four hits but Bill Stoneman hurled a three-hitter, striking out six and walking two for Montreal.

Larry Stahl's sixth-inning single drove in the winning run for the Padres in the first game at Atlanta despite the 599th homer of Hank Aaron's career and gave Dave Roberts his first win of the season. The homer was Aaron's seventh of the season and left him one short of joining Willie Mays and Babe Ruth as the only players in major league history who have hit 600 career homers.

Ralston Helps U.S. To World Cup Win

NEWTON, Mass. (UPI) — Dennis Ralston halted a threatened Australian comeback to lead the United States to victory in the second annual $30,000 world cup professional tennis matches.

Ralston defeated Roy Emerson of Australia 6-1, 6-7, 7-6, in match play Sunday to give the United States a 4-2 triumph in the best-of-seven series. The U.S. team had led 3-1 at the start of the day, but Australia's John Newcombe beat Arthur Ashe in match play to narrow the lead to 3-2.

In other tennis news:

SAN DIEGO (UPI)—The 14-tournament Virginia Slims women's pro tennis series is over and Billie Jean King of Long Beach, Calif., won eight of them.

Mrs. King took the finale, the San Diego Open, Sunday with a 4-6, 7-5, 6-1 victory over San Francisco's Rosemary Casals for a first prize of $2,500.

She finished as the No. 1 money winner in the series at $36,350 while Miss Casals ranked second at $27,750.

DENVER (UPI)—Cliff Drysdale says Australia's Ken Rosewall may not be big in stature, but his tennis shots more than make up for anything he lacks in height.

Rosewall, who is 5-foot 7, whipped South Africa's Drysdale 6-3, 6-2 Sunday to win $5,000 first place prize money in the Denver Tennis invitational.

HOUSTON (UPI) — Second seeded Cliff Richey of San Angelo, Tex., upset top seeded Clark Graebner of New York in easy, straight sets Sunday to win the singles title of the 37th annual River Oaks Tennis Tournament.

Richey's win avenged his loss to Graebner in last year's finals. Richey never lost his service in winning the best of five match 6-2, 6-1, 6-2.

Golf

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (UPI) —Lee Trevino, the Texas golfer who failed to qualify for the tournament of champions this year, is making plans for next year's tournament after winning a $12,000 consolation prize Sunday.

Trevino put together four birdies and some steady putting to win the Tallahassee Open with a 15-under 273. It was his first victory since the 1970 National Airlines open more than a year ago.

MIAMI (UPI)—Watch out for lady golfer Sandra Haynie when she gets nervous and flustered.

"I was in trouble all day long," Miss Haynie said Sunday after shooting an even par 74 for a three-stroke victory and $4,500 first prize in the Burdine's ladies invitational golf tournament.

Auto Racing

TRENTON, N.J. (UPI) — It took a few blown engines and a narrow escape to give young Mike Mosley his first USAC championship victory.

Mosley, a 26-year-old driver from Brownsburg, Ind., took first prize money of $13,850 in the Trentonian 200 Sunday after a number of the favorites had dropped out.

Mosley took the lead on the 36th lap and led the rest of the way,

Boxing

TAMPA, Fla (UPI) — Thirty-two year old Bob Foster won a unanimous 15-round decision over back-pedalling Ray Anderson Saturday night to retain his light heavyweight championship. Anderson's manager, Yank Durham left the ring in disgust before the fight was over, and said later, "I think it's a disgrace. I'm disgraced to be associated with a man who would run like that."

Tam Seventh In El Cerrito Track Relays

Despite poor weather that kept times down and a bad ankle that kept Gerald Robertson down, Tamalpais High School took seventh place Saturday in the El Cerrito track and field relays at El Cerrito High.

Tam, the only Marin County Athletic League school to figure in the scoring, took second in the two-mile relay and third in the 480 shuttle low hurdles, and captured another third when Robertson, operating off a sprained ankle, triple jumped 44 feet, 10¼ inches.

That leap eclipsed the MCAL record for the triple jump by more than three feet — it was astounding considering that it was the first time Robertson ever competed in the event. In his specialty, the high jump, the ankle kept him from placing.

The Indians' two mile relay team of Paul Ringleman, Vian Collier, Mike Arago and Carlos Martinez was clocked in 8:12.7, two seconds behind first place El Cerrito.

AMERICAN LEAGUE

It's A Shutout For Jim Kaat

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

Suddenly Kaat is once again in the limelight after recording his second shutout of the season Sunday with a two-hit whitewashing of the New York Yankees, the Twins winning, 8-0.

Baseball experts, in the off season, talked about the magnificence of Jim Perry, the shining future of Bert Blyleven, the relief work of Ron Perranoski and the hopeful comebacks of Dave Boswell and Luis Tiant.

If Kaat was mentioned at all, it was only in a negative manner. Despite a 14-10 record last season, his slim total of four complete games stuck out like a sore thumb. He had lost his zip and was now being referred to as a "junkie" who could no longer be counted on as an effective starter.

But Kaat has apparently decided to prove the experts wrong. After an ineffective relief stint on opening day, the veteran has started four games, completed two, both shutouts, and has a 2-0 record with a 2.89 E.R.A. He shut out the White Sox two weeks ago on 11 hits.

Kaat allowed only a third-inning single to Horace Clarke and an eighth-infield hit by pinch-hitter Ron Woods as Tony Oliva supplied the Twins' offensive punch with a pair of homers and a single, driving in three runs.

In other American League games, Detroit bombed Oakland, 10-2, Washington edged Milwaukee, 3-2, Baltimore defeated California, 7-1, Boston beat Chicago, 5-4, and Kansas City took a 6-4 victory over Cleveland.

Tom McCraw cracked the third straight hit in the 10th inning to give the Senators a come-from-behind victory over the Brewers. McCraw, who had doubled and scored the tying run in the ninth inning, singled up the middle off reliever Dick Ellsworth to score Don Wert from third base with the winning run.

Jim Palmer fired a six-hitter and singled in a pair of runs in the sixth inning to give the Orioles their victory over the Angels. Palmer, now 3-0, beat Jim Maloney, making his first American League start.

Carl Yastrzemski hit a two-run homer and walked to force in the winning run in the eighth inning to give the Red Sox the win over Chicago. Don Eddy, the fifth of six White Sox hurlers, walked Yastrzemski to break a 4-4 tie after a walk to Phil Gagliano and singles by Luis Aparicio and Reggie Smith had loaded the bases.

Ed Kirkpatrick hit a three-run homer and Jerry May a two-run blast in the first inning to lead the Royals to a rain-delayed victory over Cleveland. Kansas City scored all six runs off Steve Hargan, now 0-3, in the first inning.

Lacrosse Victory For Novato Team

Novato's Parks and Recreation Department squeaked by crosstown rival Church of the Latter Day Saints yesterday, 7-6 in a Northern California Lacrosse Association junior division match at Novato High School.

Dick Tetu of Parks and Rec and Dan Daly of LDS tied for high-scoring honors with three goals apiece.

A picnic has been planned Thursday for undergraduate men interested in joining the first coeducational classes at Dominican College of San Rafael in September.

Tradition Loses In NHL Playoffs

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Stanley Cup play traditionally involves close-checking and low scoring games but tradition has been the first thing to go in the 1971 playoffs.

First the defending champion Boston Bruins, who virtually rewrote National Hockey League scoring records this season, were eliminated by the Montreal Canadiens. Then the St. Louis Blues, Stanley Cup finalists in each of their three years in the league, were upended by the Minnesota North Stars.

Now defense, usually the foundation of a Stanley Cup series, has gone out the window.

That was evident again Sunday as the Chicago Black Hawks routed the New York Rangers, the best defensive team in the NHL this season, 7-1, and the North Stars ripped the Canadiens, one of the closest checking teams in hockey, 5-2. Both best-of-seven series now are tied at two games apiece.

Bobby Hull, held in check by the Rangers through the first three games, scored his first points of the series with a pair of assists within a two-minute span of the second period to ignite the rout of the Rangers. Chicago led 1-0 on Jim Pappin's first period goal when Hull, the second leading scorer in NHL history, set up a goal by Bill White at 5:45 of the second period and another by Danny O'Shea at 7:28.

Chicago coach Billy Reay said he was glad "the club was able to snap back. Now it's a three-game series and two of those games are in Chicago."

That's the same sentiment echoed by Minnesota Coach Jackie Gordon, whose North Stars stunned Montreal in a series in which all four games have been lopsided victories.

Montreay won the first and third games 7-2 and 6-3 while the North Stars took the second and fourth 6-3 and 5-2.

Murray Oliver had a pair of goals and Jean Paul Parise put in the go-ahead score in the third period as the North Stars, the only club ever to beat an established team in Stanley Cup play, evened the series. The fifth game will be played in Montreal Tuesday night.

Recreation Softball

In San Rafael Recreation Department adult softball league games yesterday at Albert Park, The Scrappers outlasted Bermann MFG, 15-11 and Marin Supply edged Don Rumpf Golf Shop, 6-5.

PICTURESQUE PARADE — The beautiful Golden Gate Bridge and the hills above Sausalito provided a brilliant background for the yacht season's opening day parade yesterday as it headed from Raccoon Straits out into the San Francisco Bay. Thousands of boats took part in the pageant, and three from Marin County won top prizes.

Winning Day For Marin Yachtsmen

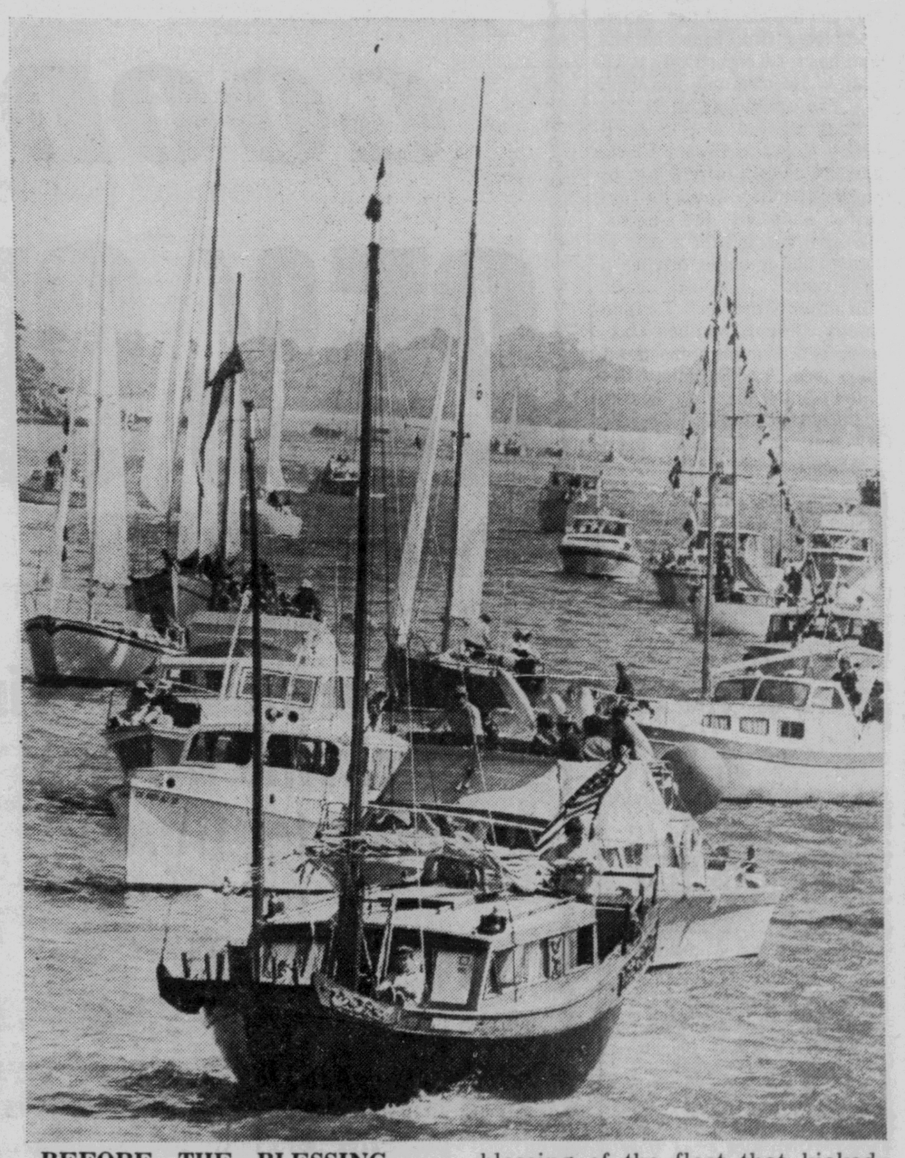
Three boats sailing under the colors of different yacht clubs in Marin County swept the top awards in the San Francisco Chronicle's best decorated boats contest yesterday during the opening day parade of the 1971 yachting season.

Making history by becoming the first sailboat to win the overall title in the contest's 10-year history was Bill Doucet of San Rafael's North Bay Yacht club, with his 37-foot sloop Bridget. Jerry Bredahl of San Rafael Yacht club repeated as winner of the power division aboard his 45-foot cruiser, Ann-Tiki. She was decorated in an American Patrol motif.

Ross Wood of Tiburon's Corinthian Yacht Club took the sail division crown, with deference to Doucet's overall championship. The 29-foot sloop St. Magnus belonging to Wood was decked out in a "Boston Tea Party" theme, which included a tomahawk-wielding Indian and a group of hearties who tossed four large (tea) boxes over the side.

Doucet's boat, entered as "Bridget the Irish Frigate," was dressed in kelly-green, except for her white hull, and her one-masted sail structure was designed to depict a legendary Irish harp. On the foredeck, a half dozen colleens danced a jig accompanied by a band playing folk tunes from the boat's cockpit.

More than 2,000 pleasure craft of all shapes and sizes took part in the armada off Raccoon Straits in Tiburon, in the most delightful weather to grace a season-opening parade in years.



BEFORE THE BLESSING — Pleasure craft in all shapes and sizes graced the waters off Raccoon Straits in Tiburon yesterday morning in preparation for the blessing of the fleet that kicked off the opening day parade of the yacht season. The blessing was given from the deck of the U.S.S. Badger.

The College of Marin Tars found a sure cure for their two game losing streak Saturday as they mounted a 14-hit attack to dismantle Skyline J.C. for the third time this season, 11-2 in San Bruno.

In winning their ninth Camino Norte Conference game against five losses, the Kentfield team got a two-run homer by Larry Brazda, a pair of triples by Rafael Gallardo, and four singles in five at bats by Ken Roby. Gerry Goodrick went the distance on the mound, scattering nine hits.

The Tars got off on the right foot in the first inning when Gallardo banged his first triple and Brazda, the league's leading hitter with a .450 average, rocked his homer, a two run shot. Marin wrapped up the win with a five-run outburst in the fifth.

Machette Loses In Ojai Finals

OJAI, Calif. (UPI)—University of Southern California-bound Raul Ramirez of Mexico captured the invitational men's singles title at the Ojai Valley tennis tournament Sunday with a 6-7, 7-6, 6-4 victory over Trojan sophomore Mike Machette of Belvedere.

Ramirez, from Ensenada, teamed with Jim Hobson, an ex-USC player, to win the doubles 6-2, 7-6 over Machette and John Andrews, also of Southern Cal.

Powerful Bucks Roll On

BALTIMORE (UPI) — The Milwaukee Bucks, combining their own overwhelming power along with an emotional letdown suffered by Baltimore, appeared in excellent shape today to capture the National Basketball Association championship in only their third year of existence.

Milwaukee routed the Bullets, 102-83, in a nationally televised game at Baltimore Sunday to take a 2-0 lead in their best-of-seven final series. The teams move back to Milwaukee for the third game Wednesday and it wouldn't be too much of a surprise if the Bucks win it all in the fourth game at Baltimore next Friday.

But, before the Bucks get too carried away with themselves, it should be remembered that the Bullets have been in a hole before. They lost the opening game of their quarter-final series against Philadelphia and the first two against New York in the semi-finals before rallying to win both sets.

However, Coach Gene Shue admits that his team may be playing one series too many in

CHAMP OF CHAMPS

Nicklaus Breezes To Easy Victory

At 31, he is at the height of his powers. He has all the physical equipment and the right mental attitude to become the greatest golfer in history.

He won the MONY Tournament of Champions going away Sunday as they say at the races. He had an eight-stroke margin, greatest in two years on the pro tour.

On a tough golf course with overgrown rough and narrow fairways and sometimes gusty winds, he shot 69-71-69-70—279, nine under par for the La Costa Country Club.

The $33,000 first prize put him over the $100,000 mark for the ninth consecutive year. He has won $102,930 this year, only a few thousand less than the No. 1 man, Arnold Palmer. At 41, Palmer must be considered on the way downhill.

Three pros tied for second eight back of Nicklaus. They were Gary Player, 70-71-74-72—287; Bruce Devlin, 72-70-72-73, and Dave Stockton, 71-72-72-72. Each collected $12,760.

Stockton played with Nicklaus in the last round and said, "Jack's like a foxy card player. He plays good enough to win. He's the greatest I've ever seen. If he entered 30 tournaments a year, I think he'd win eight or ten of them."

Nicklaus said he thought he played better in the Masters at Augusta, Ga., where he tied for second with John Miller behind Charles Coody.

Coody shot a 75 in the T of C Sunday for a 290 total, good for a tie for seventh with Frank Beard and worth $4,930.

Gene Littler, three-time T of C winner, shot a final 71 which put him at even par 288 in fifth place and good for $6,770.

Palmer stayed atop the money pile by shooting a one over par 73 for a 295 total and $3,100.

The course was rough, all the pros agreed. The rough was ankle deep and the fairways narrow—some just 30 feet. All the other pros said Nicklaus fared better in the rough

A's To Challenge Champion Orioles

Oakland's Win Streak Is Ended

OAKLAND (UPI)—The Oakland A's winning streak is at an end, which had to happen, and now all they can think about is starting a new one.

It will be a tall order because the Baltimore Orioles, defending world champions, are in town tonight for the first game of a four-game series.

"I don't think this is a bigger series than the one we just finished," said A's manager Dick Williams Sunday after his club was thrashed by the Detroit Tigers, 10-2, "But psychologically it could be something more."

Williams acknowledged the Orioles are tops "but we have the best record this year, so right now we are the best in our league and with the Giants we are the best in baseball. What happened last year is history."

Williams sends flame-thrower Vida Blue, 4-1 against the Orioles' Pat Dibson, 1-1, tonight and will follow with Diego Segui vs. Dave McNally, Jim Hunter against Mike Cuellar and Rollie Fingers against Jim Palmer.

"It's no make or break series," said Williams, "and we feel right now we can beat anyone. We went into Minnesota last week and beat them twice and we followed that with a three-game sweep in Anaheim. Winning those two series gave us a big lift and if we can beat the Orioles, so much the better."

Williams doesn't care to dwell too long on what happened to the A's Sunday when Mickey Lolich and Fred Scherman held them to just three hits while the Tigers were mauling five Oakland pitchers for 15 hits.

"If you have to lose," said Williams, "that's the way to do it. We weren't in the game for more than the first four innings and they simply beat the hell out of us."

Dick McAuliffe drove in five runs for the Tigers with a homer and double and Bill Freehan and Willie Horton added homers to send Fingers down to his second defeat against one victory. Seven of the 10 Detroit runs were charged to Fingers.

The victory snapped the A's winning streak at seven games. Still, though, they have an overall record of 14-6, which is tops in the American league.

A crowd of only 10,677 saw Sunday's game and the three-game weekend series against the Tigers produced a total of 25,563 and gave the A's a home season attendance of 62,000 for eight dates, down about 10,000 from a year ago.

Of course, the A's are hoping to pick up this week during the big series with the Orioles plus pennant day on Saturday and a doubleheader next Sunday.

"Somebody has to bring them out," said Williams. "They aren't going to see much better baseball than we have been playing."

A DAY OFF

Giants Head For Atlanta

ATLANTA (UPI) — After the two youngsters of the San Francisco pitching staff notched their first major league shutouts against Pittsburgh, the Giants' ace — Juan Marichal — had his troubles with the Pirates.

Complaining of a bad back, Marichal left the game Sunday in the fifth inning, but he still absorbed the loss, his second in a row, as the Pirates took a 6-2 victory to prevent a Giants sweep.

Marichal's troubles started in the third inning when the Giants were leading 1-0. Vic Davalillo, who drove in three runs in the game, singled between walks to Dave Cash and Roberto Clemente to load the bases.

Marichal struck out Willie Stargell, but Milt May drove in one run with an infield bouncer and Al Oliver doubled to center on a ball misjudged by Cesar Rosario to score two more.

The Pirates got two more runs in the sixth on a single by Davilillo. The little first baseman drove in his third run on another single in the eighth.

The Giants scored first in the second inning when Oliver dropped a line drive in center field, allowing Al Gallagher to score from second. San Francisco got its second run in the fifth when Willie McCovey belted one into the leftfield seats for his second homer of the season.

Double Signing By Porter?

PITTSBURGH (UPI)—Mark Binstein, general manager of the Pittsburgh Condors, admitted today he never has seen the contract which Howard Porter allegedly signed with the American Basketball Association team.

But Binstein remained insistent the Condors will be able to prove they signed Porter before he signed a five-year contract Saturday with the Chicago Bulls of the rival NBA.

"I doubt that seven days will go by without the Pittsburgh fans being satisfied," Binstein said, using a time period he has used before in the Porter fiasco.

PARADE OF ATHLETES

With an Olympic torch leading the way, 471 mentally handicapped children from throughout the North Bay area paraded Saturday morning around the San Rafael High School track prior to the start of the annual Marin County Special Olympics. Events included 50 and 300 yard runs, softball throw, long jump and 25 and 50-yard swim competition. Opening ceremonies included the Olympic oath given by former Olympic champion Archie Williams, now a teacher and track coach at Drake High School.

Colonels Reach ABA Finals

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

The Kentucky Colonels have advanced to the American Basketball Association final playoffs and will meet the survivor of the hotly-fought series between the Indiana Pacers and Utah Stars.

Kentucky assured itself of a berth in the championship round by ripping the Virginia Squires, 129-117, at Louisville Saturday night to win their semi-final series, four games to two. However, the start of the finals was delayed as the Pacers nipped the Stars, 105-102, at Salt Lake City to deadlock the series at 3-3.

quest of the championship.

"First, I want to say that the Bucks have a terrific team," he said. "But our players are really not involved in this series. We have not yet recovered from the emotional New York series. It was a drain, like getting into the World Series. Our team is let out."

Along with their physical and mental handicaps, the Bullets also are having their expected difficulties in handling Lew Alcindor and Oscar Robertson. Alcindor scored 27 points and had 24 rebounds Sunday and Robertson, in addition to scoring 22 points, held Bullet ace Earl Monroe to 11.

"Oscar did a fantastic job on defense," said Milwaukee Coach Larry Costello, who credited a fine team defense for the big victory. "Monroe had to work for his points and he didn't get many baskets."

As for Alcindor, Costello said they were getting the ball into him much better in the third quarter, when the 7-2 center collected 10 of his points.

Torre Continues Clutch Hitting

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

Joe Torre is a jolly fellow despite an imposing physique and bushy eyebrows which remind sports fans of boxing's Sonny Liston and Sunday night he threw a barbecue for all his neighbors in St. Louis.

Joe can afford it because he is a $100,000-a-year player and he played the good host because he is off to what could be the best season of his career. He has hit safely in all 19 of the St. Louis Cardinals' games, has a .384 season average and came through Sunday with the winning hit in a 5-4 victory over the Philadelphia Phillies.

The victory gave the Cardinals a 12-7 season record and left them only a few percentage points behind the Montreal Expos in the National League's Eastern Division race. The Cardinals, NL champions in 1967 and 1968, finished fourth, 13 games out of first place in the Eastern Division, in 1970.

Torre's single with two out in the ninth drove in Lou Brock with the winning run. The blow climaxed a three-run rally which gave Frank Linzy his first victory of the season for the Cardinals and tagged the Phillies' Woody Fryman with his third straight loss.

The Cincinnati Reds downed the Los Angeles Dodgers, 2-0, after a 4-2 loss, the Chicago Cubs ripped the New York Mets, 9-3, the Pittsburgh Pirates defeated the San Francisco Giants, 6-2, the Montreal Expos shaded the Houston Astros, 2-1, and the Atlanta Braves nipped the San Diego Padres, 4-3, in 10 innings after a 3-2 defeat, in other NL games.

Bill Singer pitched a five-hitter as the Dodgers extended their winning streak to six games but the Reds won the second game of the doubleheader behind the six-hit pitching of Don Gullett. Willie Davis' triple and a double by Steve Garvey were the big blows of a four-run, fourth-inning uprising by the Dodgers in the first game. Tommy Helms singled home one run and Tony Perez homered for the Reds in the second game as Gullett struck out five and walked three in raising his record to 2-0.

Ferguson Jenkins, the only major league pitcher who has won 20 games in each of the last four seasons, won his third game of the current campaign with a nine-hitter for the Cubs.

Ron Hunt's single drove in the second of two unearned runs in the third inning to provide the Expos with their margin of victory at Houston. Jack Billingham and Jim Ray held the Expos to four hits but Bill Stoneman hurled a three-hitter, striking out six and walking two for Montreal.

Larry Stahl's sixth-inning single drove in the winning run for the Padres in the first game at Atlanta despite the 599th homer of Hank Aaron's career and gave Dave Roberts his first win of the season. The homer was Aaron's seventh of the season and left him one short of joining Willie Mays and Babe Ruth as the only players in major league history who have hit 600 career homers.

AMERICAN LEAGUE

It's A Shutout For Jim Kaat

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

Suddenly Kaat is once again in the limelight after recording his second shutout of the season Sunday with a two-hit whitewashing of the New York Yankees, the Twins winning, 8-0.

Baseball experts, in the off season, talked about the magnificence of Jim Perry, the shining future of Bert Blyleven, the relief work of Ron Perranoski and the hopeful comebacks of Dave Boswell and Luis Tiant.

If Kaat was mentioned at all, it was only in a negative manner. Despite a 14-10 record last season, his slim total of four complete games stuck out like a sore thumb. He had lost his zip and was now being referred to as a "junkie" who could no longer be counted on as an effective starter.

But Kaat has apparently decided to prove the experts wrong. After an ineffective relief stint on opening day, the veteran has started four games, completed two, both shutouts, and has a 2-0 record with a 2.89 E.R.A. He shut out the White Sox two weeks ago on 11 hits.

Kaat allowed only a third-inning single to Horace Clarke and an eighth-infield hit by pinch-hitter Ron Woods as Tony Oliva supplied the Twins' offensive punch with a pair of homers and a single, driving in three runs.

In other American League games, Detroit bombed Oakland, 10-2, Washington edged Milwaukee, 3-2, Baltimore defeated California, 7-1, Boston beat Chicago, 5-4, and Kansas City took a 6-4 victory over Cleveland.

Tom McCraw cracked the third straight hit in the 10th inning to give the Senators a come-from-behind victory over the Brewers. McCraw, who had doubled and scored the tying run in the ninth inning, singled up the middle off reliever Dick Ellsworth to score Don Wert from third base with the winning run.

Jim Palmer fired a six-hitter and singled in a pair of runs in the sixth inning to give the Orioles their victory over the Angels. Palmer, now 3-0, beat Jim Maloney, making his first American League start.

Carl Yastrzemski hit a two-run homer and walked to force in the winning run in the eighth inning to give the Red Sox the win over Chicago. Don Eddy, the fifth of six White Sox hurlers, walked Yastrzemski to break a 4-4 tie after a walk to Phil Gagliano and singles by Luis Aparicio and Reggie Smith had loaded the bases.

Ed Kirkpatrick hit a three-run homer and Jerry May a two-run blast in the first inning to lead the Royals to a rain-delayed victory over Cleveland. Kansas City scored all six runs off Steve Hargan, now 0-3, in the first inning.

Tradition Loses In NHL Playoffs

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Stanley Cup play traditionally involves close-checking and low scoring games but tradition has been the first thing to go in the 1971 playoffs.

First the defending champion Boston Bruins, who virtually rewrote National Hockey League scoring records this season, were eliminated by the Montreal Canadiens. Then the St. Louis Blues, Stanley Cup finalists in each of their three years in the league, were upended by the Minnesota North Stars.

Now defense, usually the foundation of a Stanley Cup series, has gone out the window.

That was evident again Sunday as the Chicago Black Hawks routed the New York Rangers, the best defensive team in the NHL this season, 7-1, and the North Stars ripped the Canadiens, one of the closest checking teams in hockey, 5-2. Both best-of-seven series now are tied at two games apiece.

Bobby Hull, held in check by the Rangers through the first three games, scored his first points of the series with a pair of assists within a two-minute span of the second period to ignite the rout of the Rangers. Chicago led 1-0 on Jim Pappin's first period goal when Hull, the second leading scorer in NHL history, set up a goal by Bill White at 5:45 of the second period and another by Danny O'Shea at 7:28.

Chicago coach Billy Reay said he was glad "the club was able to snap back. Now it's a three-game series and two of those games are in Chicago."

That's the same sentiment echoed by Minnesota Coach Jackie Gordon, whose North Stars stunned Montreal in a series in which all four games have been lopsided victories.

Montreay won the first and third games 7-2 and 6-3 while the North Stars took the second and fourth 6-3 and 5-2.

Murray Oliver had a pair of goals and Jean Paul Parise put in the go-ahead score in the third period as the North Stars, the only club ever to beat an established team in Stanley Cup play, evened the series. The fifth game will be played in Montreal Tuesday night.

Recreation Softball

In San Rafael Recreation Department adult softball league games yesterday at Albert Park, The Scrappers outlasted Bermann MFG, 15-11 and Marin Supply edged Don Rumpf Golf Shop, 6-5.

Ralston Helps U.S. To World Cup Win

NEWTON, Mass. (UPI) — Dennis Ralston halted a threatened Australian comeback to lead the United States to victory in the second annual $30,000 world cup professional tennis matches.

Ralston defeated Roy Emerson of Australia 6-1, 6-7, 7-6, in match play Sunday to give the United States a 4-2 triumph in the best-of-seven series. The U.S. team had led 3-1 at the start of the day, but Australia's John Newcombe beat Arthur Ashe in match play to narrow the lead to 3-2.

In other tennis news:

SAN DIEGO (UPI)—The 14-tournament Virginia Slims women's pro tennis series is over and Billie Jean King of Long Beach, Calif., won eight of them.

Mrs. King took the finale, the San Diego Open, Sunday with a 4-6, 7-5, 6-1 victory over San Francisco's Rosemary Casals for a first prize of $2,500.

She finished as the No. 1 money winner in the series at $36,350 while Miss Casals ranked second at $27,750.

DENVER (UPI)—Cliff Drysdale says Australia's Ken Rosewall may not be big in stature, but his tennis shots more than make up for anything he lacks in height.

Rosewall, who is 5-foot 7, whipped South Africa's Drysdale 6-3, 6-2 Sunday to win $5,000 first place prize money in the Denver Tennis invitational.

HOUSTON (UPI) — Second seeded Cliff Richey of San Angelo, Tex., upset top seeded Clark Graebner of New York in easy, straight sets Sunday to win the singles title of the 37th annual River Oaks Tennis Tournament.

Richey's win avenged his loss to Graebner in last year's finals. Richey never lost his service in winning the best of five match 6-2, 6-1, 6-2.

Golf

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (UPI) —Lee Trevino, the Texas golfer who failed to qualify for the tournament of champions this year, is making plans for next year's tournament after winning a $12,000 consolation prize Sunday.

Trevino put together four birdies and some steady putting to win the Tallahassee Open with a 15-under 273. It was his first victory since the 1970 National Airlines open more than a year ago.

MIAMI (UPI)—Watch out for lady golfer Sandra Haynie when she gets nervous and flustered.

"I was in trouble all day long," Miss Haynie said Sunday after shooting an even par 74 for a three-stroke victory and $4,500 first prize in the Burdine's ladies invitational golf tournament.

Auto Racing

TRENTON, N.J. (UPI) — It took a few blown engines and a narrow escape to give young Mike Mosley his first USAC championship victory.

Mosley, a 26-year-old driver from Brownsburg, Ind., took first prize money of $13,850 in the Trentonian 200 Sunday after a number of the favorites had dropped out.

Mosley took the lead on the 36th lap and led the rest of the way,

Boxing

TAMPA, Fla (UPI) — Thirty-two year old Bob Foster won a unanimous 15-round decision over back-pedalling Ray Anderson Saturday night to retain his light heavyweight championship. Anderson's manager, Yank Durham left the ring in disgust before the fight was over, and said later, "I think it's a disgrace. I'm disgraced to be associated with a man who would run like that."

Tam Seventh In El Cerrito Track Relays

Despite poor weather that kept times down and a bad ankle that kept Gerald Robertson down, Tamalpais High School took seventh place Saturday in the El Cerrito track and field relays at El Cerrito High.

Tam, the only Marin County Athletic League school to figure in the scoring, took second in the two-mile relay and third in the 480 shuttle low hurdles, and captured another third when Robertson, operating off a sprained ankle, triple jumped 44 feet, 10¼ inches.

That leap eclipsed the MCAL record for the triple jump by more than three feet — it was astounding considering that it was the first time Robertson ever competed in the event. In his specialty, the high jump, the ankle kept him from placing.

The Indians' two mile relay team of Paul Ringleman, Vian Collier, Mike Arago and Carlos Martinez was clocked in 8:12.7, two seconds behind first place El Cerrito.

Lacrosse Victory For Novato Team

Novato's Parks and Recreation Department squeaked by crosstown rival Church of the Latter Day Saints yesterday, 7-6 in a Northern California Lacrosse Association junior division match at Novato High School.

Dick Tetu of Parks and Rec and Dan Daly of LDS tied for high-scoring honors with three goals apiece.

FIRE DISASTER — One of the victims of an early morning fire in Seattle yesterday is taken from the apartment building in which at least 13 persons died when the blaze swept through the old three-story structure. About 50 persons, mostly elderly, had lived in the building.

12 Die In Seattle Apartment Fire

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

At least 29 persons, including 13 children and teen-agers, died during the weekend in fires that struck an old apartment building in Seattle, and homes in Ohio, St. Paul, Boston, and New York City.

Many of the elderly tenants of an old Seattle apartment building, in which 12 persons perished, were forced to leap from windows to escape the flames.

Six of the victims were over 60. Three were killed when they jumped from their apartments. Ten others were injured, at least one critically.

Several pool players from an all-night parlor next door rushed to help the residents when the blaze broke out.

"It was a rip-roaring inferno when we got there," said Morris Montgomery, who ran from the Paradise Billiards Parlor. "People were hanging from the windows by their hands."

Three young children died of asphyxiation and a fourth was seriously injured in a fire which broke out in a frame house in East Cleveland, Ohio.

The children were identified as Charles Walker, 6, Madeline Walker, 4, and Christo Davis, 2. Lloyd Walker, 5, was injured. The two mothers of the children were not at home at the time.

In Gallipolis, Ohio, Bert Yost, 54, his son Bobby, 17, and daughter Thelma, 24, and two neighbor children, Jeff Dobbins, 16, and Paul Kent Jr., 14, died in a fire that swept the Yost home.

Mrs. Yost and another son, Cecil, 22, were hospitalized. Firemen said the rural home was almost destroyed by the time they arrived.

Five St. Paul, Minn., children alone in their frame home, perished in a blaze apparently touched off by a faulty gas stove.

Four of the victims were children of the Albert Leon Gartman family: Michael Sheppard, 17, a stepson; Albert Gartman Jr., 13, Donna Kay Gartman, 10, and David Gartman, 9. Thomas Burnett, 17, who was visiting, also died.

Joseph LaMonica, 79, Boston, died of an apparent heart attack while fleeing his burning home Saturday night.

A 9-year-old boy died in a fire in Brooklyn, and a 3-year-old girl was killed in a blaze in Manhattan Sunday.

Prominent Chinese Figure Dies at 77

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— The one-time acting premier of Nationalist China who also served as the nation's foreign minister during World War ii, died here Sunday night.

T. V. Soong, once one of the most powerful figures in China who in recent years was a leader in Chinese-American banking circles, collapsed and died at a dinner party at the home of Edward Eu, chairman of the Bank of Canton. He was 77.

The immediate cause of death could not be determined. An autopsy was scheduled for later today.

Soong became Nationalist Chinese foreign minister following the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor. He held the post until 1945 when he briefly became acting premier of the nation.

A member of a prominent Chinese family, Soong was the brother of Madam Chiang Kai-shek and of Madame Sun Yat-sen, wife of China's revolutionary hero.

His brother, Soong Ching-ling, currently is one of Communist China' two vice chairmen (vice presidents.)

Soong's brother-in-law, H.H. Kung, also served as prime minister and in other high posts. Soong was one of China's most powerful and influential men until before the Communist takeover. He and Kung were reputed to be China's two richest men before the revolution and it was believed they had sent much of their wealth to the United States.

Some Nationalist Chinese leaders have blamed Soong and Kung for the corruption that led to the Nationalist government's downfall. Mao Tse-tung, the Chinese Communist party chairman, listed Soong in second place, behind Chiang Kai-shek, on a list of "Kuomintang (Nationalist) war criminals."

Soong's father, Charles Jones Soong, was a Shanghai merchant marine who lived in the United States as a child and studied theology for three years at Vanderbilt University in Nashville, Tenn.

Born in Kwangtung in 1894, Soong was educated at Harvard and Columbia, as well as St. John's University in Shanghai.

Soong was a governor of the Central Bank of China from 1923 to 1933. He joined the ministry of finance in 1928, leaving in 1932 to serve as vice president of China's Executive Yuan (parliament).

In 1933 he was chief delegate to the World Economic Development Congress in London and spent many of the prewar years attempting to finance the Chinese government.

Following his brief tenure as president of the Yuan (a post equivalent to the premiership) Soong became governor of Kwangtung province, a post he held until the Communist takeover of China in 1949.

After leaving China following the Communist victory, Soong came to New York where he continued to be active in Chinese banking affairs.

3 Saved — 25 Hours In Sea

FREEPORT, Tex. (UPI)—A 50-year-old doctor, his wife and their 17-year-old daughter survived the explosion and sinking of their cabin cruiser during the weekend and then floated in the Gulf of Mexico for 25 hours with their life jackets lashed together.

They were rescued Sunday afternoon eight miles off the Texas coast. Coast Guard officials guessed they floated for 30 miles.

During their ordeal they suffered from sunburn, exhaustion, rope burn and exposure. They were taken to a hospital in Houston where they were reported in satisfactory condition.

Dr. Sheldon Tucker, 50, his wife, Corrine, and their daughter Wendy, 17, were rescued at 2:30 p.m. Sunday eight miles off Freeport in the Gulf. Their 38-foot cabin cruiser, The Sea Lair, exploded and burned about 1:30 p.m. Saturday while they were on a fishing trip out of Freeport.

Tucker, a general practitioner from Houston, tied himself, his wife and his daughter together through their life jackets so they would not be separated in the bobbing waters.

They were rescued by the shrimp boat, The Captain Eddie, run by Joe R. Salinas.

"When they pulled us aboard we couldn't walk," Wendy said. "They took us to their beds and we went to sleep immediately."

She said moments before the shrimp boat rescued them, they saw a buoy "and we were trying to swim to it before dark."

"But we couldn't have made it because the buoy was too far away," she said. "But we just didn't want to spend another night in the cold water.

"The explosion and the fire happened so quick," she said. "It caught in the engine compartment. We couldn't get to the fire extinguisher or the radio. I guess it was about five minutes and we had to jump.

"We watched the boat burn but we turned our heads and didn't watch it sink," she said.

"At night Daddy tied our life preservers so we couldn't get separated," she said. "We saw several shrimpers and yelled and hollered. But they were so far away that they couldn't see us."

No Complaint In Car Theft Case

No charges have been filed in Marin Municipal Court against Robin Allan Patterson, 20, of Novato, who was arrested April 19 on suspicion of car theft.

Novato police said that Patterson had had a tow truck remove an inoperable car owned by another Novato man from in front of the other man's home.

Softballers Win Doubleheader

Shortstop Ron Blum scored the winning run from second base on an infield out in the sixth inning of the opener and hit a leadoff homer in the bottom of the seventh of the nightcap to give the San Anselmo team the sweep.

Colonels Reach ABA Finals

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

The Kentucky Colonels have advanced to the American Basketball Association final playoffs and will meet the survivor of the hotly-fought series between the Indiana Pacers and Utah Stars.

Kentucky assured itself of a berth in the championship round by ripping the Virginia Squires, 129-117, at Louisville Saturday night to win their semi-final series, four games to two. However, the start of the finals was delayed as the Pacers nipped the Stars, 105-102, at Salt Lake City to deadlock the series at 3-3.

V.D... the chance of a lifetime

...and this year over 2½ million teenagers and adults will take it and lose. Without proper prevention or treatment they'll be betting against permanent and crippling disability.

V.D. knows no boundaries. It can get on an airplane, drive a car, move to a new neighborhood. This year more nice people from nice families and nice neighborhoods will get more V.D. than measles, mumps and hepatitis combined.

It's the nation's number 1 epidemic and no vaccine is in sight. But it can be prevented and it can be cured. Your local pharmacist is a professional source for medically recognized products to aid in the prevention of V.D

quest of the championship.

"First, I want to say that the Bucks have a terrific team," he said. "But our players are really not involved in this series. We have not yet recovered from the emotional New York series. It was a drain, like getting into the World Series. Our team is let out."

Along with their physical and mental handicaps, the Bullets also are having their expected difficulties in handling Lew Alcindor and Oscar Robertson. Alcindor scored 27 points and had 24 rebounds Sunday and Robertson, in addition to scoring 22 points, held Bullet ace Earl Monroe to 11.

"Oscar did a fantastic job on defense," said Milwaukee Coach Larry Costello, who credited a fine team defense for the big victory. "Monroe had to work for his points and he didn't get many baskets."

As for Alcindor, Costello said they were getting the ball into him much better in the third quarter, when the 7-2 center collected 10 of his points.

RAP SESSION

Sen. Behr Sees Youth Building Better Values

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

Marin's state senator, Peter H. Behr of Tiburon, has made his mark on the Establishment while staying within its conventional values, but is convinced the new generation is building a significantly better system of values.

"The older generation felt that a proper goal was the reasonable quest, within certain frameworks of morality, for money, and along with money, position, and along with position, power.

"The younger generation questions this and is more inclined to ask not 'who you are,' but 'what you are.' Not 'what you have done,' but 'what you have been.' This is moving away from the subjective, egocentric approach to a different value system — which is certainly a more proper one."

But the senator admitted to an occasional "sense of anger at the ease with which the younger generation presumes the priorities of the older generation may be reordered, and also the complete discarding of many of the priorities of the older generation which the older generation still believes are valid."

Behr cited "the need to make a reasonable profit, the dignity of work, perhaps for work itself and what it brings to a person's character and enjoyment," as values still "of great meaning and depth" to many older persons.

If you attempt to bury this whole concept . . . focusing on the unhappy byproducts of the private enterprise system, with no concern and no appreciation of its productivity and what it means to our way of life and our overall enjoyment, then I think you begin to understand why many older people get quite angry."

Behr acknowledged that "there's always been, and always will be a generation gap," but that the gap was wider than ever before because this younger generation questions the basic values of the "system."

The 54-year-old attorney has three children, a married daughter, 27, who graduated from Stanford University, a son, 23, who graduated last June from Yale University and is a Navy officer, and a second daughter, 20, who is a sophomore at the University of California, Berkeley.

Behr said he was optimistic that the future would see improvements in "the human quality of life" as well as in the quality of the air you breathe and the water you drink. "One has to be an optimist to some extent in politics, and I come by it naturally," he said.

"I have great respect and faith in the younger generation. It's the most brilliant and most energetic generation I've ever seen.

"Now, of course, there's this overlay of youngsters who have become lost partly through drugs or partly because of the very complexity of life and the difficult moral changes it may bring. But I don't think this is so different in percentage from what took place in my generation.

"I think, however, that the formerly submerged dropouts and misfits — temporary dropouts and often temporary misfits — have become exceedingly visible and their bizzare appearance — at least bizzare sometimes to my generation — creates an additional gap between the generations which is very unfortunate. I think it will tend to lessen as more and more people realize that appearance is simply a new youth style."

PETER H. BEHR
"Optimism, moments of anger"

He predicted that the younger generation will lose some of its zest for new values as it matures, but will be far more successful than preceding generations in holding on to its own values. Certainly marked for permanent discard, he said, was "the accumulation of wealth which in our generation we used as a synonym for security." Position and power also were marked as discarded goals by the younger generation, he said.

Behr rejected the claim by militants that the nation's political institutions do not respond to the need for change. "Our political process does respond — not as fast as many of us would wish — and I think it's possible to work within the system. Where pressures become more acute, response will quicken.

"The very nature of our system, while it doesn't lend itself to great speed, has proved itself adaptable to great speed during great emergencies.

"And I think we're faced with a number of great emergencies, and I think we're going to see a good deal of fast action on the part of government — once government becomes less schizophrenic and understands that what is happening is not the result of some passing fashion, but a basic underlying groundswell of changed philosophy which government has the responsibility of implementing — expeditiously."

Agnew Smells 'Odor'

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Vice President Spiro T. Agnew today praised J. Edgar Hoover as a "dedicated, steel-willed public servant with 20-20 vision" on national security and crime, and said criticism of the FBI chief has "an unpleasant political odor."

In the most detailed defense of the FBI director by a top official of the Nixon administration, Agnew said recent attacks on Hoover came mainly from Democratic presidential aspirants.

In a speech, he mentioned specifically Sens. George S. McGovern and Edmund S. Muskie.

"These opportunists are being aided and abetted by certain of their friends in the liberal news media who automatically shout 'right on' every time someone claims his civil liberties have been threatened regardless of the transparency of such charges," Agnew said.

The vice President, in the text of a prepared speech for the Southern Gas Association in New Orleans, said he was sure most allegations against Hoover and the FBI would vaporize or be disproved.

But he expressed concern that the agency could be damaged even if the allegations were refuted.

"If the FBI suffers from these attacks, all law enforcement in America will suffer," Agnew said.

"And we can ill afford that, particularly at a time in our history when the FBI and the police of this nation have their hands full maintaining order and preserving our institutions of government from those who tear down our society."

Agnew was speaking in the home state of House Democratic Whip Hale Boggs, who triggered fresh controversy over FBI activity and Hoover's leadership with charges of FBI wiretapping or surveillance of members of Congress.

Agnew did not mention Boggs by name, referring to him only as a "wellknown congressman who claimed that his and other members' phones had been tapped and demanded the immediate resignation of J. Edgar Hoover."

Suggesting that Boggs had failed to prove his contentions, Agnew said "I don't think that case deserves any further comment."

The chairman of the House Judiciary Committee, Rep. Emanuel Celler, D-N.Y., said Sunday that whether or not congressmen's phones might be tapped, talk about it had inhibited private conversations of many lawmakers.

Agnew dismissed the allegations, saying with the FBI's heavy responsibility for fighting crime "there just isn't much time available for spying on Congress."

He said attacks on Hoover and the FBI usually has come from subversives, mobsters, extremists and anarchists, but the latest is from another direction.

Inflation Under Control, Nixon Tells Businessmen

Urges More Optimism For Free Enterprise

WASHINGTON (UPI) — To the applause of businessmen, President Nixon reaffirmed his strong faith today in the nation's free enterprise system and expressed determination to prevent a rekindling of inflationary fires.

Three thousand delegates to the annual convention of the U. S. Chamber of Commerce interrupted Nixon several times for applause during his speech touching on America's future.

The most enthusiastic applause came when he spoke of his continuing drive to wind down the war, and expressed confidence in free enterprise.

He departed several times from his text to express his confidence in the soundness and health of the economy and to appeal for faith in the future among all segments of the public —business as well as private citizens.

He said there was evidence that "the worst of inflation is behind us, and I am determined to see to it that it stays behind us."

Nixon said the nation was on the way to the kind of expansion that it "needs to provide new jobs for workingmen and new opportunities for businessmen."

Touching on Vietnam —with antiwar protests continuing in Washington —Nixon said: "Our goal is a total withdrawal of all American forces from Vietnam in a way that will assure the return of our prisoners of war and will give the South Vietnamese a chance to prevent a Communist takeover. You can be confident that we have a policy which will achieve that goal."

The President added that everyone has "a right to be confident that the United States will use its strength only to build peace with freedom, never to destroy it."

Nixon urged rejection of the counsel of "new isolationists" and called for confidence in the system that he said had made America the "most generous and compassionate nation on the face of the earth."

"The system that has delivered more self-respect to more human beings than any other system devised by man deserves to be treated with more respect itself," the President said.

"The only way this nation can succeed is for the men and women who believe in its future, who are confident in themselves and their country, to stand up and be counted," he declared.

The audience stood and applauded several times during the half-hour address in Constitution Hall, two blocks from the White House.

"Faith in the American future has never been misplaced," Nixon told the businessmen's convention. "It is not misplaced today. In dealing with the future of this country, if you want to be a realist, you have to be an optimist."

There is no disputing that — as antiwar protesters and others have charged —that "there are plenty of wrongs to be righted in our society," Nixon said.

"But let us never forget this: we shall never make the changes that are needed by throwing out our principles, throwing away our heritage or throwing up our hands."

Calling for a new surge of optimism and confidence in the nation's future, he said: "It is the confidence that comes from knowing that the character of the American people is strong; that the spirit and will of the United States is powerful; and that the free economic system —that supports all we can and do for ourselves and for others around the world —is sound and healthy."

Nixon insisted that inflation was now under control and forecast a period of solid, sustainable economic expansion.

He cited cost-of-living statistics for the first quarter of 1971 as evidence of economic improvement. Living costs that rose 6 per cent in 1969 were reduced to 2.7 per cent annual rate during the January-March period, Nixon noted.

"We have cut the rate of inflation in half," he declared. "the figures ahead will have their ups and downs but the worst of inflation is behind us and I am determined to see that it stays behind us."

The President said he would use the powers of his office to persuade business and labor to act responsibly to control inflation in the future.

"Fighting inflation is not just government's business, it's everybody's business," he said.

He told businessmen they could be confident that full employment with price stability —a "new prosperity" —would be achieved with free markets, free competition, free bargaining and "free men."

He asked the businessmen for support of his effort to overhaul the nation's welfare system. But he assured them that he opposed "any scheme that makes it more profitable for an able-bodied person to sit at home rather than to go to work."

Nixon also said he opposed a guaranteed annual wage.

"The goal of the American system is not to guarantee everybody a living; it is to guarantee everybody an opportunity, a fair chance to be rewarded for his work."

ARRESTS AT PENTAGON SIT-IN

A small group of antiwar protesters were arrested this morning at one of the entrances to the Pentagon when they staged a sit-in that blocked the doors. A new stage in the continuing series of antiwar protests in the nation's capital, avowedly more militant than last week's, began this morning with protesters attempting to disrupt a Senate Foreign Relations Committee hearing. 'Rap Session' Series Begins In I-J Today

The Independent-Journal today introduces a monthlong series of interviews — called "Rap Session" — which it is hoped will produce a broader understanding of the varying points of view that serve to unite or to divide Americans.

Is the nation really divided into two camps, at odds with each other: youth and the over-thirties? Is either of those camps, if such exist, a monolithic subculture, uniform in its point of view and united against the other?

For the next four weeks, the I-J will publish daily interviews of persons over 30 and of youth, alternating the older and younger generations.

And during those four weeks, the I-J will simultaneously run a letter-writing contest (see details on page 16) on how readers think youth and the over-thirties may reach a better understanding of each other.

The daily interviews with as varied as possible a sampling of the local citizenry will seek opinion as to what's right and wrong with our society; what, if anything, can or should be done to improve it; whether our institutions permit change, or are so rigid that revolution is inevitable.

Pair Again Sailing In Rowboat

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — British adventurer John Fairfax and his girl friend shoved off for Sydney, Australia, today in their attempt to row 8,000 miles across the Pacific.

Fairfax, who already conquered the Atlantic, shouted "See you in Sydney" to newsmen aboard a press boat that left the two about 11 miles off the coast.

The pair pushed off from Fisherman's Wharf before dawn in their 35-foot rowboat "Britannia II," similar to the craft that Fairfax rowed in his solo journey across the Atlantic.

The couple made it less than a mile outside the Golden Gate in their first attempt last week when rough weather forced them back.

Newsmen said Fairfax experienced "some difficulty" with the waves around the San Francisco bay today but after that "the going was pretty good."

Fairfax says his boat, which has only a five foot beam and draws a foot of water, is "easy to row."

Reds Assert Yanks Fighting With Cong

PARIS (UPI)—A Viet Cong spokesman said today some U.S. Army deserters have joined the Viet Cong ranks and are fighting their own compatriots on the battlefields of South Vietnam.

Dung Dinh Thao, chief spokesman for the Viet Cong delegation to the Paris peace talks, said, "a certain number of American soldiers are fighting in the ranks of the National Liberation Front (Viet Cong)."

Hoffa Leaves Prison To Give Testimony

Dramatic Increase In Air Strikes

SAIGON (UPI)—Nearly 100 times since the Nov. 1, 1968, bombing halt U.S. planes have struck targets in North Vietnam and the frequency of such attacks is increasing, military sources say.

The U.S. Command began reporting its "protective reaction" air strikes against antiaircraft sites in North Vietnam last May. From the first reported strike until the end of 1970 there were seven such air raids.

So far this year there have been at least 30, military spokesmen said.

At the time of the first reported "protective reaction" air strike against North Vietnam, U.S. military sources said that "suppressive fire" had been employed against North Vietnamese antiaircraft sites more than 40 times between Nov. 1, 1968, and May 2, 1970. However, on ay 27, when the next such "protective reaction" was announced, the same source reexamined his records and said there had been "about 60" such strikes.

The reason for the increased frequency of such air strikes this year is that U.S. commanders changed the rules governing American aircraft flying over or near North Vietnam, military sources said.

During the first 26 months after former President Johnson announced the end of the bombing pause, American planes flying over or near North Vietnam were forbidden to fire at antiaircraft sites unless they were fired upon.

This year the rule was amended due to the increased deployment of SAM2 missiles and increased use of radar controlled conventional antiaircraft batteries in North Vietnam. Now a U.S. pilot may begin "suppressive fire" upon receiving electronic evidence of a radar "lock-on" by the communist antiaircraft gun or

FIRE DISASTER — One of the victims of an early morning fire in Seattle yesterday is taken from the apartment building in which at least 13 persons died when the blaze swept through the old three-story structure. About 50 persons, mostly elderly, had lived in the building.

12 Die In Seattle Apartment Fire

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

At least 29 persons, including 13 children and teen-agers, died during the weekend in fires that struck an old apartment building in Seattle, and homes in Ohio, St. Paul, Boston, and New York City.

Many of the elderly tenants of an old Seattle apartment building, in which 12 persons perished, were forced to leap from windows to escape the flames.

Six of the victims were over 60. Three were killed when they jumped from their apartments. Ten others were injured, at least one critically.

Several pool players from an all-night parlor next door rushed to help the residents when the blaze broke out.

"It was a rip-roaring inferno when we got there," said Morris Montgomery, who ran from the Paradise Billiards Parlor. "People were hanging from the windows by their hands."

Three young children died of asphyxiation and a fourth was seriously injured in a fire which broke out in a frame house in East Cleveland, Ohio.

The children were identified as Charles Walker, 6, Madeline Walker, 4, and Christo Davis, 2. Lloyd Walker, 5, was injured. The two mothers of the children were not at home at the time.

In Gallipolis, Ohio, Bert Yost, 54, his son Bobby, 17, and daughter Thelma, 24, and two neighbor children, Jeff Dobbins, 16, and Paul Kent Jr., 14, died in a fire that swept the Yost home.

Mrs. Yost and another son, Cecil, 22, were hospitalized. Firemen said the rural home was almost destroyed by the time they arrived.

Five St. Paul, Minn., children alone in their frame home, perished in a blaze apparently touched off by a faulty gas stove.

Four of the victims were children of the Albert Leon Gartman family: Michael Sheppard, 17, a stepson; Albert Gartman Jr., 13, Donna Kay Gartman, 10, and David Gartman, 9. Thomas Burnett, 17, who was visiting, also died.

Joseph LaMonica, 79, Boston, died of an apparent heart attack while fleeing his burning home Saturday night.

A 9-year-old boy died in a fire in Brooklyn, and a 3-year-old girl was killed in a blaze in Manhattan Sunday.

Prominent Chinese Figure Dies at 77

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— The one-time acting premier of Nationalist China who also served as the nation's foreign minister during World War ii, died here Sunday night.

T. V. Soong, once one of the most powerful figures in China who in recent years was a leader in Chinese-American banking circles, collapsed and died at a dinner party at the home of Edward Eu, chairman of the Bank of Canton. He was 77.

The immediate cause of death could not be determined. An autopsy was scheduled for later today.

Soong became Nationalist Chinese foreign minister following the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor. He held the post until 1945 when he briefly became acting premier of the nation.

A member of a prominent Chinese family, Soong was the brother of Madam Chiang Kai-shek and of Madame Sun Yat-sen, wife of China's revolutionary hero.

His brother, Soong Ching-ling, currently is one of Communist China' two vice chairmen (vice presidents.)

Soong's brother-in-law, H.H. Kung, also served as prime minister and in other high posts. Soong was one of China's most powerful and influential men until before the Communist takeover. He and Kung were reputed to be China's two richest men before the revolution and it was believed they had sent much of their wealth to the United States.

Some Nationalist Chinese leaders have blamed Soong and Kung for the corruption that led to the Nationalist government's downfall. Mao Tse-tung, the Chinese Communist party chairman, listed Soong in second place, behind Chiang Kai-shek, on a list of "Kuomintang (Nationalist) war criminals."

Soong's father, Charles Jones Soong, was a Shanghai merchant marine who lived in the United States as a child and studied theology for three years at Vanderbilt University in Nashville, Tenn.

Born in Kwangtung in 1894, Soong was educated at Harvard and Columbia, as well as St. John's University in Shanghai.

Soong was a governor of the Central Bank of China from 1923 to 1933. He joined the ministry of finance in 1928, leaving in 1932 to serve as vice president of China's Executive Yuan (parliament).

In 1933 he was chief delegate to the World Economic Development Congress in London and spent many of the prewar years attempting to finance the Chinese government.

Following his brief tenure as president of the Yuan (a post equivalent to the premiership) Soong became governor of Kwangtung province, a post he held until the Communist takeover of China in 1949.

After leaving China following the Communist victory, Soong came to New York where he continued to be active in Chinese banking affairs.

3 Saved — 25 Hours In Sea

FREEPORT, Tex. (UPI)—A 50-year-old doctor, his wife and their 17-year-old daughter survived the explosion and sinking of their cabin cruiser during the weekend and then floated in the Gulf of Mexico for 25 hours with their life jackets lashed together.

They were rescued Sunday afternoon eight miles off the Texas coast. Coast Guard officials guessed they floated for 30 miles.

During their ordeal they suffered from sunburn, exhaustion, rope burn and exposure. They were taken to a hospital in Houston where they were reported in satisfactory condition.

Dr. Sheldon Tucker, 50, his wife, Corrine, and their daughter Wendy, 17, were rescued at 2:30 p.m. Sunday eight miles off Freeport in the Gulf. Their 38-foot cabin cruiser, The Sea Lair, exploded and burned about 1:30 p.m. Saturday while they were on a fishing trip out of Freeport.

Tucker, a general practitioner from Houston, tied himself, his wife and his daughter together through their life jackets so they would not be separated in the bobbing waters.

They were rescued by the shrimp boat, The Captain Eddie, run by Joe R. Salinas.

"When they pulled us aboard we couldn't walk," Wendy said. "They took us to their beds and we went to sleep immediately."

She said moments before the shrimp boat rescued them, they saw a buoy "and we were trying to swim to it before dark."

"But we couldn't have made it because the buoy was too far away," she said. "But we just didn't want to spend another night in the cold water.

"The explosion and the fire happened so quick," she said. "It caught in the engine compartment. We couldn't get to the fire extinguisher or the radio. I guess it was about five minutes and we had to jump.

"We watched the boat burn but we turned our heads and didn't watch it sink," she said.

"At night Daddy tied our life preservers so we couldn't get separated," she said. "We saw several shrimpers and yelled and hollered. But they were so far away that they couldn't see us."

No Complaint In Car Theft Case

No charges have been filed in Marin Municipal Court against Robin Allan Patterson, 20, of Novato, who was arrested April 19 on suspicion of car theft.

Novato police said that Patterson had had a tow truck remove an inoperable car owned by another Novato man from in front of the other man's home.

QUAKERS DENY NIXON — Some 123 Quakers were arrested Sunday in front of the White House under a law limiting the number of demonstrators permitted there. The Quakers were holding a vigil to emphasize they do not feel that President Nixon, also a Quaker, is a pacifist in the sense of the historic Quaker peace testimony made to King Charles II in 1661.

New Series Of Protests Starts

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The multitude which marched on the U.S. Capitol during the weekend was reduced to only a few hundred bed-rolled and bedraggled demonstrators today as antiwar organizers opened what they said would be another two weeks of more direct, and perhaps violent, protest.

The plans to tie up commuter rush hour traffic, shut down whole segments of the government and trigger a strike in the bureaucracy seemed out-of-reach as the remaining demonstrators played frisbee across the street from the White House, warmed themselves beside campfires along the Potomac River or slept in the backs of camper vans.

The Peoples Coalition for Peace and Justice, steering the remaining part of the spring offensive, was planning to open its attack with a peaceful invasion of congressional offices. Welfare mothers, some women's groups and perhaps some of the antiwar Vietnam veterans who demonstrated last week said they would join portions of the lobbying.

The coalition is led by Chicago Seven defendant Rennie Davis and generally is regarded as more militant than the National Peace Action Coalition which fathered Saturday's march on the seat of government.

The demonstrators who poured into Washington Saturday were urged by blue and white stickers and flags to "Stay for May" or "strike May 5." The early May segment of the protest is being pushed by the May Day Tribe, a segment of the coalition, also under Davis' control but containing more of Weathermen-type militants.

Jerry Gordon, national coordinator of Saturday's march, said the crowds here and in San Francisco were "peaceful and orderly, precisely as programmed and announced." He said the Washington crowd numbered in excess of 500,000, although the official police estimate was 175,000.

Whatever the figures, the crowd was one of the biggest ever seen in Washington, occupying the entire West Lawn of the Capitol, spilling down the hill into the Mall and backing up Pennsylvania Avenue toward the White House almost as far as the eye could see.

There were more blacks than in previous demonstrations, and a larger representation from labor and other groups. There were only a handful of arrests, the largest single incident occurring Sunday at the White House where 123 Quakers were arrested for crossing police lines on the Pennsylvania Avenue sidewalk in front of the mansion.

Why Brown Berets Used Violence — 'Time For Speaking Is Over'

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—A young Mexican-American says Brown Berets brought a violent climax to San Francisco's massive peace demonstration Saturday because "the time for speaking is over."

The march and rally at the Polo Grounds in Golden Gate Park drew 150,000 persons, making it the largest peace demonstration held on the West Coast.

The Berets, a militant Chicano group, forced the organizers of the rally to call it an abrupt halt when they seized the speaker's platform.

Samuel Sanchez, 25, said Sunday he was among a La Raza contingent that marched in the parade. He estimated his group at 8,000 "from all over the state."

Sanchez said he did not participate in the takeover of the platform but said "those who did had the contingent's backing."

"The whole idea behind the peace march was to get people together and talk," he said. "We feel that the time for speaking is over."

The seven-mile march through downtown San Francisco and subsequent rally drew business executives, trade unionists, servicemen and veterans.

"We didn't have this breadth of support in 1969," Lafferty said, referring to the Nov. 15, 1969, Moratorium Day march and rally in San Francisco.

Many began leaving when the Brown Berets took over the speaker's platform and launched into a series of rambling revolutionary tirades punctuated with obscenities.

WIRE NEWS BRIEFS From Everywhere

Indian Protest

NEW DELHI (UPI)—The Indian government charged Pakistan today with violating diplomatic immunity by searching and harassing the wife of the head of its diplomatic mission in East Pakistan when she tried to leave the country.

Pakistan presented India with a diplomatic note which indicated it might ask for the repatriation of rebel Bengali staff members who are holding its diplomatic mission in Calcutta. It also said that safe conduct for Indian diplomats and documents in East Pakistan would be provided "strictly on the principle of reciprocity."

The two latest developments in the diplomatic war of nerves came with the passing of the deadline for formal termination of India's diplomatic post in the East Pakistan capital of Dacca and the corresponding end of Pakistan's diplomatic representation in Calcutta.

Space Mystery

MOSCOW (UPI)—The Soviet orbital station Salute swept around the Earth today, its future mission and its size a mystery despite a brief linkup with Soyuz 10.

The Soviet news agency Tass said Soyuz 10 soft-landed early Sunday in central Asia after the briefest Soviet manned space flight in four years —just short of two days. Its three-man crew, commander Vladimir Shatalov, Alexei Yeliseyev and Nikolai Rukavishinkov, returned safely aboard the ship.

Salute, launched a week ago, and Soyuz 10, sent aloft Friday, docked early Saturday morning and flew in a linkup for five and a half hours, Tass said.

The news agency added that they separated and flew in tandem until Soyuz 10 blasted out of orbit and returned to Earth. Salute continued to circle the Earth, its size and future mission a mystery.

Abortion Report

WASHINGTON (UPI) —New York City has registered a slight decrease in its birth rate and a steep decline in pregnancy-related deaths since abortions became legal last year, according to a city health official.

Dr. Jean Pakter, director of the city's Bureau of Maternity Services and Family Planning, said there were 34,826 births in New York City during the first three months of this year —a 4 per cent decline from the 36,280 births during the same period in 1970.

The state's abortion law, effective since July 1, also has resulted in a 56 per cent reduction in pregnancy-related deaths in a comparison of the same three-month periods.

Agnew On Protest

NEW ORLEANS (UPI)—Vice President Spiro T. Agnew said Sunday the number of persons attending the weekend antiwar rally on the capitol grounds was not overly impressive.

"The American people must not be misled simply because some 200,000 demonstrators marched in the streets of Washington," Agnew said. "After all, they are less than 2 per cent of our population."

Agnew, scheduled to address the Southern Gas Association conventioned today, said he agreed with the right of dissent but disagreed with the reasoning behind Saturday's demonstration.

"That dissent was organized on the basis that the President's policies of withdrawal from Vietnam are not correct," Agnew said. "I think they are entirely correct.

"I respect their right to dissent and demonstrate," he said. "I think demonstration, peaceful and orderly, is a legitimate means of dissent under our system. I wouldn't have given my permission for them to use the Capitol grounds had I not felt that way."

Israeli Plan Delay

Israel's plan for reopening the Suez Canal has been caught up in "clarification" proceedings in Washington and has not been relayed to Cairo, official Israeli sources said today.

Israeli newspapers said Prime Minister Golda Meir's government and the United States again are at odds, this time over at least two of the three main points in the Israeli stance.

The two allies were reported to differ over Israel's refusal to make withdrawal commitments and its demands for an Egyptian peace declaration.

Mrs. Meir met with her cabinet for three hours in Jerusalem Sunday to discuss these differences and begin digging in for what Israeli newspapers said will be tough negotiations when Secretary of State William P. Rogers arrives. Rogers was leaving Washington this morning for London, Paris and the Mideast.

'Spring Musicale' Slated Wednesday

San Rafael High School's concert and symphonic bands will present the sixth annual "Spring Musicale" at 8 p.m. Wednesday at the school auditorium.

The symphonic band will present "Elergy and Fanfare-March," by San Francisco State composer Roger Nixon while the concert band will feature the "Hebrides Suite" by Grundman and "Niagara" by Richard Fote.

Viet Cong Ends Battlefield Lull

SAIGON (UPI)—The Viet Cong ended a battlefield lull in South Vietnam this weekend with a series of attacks against U.S. and South Vietnamese bases the length and breadth of the country. Today they attacked six miles from Saigon—closest such attack in a year.

A spokesman said 10 Communist sappers attacked a regional force post six miles southwest of the capital early this morning inflicting "light" casualties on the defenders but no fatalities. Communist losses were not known.

In what the U.S. Command called six "significant" shelling attacks Sunday and early today the Communists killed six Americans and wounded 47. Two of the battles were within 23 miles of Saigon which, until the sapper attack, had been the closest fighting to the capital this year.

The South Vietnamese Command reported a total of 54 Communist-initiated incidents in the 24 hours ending at 6 a.m. today—the most since March 29. The incidents included 25 shelling attacks which killed five civilians and one soldier and wounded 12 persons.

During the attacks an American ammunition dump exploded two miles west of Qui Nhon, killing a South Vietnamese militiaman and wounding 10 militiamen and a civilian. Authorities said the cause of the explosion was "unknown."

Rogers Starts Tour Of Europe, Mideast

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Secretary of State William P. Rogers left today for a two-week tour of Europe and the Middle East in an effort to speed an interim agreement between Egypt and Israel on reopening the Suez Canal.

Rogers' special Air jforce jetliner left from nearby Andrews Air Force Base for London, where he will hold talks with British Foreign Secretary Sir Alec Douglas-Home and attend the foreign minister meeting of the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization. (SEATO).

Officials said Rogers would tell SEATO members of recent developments in U.S. relations with Mainland China and on President Nixon's troop withdrawals in Vietnam.

Following the SEATO meeting, Rogers will fly to Paris for a brief conference with French Foreign Minister Maurice Schumann before continuing to Ankara for the council meeting of the Central Treaty Organization—a loose alliance which links Great Britain, Turkey, Pakistan and Iran.

But the unusual diplomatic effort of Rogers' journey will come following the CENTO meeting when he swings through the Middle East, stopping in Jordan, Saudi Arabia, Lebanon, Egypt, and Israel.

The purpose of this journey, the first by a U.S. Secretary of State to the Middle East since 1953, will be to emphasize America's deep desire to see progress on an agreement to reopen the Suez waterway and secondly, its hope for a permanent Mideast peace settlement.

Aides said Rogers does not expect his talks with high officials, including Egyptian President Anwar Sadat and Israeli Prime Minister Golda Meir, will result immediately in an interim agreement under which the Suez Canal could be opened.

The secretary, officials said, would be satisfied if it were possible to narrow the differences between the Egyptian and Israeli positions on reopening the Suez, which has been locked since the Arab-Israeli war of 1967.

Progress towards this interim goal, the officials said, would go a long way toward dissipating some of the age-old suspicions which have bedeviled diplomats in their search for a permanent Middle East peace settlement.

Rusty Water

Tamalpais Fire Protection District crews will flush water mains from 9 a.m. to noon tomorrow, for a required check-up. The work will reduce pressure and temporarily make water rusty in Tamalpais Valley homes, Fire Chief Richard K. Oswald said.

Miracle Coating Replaces House Paint for 15 Years

Los Angeles, Calif.

Another boon of the space age has been accomplished for the home owner . . . an exterior wall coating so tough and durable that it is guaranteed to totally eliminate exterior house painting for over 15 years. This remarkable textured coating is asbestos KENITEX.

The Atomic Energy Commission has used KENITEX texture Coating for several years at Los Alamos, New Mexico, atomic plant. Thousands of gallons of this remarkable exterior surfacing have been applied to provide weatherproofing and beauty, far outlasting ordinary paint.

Over 1,000,000 KENITEX applications on homes, commercial and industrial buildings throughout the world, 10,000 in Southern California alone, remain in perfect condition after more than 15 years exposure in all weather extremes.

The Veterans' Administration, Sawtelle, in Los Angeles, has applied KENITEX to the exteriors of their buildings. The Kenitex coating is applied in one quick spray application without muss, fuss or odor — at a thickness 20 times that of ordinary paint. It fills holes, cracks and hides building defects, yet does not conceal the original architectural lines.

Homes and Guided Missiles
Unique among KENITEX applications is the use on guided missiles where its insulating properties shield the missile from extreme temperatures. KENITEX obtains these qualities from its basic components of asbestos, mica and perlite, which are noted for their insulation and durability.

Shot From a Gun
KENITEX is guaranteed for 15 years against chipping, flaking or peeling . . . it is extremely flexible and withstands all normal building expansion and contraction. Actually, "Shot from a Gun" KENITEX fuses to the sidewalls in a variety of beautiful decorator colors.

College Lists Summer Classes

College of Marin will repeat its four-days-a-week schedule for summer school classes beginning June 21, according to Berkeley Johnson, dean of instruction.

The experiment tried last summer was popular with students because it gave them more time for recreation or part-time jobs, Johnson said. Most classes will be scheduled for two-hour sessions between 8 a.m. and noon. More than 60 courses will be offered, with registration scheduled for May 10.

A later session with a limited number of courses will begin Aug. 2, Johnson said. Summer session classes also will be conducted in San Quentin Prison during June and July.

Teachers To Ask Policy Change

A modification of the Mill Valley School District's sabbatical leave policy will be requested by the Mill Valley Teachers Association when the district board meets at 8 p.m. today at Edna Maguire School.

Under current district policy the board has the option of approving or turning down leave requests. Teachers want a minimum of two sabbaticals to be made available for teachers each year.

Also on the agenda is a report on progress in selling two district-owned parcels of land, the 5.13-acre Alice Eastwood site and the 1.68-acre Harvard Avenue site.

C-47 Explodes, Kills Five At Cheyenne

CHEYENNE, Wyo. (UPI)— An Air Force C47 twin-engine plane which had just carried 15 young cadets to the Air Force Academy exploded in a ball of flame Sunday as it attempted to land at Cheyenne Municipal Airport. All five men aboard were killed.

"The plane exploded as soon as it hit the ground," said Ed Nation, an eyewitness. "You couldn't see anything but a ball of fire."

Nation said he thought the pilot intentionally dived into muddy ground surrounding the field to avoid a residential area. He said the plane appeared to be operating at full power at the time of the crash.

All five of the victims were stationed at nearby Warren Air Force Base. The base has no airport, but its planes use the municipal runway.

Officials said one of the victims, Lt. Col. Frank L. Trochak, 48, had planned to retire next month

Also killed were Maj. Fabian Dauzvardis, 41, of Chicago, operations branch chief for the 321st Strategic Missile Squadron; Maj. James C. Veach, 35, Pensacola, Fla., First Geodetic Survey Squadron, and S. Sgt. Paul Huston, 28, Vallejo, Calif., assigned to the Warren AFB hospital.

The name of the fifth victim was wihheld pending notification of family.

Fire trucks trying to reach the flaming wreckage became bogged down in a field turned to mud by rain and snow.

Dormitory Blaze At Stanford University

STANFORD (UPI) —A fire of "suspicious origin" heavily damaged a lounge in a dormitory at Stanford University today within minutes of two unsuccessful arson attempts.

Damage in the blaze at the Juniper House Lounge of Wilbur Hall dormitory was estimated at $50,000 to $75,000.

Stanford Fire Chief Frank Jurian said the fire appeared to be "of suspicious origin."

"It was a real hot, fast fire," he said. However, he said there was "nothing yet on the cause."

About 75 students were routed from their beds and assisted firemen with cleanup operations after the flames were doused. Fireman John Kelley suffered a cut hand.

An attempt was made only minutes before to burn the Tressider Union catering truck. This fire was extinguished before firemen arrived.

An attempt was also made to burn a motorcycle in the school boathouse parking lot but was put out with little damage.

The same day investigators discovered six fueled but unfused firebombs in an attic above the English Department.

Novato Man's Body Found

The body of Vernon Holms, 65, was found today morning in the backyard of his home at 369 Fairway Drive, Novato.

Deputy Coroner Bill J. Thomas said death was caused by a self-inflicted rifle shot. Holms was to have undergone surgery Thursday and was reported to have been despondent over his health, Thomas said.

Funeral arrangements were pending today at the Redwood Chapel Funeral Home.

Germany Leads In Typewriters

The Federal Republic of Germany last year for the first time edged out the United States as the world's largest maker of typewriters, supplying 21 per cent of total global production, compared to 20 per cent by the United States.

As an exporter of typewriters, the FRG, with 23 per cent, ran second to Japan with 24 per cent.

Bartender's Body Is Found

The badly decomposed body of a 39-year-old Richmond bartender who drowned in San Francisco Bay Dec. 3 was recovered off Angel Island yesterday by the Coast Guard.

The remains of Bob Williams were brought ashore at the Corinthian Yacht Harbor in Belvedere by sheriff's deputies and the Marin County Coroner's Office.

Coroner's investigator Keith C. Craig said Williams, who was employed at a bar in Berkeley, fell overboard Dec. 3 while on a fishing trip in the bay off Berkeley.

Identification was made from papers in a wallet in Williams's pants pocket, Craig said.

Williams was a native of North Dakota. He is survived by his wife, Carolyn, of Mattoon, Ill., and his mother, Rose, of San Diego.

Funeral arrangements were pending today at Russell and Gooch Mortuary, Mill Valley.

Cash Taken

A thief smashed the front window of Starnes Food Market, 500 Petaluma Boulevard South, Petaluma, about 11 p.m. Friday and took $20 in change from an open cash register and four cartons of cigarettes, police said.

Most of the "Protective reactions" involve firing of Shrike radar homing air to ground missiles which literally ride down the radar beam from the U.S. plane to the Communist radar transmitter. The 10-foot-long, 400 pound shrike is powered by a solid fuel rocket motor and has a conventional high explosive warhead. The original model, still used aboard some U.S. Navy aircraft flying over or near North Vietnam, had a range of about 10 miles, according to Jane's All the World's Aircraft.

An improved model Shrike is carried under the belly of the U.S. Air Force's F105 Thunderchief fighter-bombers, equipped with "Wild Weasel" electronic radar detection gear. The most effective Shrikes are the later models, military sources say. The Navy's Shrikes sometimes fall short of the target. The Air Force's seldom do.

Shrike was designed by the Naval Weapons Center at China Lake, Calif.

Since the bombing halt, a dozen U.S. planes have been shot down over North Vietnam, one this year. However, some of the 60 American planes shot down over Laos since the U.S. Command began announcing Laos aircraft losses last March, 10 were shot down by antiaircraft sites actually in North Vietnam but firing at planes bombing the Ho Chi Minh Trail in Laos, military sources said.

Some of the U.S. aircraft flying over North Vietnam are unarmed reconnaissance aircraft, escorted by armed fighter-bombers. The United States claims there was a "tacit understanding" when President Johnson halted the bombing of North Vietnam that American reconnaissance flights over North Vietnam could continue. The North Vietnamese dispute the claim.

Draw a line from Yankee Station in the Tonkin Gulf, where U.S. Navy carriers are based, to the Ho Chi Minh Trial in Laos and you'll readily see what other types of American planes fly over North Vietnam.

Avoiding flying over North Vietnam would add 150 miles to each sortie, Navy pilots say. That's only 15 minutes flight time for even a subsonic jet, but when the plane can only remain airborne for an hour or so without refueling, it's a major factor.

Maximum time over the target area means maximum bombing efficency. And that many miles look very important to a pilot flying a plane crippled by ground fire or running low on fuel.

Since the U.S. Command began announcing "proctective reactions" last May, there have been five "massive retaliation" air raids, military spokesmen said. These involve use of bombing and strafing attacks as well as missiles, sources said.

The first of those occurred May 2-3, 1970, after a U.S. Air Force F4 fighter-bomber was shot down seven miles north of the Demilitarized Zone in North Vietnam on May 2 while escorting an unarmed reconnaissance plane. The number of American planes involved in that strike was not disclosed.

The next such "massive retaliation" air raid occurred last Nov. 21 and provided the cover for the abortive Green Beret raid on the Son Tay prisoner of war camp near Hanoi.

So far this year there have been three of the "massive" strikes into North Vietnam; 20 planes on Feb. 20, 50 planes on Feb. 21 and 15 planes on Feb. 28, U.S. command statistics show.

$4,800 Damage In Barn Fire

Three trucks from the Marin County Fire Department and another from the Synanon Foundation fought from 3:04 a.m. to 5:21 a.m. to put out the blaze on the Ernest Paoli Ranch on Marshall-Petaluma Road.

Marin Fire Chief Louis J. Bloom said the $3,000 barn and 60 tons of hay valued at $1,800 were destroyed. Bloom said no one was on the ranch at the time of the fire. It is leased by Clarence Moreda.

The cause of the fire is still under investigation.

The fire was reported by a Synanon watchman who spotted a huge glow north of the foundation, Bloom reported.

Accident Victim

Melinda Maas, 19, of 1145 Elm Drive, Novato was treated for cuts and bruises yesterday at Marin General Hospital as a result of an auto accident in Los Banos, Merced County Friday.

Two-Acre Minimum Rejected By Planners

The Marin County Planning Commission today rejected a proposal to restrict building sites to a minimum of two acres, or 97,120 square feet in most of Marin's rural areas where the minimum is presently 7,500 square feet.

The opposition was led by chairman Walter F. Freitas and new commissioner George P. Leonard of Stinson Beach, who attended his first meeting since taking over from Hugh Dougherty. Commissioners Edward Hageman and Eugene R. Trombley also opposed the two-acre minimum.

Voting for the minimum were Margaret B. Azevedo, John F. West and Jack G. Nixon.

The proposal, presented by planning director Werner Von Gundell, was to amend the county code and increase from 7,5000 square feet to two acres the minimum lot size in the limited agricultural (A-2) zone, which covers about two-thirds of the county, everything except the urban areas along the Highway 101 corridor and other populated centers.

Leonard said he would go for half-acre minimum. He and Freitas said the two-acre minimum would work a hardship on landowners adjacent to urban areas where home developments are contemplated.

Normand H. Traverso, representing the Marin Property Owners Association, suggested that the minimum lot size be left flexible so that a sliding scale approach can be used, with two-acre minimum applied next to agricultural preserve areas, and more density allowed closer to urban areas.

Carol Staley, representing the League of Women Voters of Central Marin, supported the two-acre minimum.

After rejecting the two-acre proposal the planning commissioners decided to hold another hearing on May 10. At that time, they will consider a minimum lot size ranging anywhere between half acre and two acres to be applied to areas now zoned A-2.

Bennett Arrested Again

William Morgan Bennett of Kentfield, a member of the State Board of equalization, was booked into Marin County Jail yesterday on suspicion of drunken driving, after he was arrested by Sausalito police in the parking lot of the Valhalla Inn.

It was the second arrest in less than two months for the 52-year-old Bennett who was arrested in Sausalito March 4 and booked into jail for investigation of being drunk in public. He is to go on trial on that charge July 15.

Philip S. Ryan, Bennett's friend and one of his attorneys, said today the former state deputy attorney general "was not drunk" when he was arrested and added: "We will be able to prove that with overwhelming evidence."

At about 1:15 a.m. yesterday, Sausalito officer Blake Hoffman reported he observed an auto turning from south onto Second Street, driving erratically with its bright lights on, and followed the car into the restaurant lot.

Hoffman said Bennett emerged from the vehicle and, when asked to produce his driver's license, told the officer: "Tell me what I did' I don't have to show you anything."

The officer reported that Bennett was unsteady on his feet, had bloodshot eyes a strong odor of alcohol on his breath. Hoffman said Bennett called him an "arrogant punk," said he was twice as old as the officer and said: "I made the laws."

After he was placed in the patrol car under arrest, police reported Bennett told the officer: "I will kill you for this, you small-brained bastard."

Arresting officers said Bennett sat with his face against the car's separating screen on the way to the jail, despite requests from police that he sit back in the seat. They said Bennett struck his head on the screen when the police car braked to avoid a vehicle which had pulled in front of it and suffered an abrasion over his right eye and another on the bridge of his nose.

After being booked and freed on $360 bail, to appear in Marin Municipal Court tomorrow, Bennett was transported to Marin General Hospital where police reported he told the staff he had been beaten by the officers.

When the physician on call tried to treat him, police said Bennett refused to allow his face to be washed until photographs and been taken of the wounds.

Attorney Ryan today charged officer Hoffman with causing "serious damage" to his client's head and face "willfully and intentionally and in the most brutal manner imaginable."

Bennett himself told the Independent-Journal he was "an American citizen, well aware of my rights and responsibilities and also quite aware of the responsibility of a policeman toward a citizen."

He refused to comment further, but said he would have more to say about the case at a later time.

Fire Kills Sleeping Novato Boy

A 22-month-old boy, left sleeping alone in a Novato house with a candle in his tiny bedroom, died early yesterday morning as the house was engulfed in flames.

The dead child, Buddha D'Fonseca, was found by Novato firemen called after motorists saw the fire about 4:25 a.m. in the small frame house at 1504 Armstrong Avenue.

The little boy's mother, Louise Tillson, 20, was asleep at the time on a hillside about 150 feet in the rear of the house, as was a friend, Scott Allen Martin, 20, of 4 Devonshire Drive, Novato.

The mother told Novato police she did not know the house was on fire until she heard fire engines.

She said that she had last checked the baby, asleep on a mattress in a northwest bedroom, about 12:30 a.m. She said she left a candle in the bedroom but was not sure whether she had extinguished it, police said.

The mother, who gave her address as 2495 Novato Boulevard, said that she was watching the house for a woman friend, Beverly De Fonseca, who was out of town.

(Police said that Mrs. De Fonseca is not related to the dead baby but is currently married to the baby's father.)

The house is owned by an investment company and rented by Mrs. De Fonseca, according to Fire Chief Jack Kidder.

He said two teen-age youths first saw the fire and roused a neighbor who called the fire department. The boys did not identify themselves, he said, and he asked that they report any information they know about the fire to firemen.

When firemen arrived, the house was a mass of flames. They found the baby when the flames had been quelled enough to enter the home.

The cause of the fire is still under investigation.

Girl, 8, Robbed Outside Market

An 8-year-old Petaluma girl, on a family errand, was robbed of $4.32 yesterday by a young barefoot thief outside a Petaluma market, the victim's mother told police.

Mrs. Joyce Carney said her daughter, Tammy, told her a barefoot girl about 12 snatched a bag contining groceries and $4.32 in change outside the Roger Wilco Market on East Washington Street, where the purchases had been made.

The young thief, accompanied by a boy about 8, then ran, the child reported.

Man Burns Boat, Blames Anger

A San Francisco man who said he was angry at a boat he bought, set fire to it at 12:50 a.m. yesterday at Loch Lomond Yacht Harbor, San Rafael police reported.

Alfred Thomas Zimmer, 34, was booked into Marin County Jail on suspicion of arson. He is out on $500 bail to appear Wednesday in Marin Municipal Court.

Two witnesses told police they saw Zimmer throw a torch into his 18 foot boat. They chased him but he escaped. They later identified him after police caught him.

There was an undisclosed amount of damage to the pier at the yacht harbor.

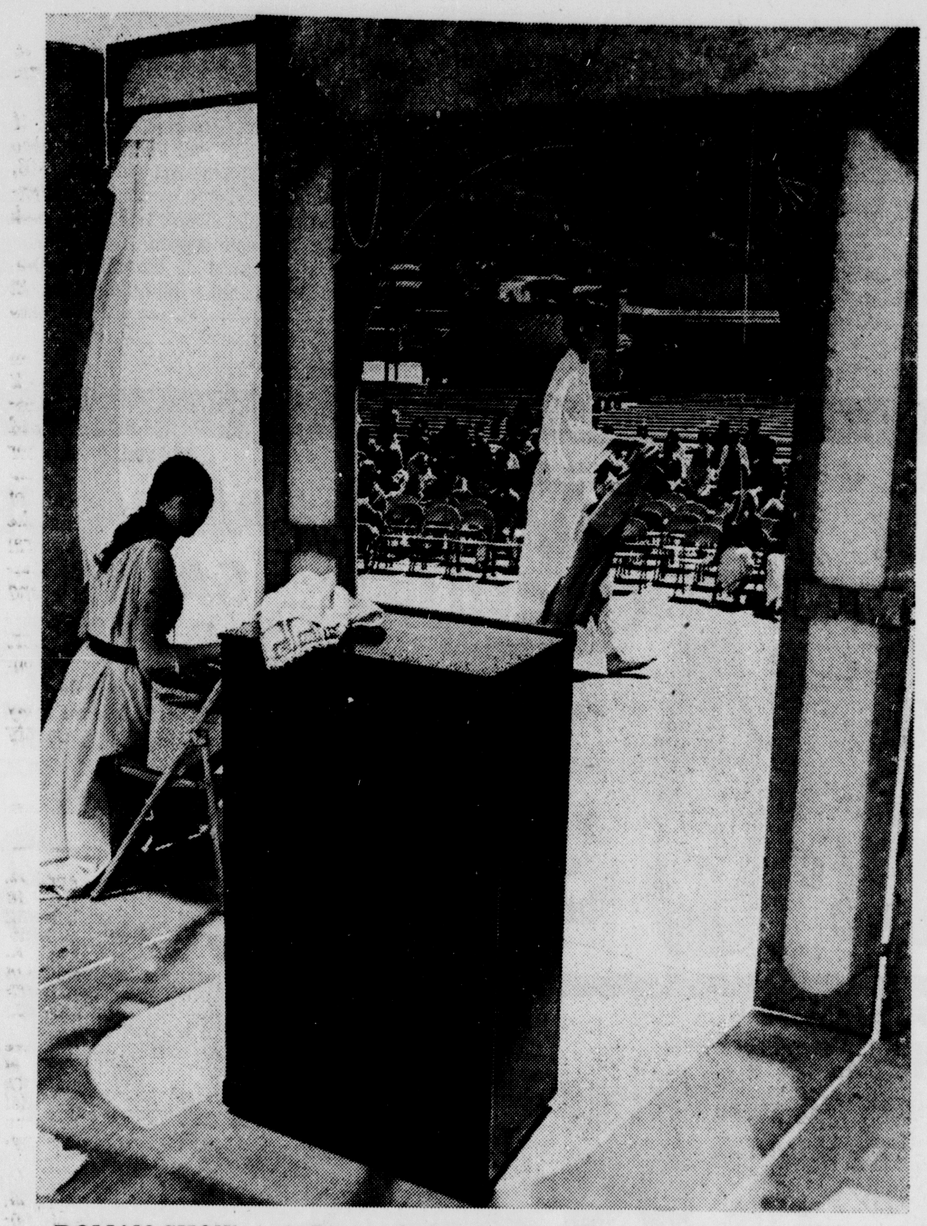
Keeping A Dead Language Alive



ROMAN SHOW — A Roman lady awaits her cue as a toga-clad young man strides across the stage. Roman customs and the Latin language came to life Saturday at Terra Linda High School as more than 300 students gave Roman plays, heard lectures on Rome and participated in a chariot race. Students from schools as far away as Paso Robles attended the Roman Days program.

Sonorous classic Latin echoed from the amphitheater at Terra Linda High School Saturday, as more than 300 students and adults proved that the so-called dead language is still alive and well in the schoolrooms.

Three Latin plays, a Roman style costume parade, a high-spirited chariot race and numerous scholarly lectures occupied the day, under the guidance of Marie Fontenrose and Adeliade Roberts, Latin teachers at Terra Linda and San Rafael high schools. Latin students from the two schools were joined by young scholars from Paso Robles, San Jose and the Easy Bay.

Though not planned as part of Public Schools Week observances, the events proved a fitting opener to the programs scheduled all this week at Marin and Southern Sonoma schools. An even more ambitious language project is planned at Terra Linda High next Saturday. (For that program, see page 6).

One of the most popular speakers was Brother S. Dominic Ruegge of St. Mary's College, who described diving for Roman artifacts off the coast of Italy. He also told students who attended a series of workshop sessions how to approach the study of archeology and advised them that the best opportunities for joining archeological expeditions now are in Israel.

Prof. David Traill of the University of California at Davis held forth on the influence of the Aeneid, and how Medieval authors and scholars attempted to Christianize classic poets and philosophers. Such attempts resulted in Dante using Virgil as his guide through the Inferno, and mentioning Statius in his version of purgatory, Traill said.

Professor J. K. Anderson led a smaller workshop group in ruffling the pages of lavishly illustrated tomes on classic pottery. He explained how the artistic efforts of the potters became economically unrewarding as the wealthier Greeks and Romans turned more and more to the use of gold and other metal table utensils.

Professor Richard Grimm of Davis showed off mathematical puzzles that intrigued Roman and Medieval scholars; Prof. Alain Renoir discussed Latin influence in contemporary literature; Prof. and Mrs. A. E. Gordon discussed Latin inscriptions that held sway through the centuries, and Paso Robles High School students discussed their trip to Greece.

Athletic young scholars pulled five chariots around the course, each bearing a costumed co-ed, to the cheers of bystanders whose costumes ranged from togas through hot-pants.

Public Schools got under way today with open houses at many schools in the Fairfax, Larkspur, Mill Valley, Novato, Old Adobe, Petaluma, San Anselmo, San Rafael and Sausalito school districts.

Federal Aid Due Hub Council Ear

The San Anselmo City Council, meeting Tuesday at 8 p.m. at city hall, will consider requesting federal matching funds for park and recreation projects.

The city's park and recreation commission, at its meeting Wednesday, listed priorities for park improvements. The Robson-Harrington Park, currently being master planned, received highest priority. Also high on the list was $10,000 worth of improvements to Memorial Park.

The council also is slated to again consider applying for federal flood insurance for homeowners. Last year it delayed applying for the low cost insurance so it could make further study.

Snow Says Mao Offers To Host Nixon In China

NEW YORK (UPI) —Sino-American relations may have thawed to the point that President Nixon would be a welcome visitor to Communist China, it was reported Sunday.

In an article published in Life magazine, Edgar Snow, a writer who received a five-hour interview with Communist Party Chairman Mao Tse-Tung, said that Mao told him Nixon could come to China in either an official or an unofficial capacity.

"Mao would be happy to talk to him, either as a tourist or as president," Snow wrote.

Snow, who has frequently visited China, said Mao told him some four months ago during a conversation in the Communist leader's Peking residence that Americans "from the left, middle and right" might be admitted to mainland China.

Snow said he asked if "rightists" like Nixon would be permitted to enter China and received an affirmative reply.

"He should be welcomed because, Mao explained, at present the problems between China and the U.S.A. would have to be solved with Nixon," Snow reported.

Snow said he learned only recently that parts of his interview could be published without direct quotation.

Another article in the same Life issue indicates that Nixon was also deeply concerned with Chinese-American relations.

The story quotes Nixon during the Middle East crisis less than a year ago saying it was "up to the United States" to initiate a rapprochement between China and America.

"Maybe it won't happen in five years, maybe not even in 10 years. But in 20 years it had better be, or the world is in mortal danger," Nixon said.

The article also indicated the President might well be interested in a trip to the Chinese mainland.

"If there is anything I want to do before I die, it is to go to China," the article quotes Nixon as saying privately. "If I don't, I want my children to."

This handful of clean slag represents ten pounds of trash after being reduced by natural gas in a large scale disposal plant. Such plants handle almost any kind of waste—from food scraps to bottles and cans.

Systems that will clean-up our air and water, recycle or dispose of wastes and power rapid transit will require more and more clean energy—natural gas and electricity.

Our job is to be sure there'll be plenty of energy for these environmental jobs; our construction program for new facilities is carefully planned to meet energy demands adequately and reliably as needed. PG and E

German Rightist Reveals Kidnaping Just A Hoax

BONN (UPI)—A professor who tried to influence a West German election by pretending to be kidnaped by left-wing terrorists may be presented with a bill for the cost of a nationwide three-day police search for him, the public prosecutor said today.

Prof. Berthold Rubin, West Germany's leading expert on Byzantium and an advocate of right-wing causes, confessed to the hoax several hours after he and an associate, Rudolf Metzger, were discovered bound alongside a highway in Bavaria.

Public prosecutor Bruno Schwellnus said Rubin told him he carried out the Hoax in hopes he would "ignite public anger against leftist radical groups" in Sunday's election in the state of Schleswig-Holstein.

Chancellor Willy Brandt's Social Democrats were defeated in the election but analysts said the reasons were unconnected with Rubin's action.

Rubin, 59, and Metzger, 40, disappeared Wednesday while driving from Cologne to Frankfurt and police later received a note purporting to be from their kidnapers that said they would be executed unless authorities released a left-wing lawyer who was on trial in West Berlin for armed assault.

In earlier stunts, Rubin used a hammer and chisel in an attempt to knock a hole in the Berlin wall and parachuted over England to protest the continued imprisonment of Nazi official Rudolf Hess. He made a keynote speech at the founding congress of the ultra rightist National Democratic party.

Salary Schedules On Dixie Agenda

Dixie School District trustees will meet Wednesday night to consider adoption of proposed salary schedules for the coming year.

In addition to teacher salaries, trustees will review schedules for administrators, psychologists and a coordinator of music position.

Also under consideration is an amendment to classified personnel job descriptions.

The proposed teacher salary package would cost about $330,000, giving teachers pay raises averaging 10 to 11 per cent and including longevity boosts over which the administration and teachers had earlier differed.

Trustees will meet at 8 p.m. in the Board Room of the Administration Office, 35 Trellis Drive, in San Rafael.

Frank C. Kugelberg, 85, of Walnut Creek was treated at Marin General Hospital for a broken clavicle. He was a passenger in a southbound car driven by his wife, Amy Morris Kugelberg, 75, which hit the center divider on Highway 101 north of the Richardson Bay Bridge at 7:45 p.m. Saturday, patrolmen reported.

PARSNIP IT ISN'T — Anne Leary holds a robust cow parsnip, which, despite its name, certainly isn't edible. Fine hairs on the plant's stems prick the skin, allowing the poison to enter. The result is a dermatitis similar to that caused by poison oak. Mrs. Leary is immune to the poison of most contact dermatitis plants, including the cow parsnip.

BLEEDING HEART — The leaves and roots of this plant, prized by gardeners for its purple blossoms, are death to cattle and can cause trembling, staggering and convulsions in humans. The three women who put on the Stinson Beach Wildflower Show hope to warn gardeners away from such toxic plants.

LIVESTOCK, BEWARE — This horse's tail, studied through a magnifying glass by Roberta Shockey, frequently tempts cattle and horses, often with disastrous results. Despite the plant's succulent appearance, it is very poisonous to cattle. Poisonous plants aren't the only growing things to be found at the wildflower show. Many varieties of flowers will grace the Stinson Beach Community Center.

By GEORGE NEVIN

"Name your poison," the rallying cry of social drinkers the world over, also could be the slogan of this year's Stinson Beach Wildflower Show, set for May 1 and 2.

For, tucked into the midst of thousands of fragile, colorful California wildflowers will be 36 varieties of flora known not for their beauty but for their toxicity.

The theme for this year's show, the 13th annual, is "Poisonous Plants of California."

"We thought we'd be doing people in Marin a favor by showing them that some common plants growing by the side of the road or in their garden are poisonous if eaten or touched," said Roberta Shockey, one of three Stinson Beach women who have put on the show for 13 years.

She and Anne Leary and Barbara Menzies are aiming for two more shows and then expect to retire. "Fifteen years is enough for us," said Mrs. Shockey. "People keep telling us they'll help but they never do."

This year's show is set for May 1 and 2 at the Community Center in Stinson Beach. Last year's attendance was 1,900.

For sheer visual glory, the poisonous plants can't compete with the bright wildflowers, mainstay of the show. But the more modest-looking toxic plants have a fascination all their own.

Visitors to the show will see the Castor Bean, two or three seeds of which can kill a man; the Larkspur, with its blue, white or pink blossoms, which gave its name to a city in Marin; Rhododendron, which causes death from three to 14 hours after being eaten; Turkey Mullen, which Bay Area Indians used as a poison for their arrows.

Also on display, will be tree tobacco, with its yellow flowers; Mistletoe, the yuletide symbol whose white berries can be fatal, Oleander, often grown in gardens, and soap plant, which Indians dipped into streams to kill fish.

To collect these often-deadly specimens, the women drove more than 6,000 miles through California and Oregon this year. The plants were painstakingly dug up, placed in containers and gently set inside a station wagon for the ride back to Stinson Beach.

Most of the plants, which are harmful only when eaten, can be handled without danger, said Mrs. Shockey. But, she said, "We always wash our hands after collecting."

Some gardeners grow poisonous plants as ornamentals, and farmers have been known to mix plants deadly to livestock in with cattle food.

The native poisonous plant most likely to be eaten by accident is the Poison Hemlock, said Mrs. Leary, because it looks so appetizing. A member of the carrot family, the dark fern-like leaves look "just right for a salad," she said.

The Hemlock found in California is the kind Socrates took his life with, and it's just as dangerous today. Botanists consider Hemlock, which looks like parsley, among the most deadly of plants.

Many of the poisonous plants at the show are dangerous to animals, although not particularly to people. Horse's tails, for example, often tempt horses and cattle and can prove fatal to them.

In preparing this year's theme, the women learned that the potato family contains many toxic members. Datura, a plant introduced to California, is one. Another is Deadly Nightshade, often responsible for accidental poisonings because its shiny black berries look so tempting.

One story, proving that Deadly Nightshade lives up to its name, tells how two men died after eating jam made of the plant's berries.

Other plants are poisonous to the touch as well as in the eating. The women plan to have California's best known cause of dermatitis, Poison Oak, at the show, as well as less known but equally virulent varieties, such as Phacelia, with its striking blue flowers, and cow parsnip.

"Those two spread their poison by these little hairs," explained Mrs. Leary, pointing out a forest of tiny prickles on the plants.

Examined through a magnifying glass, the hairs appeared to have amber drops on the ends. "That's the poison," said Mrs. Leary. "The hairs break the skin and then the poison goes to work." The effect, she said, is similar to Poison Oak.

Poison plants, however, will be outnumbered greatly by thousands of brightly colored wildflowers at the show, set for 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. May 1 and 2.

To gather the blossoms, Mesdames Manzies, Leary and Shockey travel thousands of miles throughout California and Oregon each year in station wagons laden with flowers kept in fresh water.

While Mrs. Leary drives south to the Mojave Desert and Death Valley, Mrs. Shockey and Mrs. Menzies head north to Oregon. Sierra Nevada flowers won't be heavily represented this year because spring snowstorms in the mountains have pushed the snow level down.

Although the women expect to work on two more of the annual shows after this year's, they're already looking forward to what they'll do in retirement.

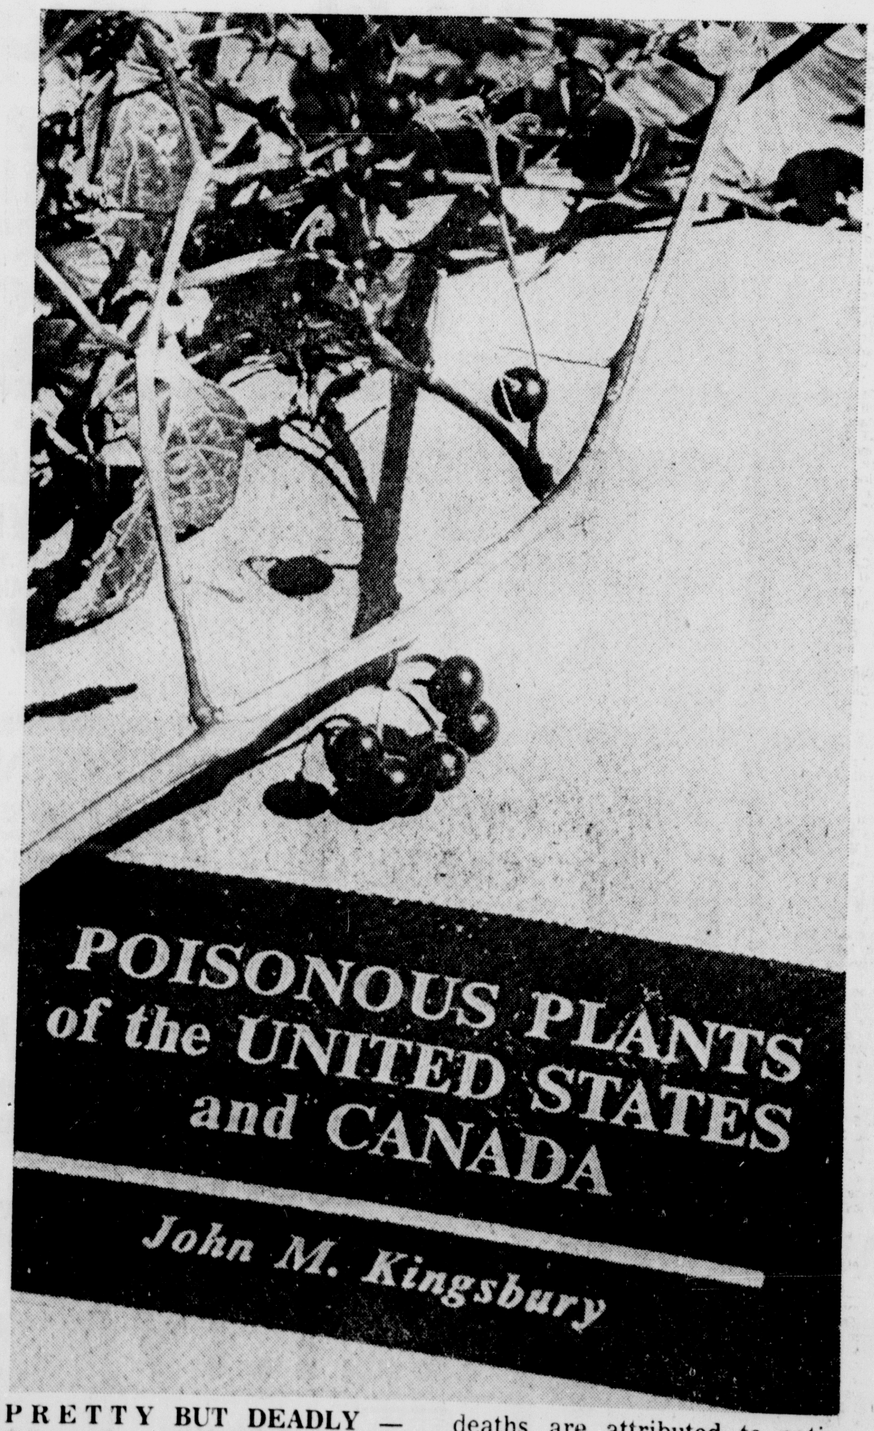
"Our big project will be convincing the county and state road departments not to mow wildflowers along the roads and not to spray them with weedkillers," said Mrs. Shockey.

Apparently that will take much work and reeducation Mrs. Shockey said she stopped a state division of highways worker last week just before he mowed down two large clumps of lupine growing along Shoreline Highway near Bolinas.

"The flowers were on the water side of the highway and couldn't have been a fire hazard," she said, "but when I went back the next day the plants were gone — and after that man promised me, too."

DISTINCTIVE MARKINGS — Anne Leary examines small brown spots on the stems of poison hemlock, a member of the carrot family. The spots are a warning not to eat the plant, which looks like fresh parsley and occasionally ends up in salads. Death by paralysis of the expiratory system can follow.

STAR LILY — This plant, known to scientists as zygadenus, grows all over Marin and throughout California. An early bloomer, the light green blossoms have yellow, pollen-filled centers. About 1,900 persons crowded the Stinson Beach Community Center last year to attend the wildflower show, with its specialty of succulents.



PRETTY BUT DEADLY — Bright black berries — looking good enough to eat — belong to deadly nightshade, a member of the potato family. But many deaths are attributed to eating the berries in jams or pies. The book, "Poisonous Plants of the United States and Canada," says that ingestion of three berries has been known to be fatal to a child.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

Hard To Estimate A Security Cushion

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. My wife and I are trying to plan toward retirement in 1985 when we will be 65. Social Security benefits have been boosted recently. Can you give me a rough idea of what to expect from this source? I have always paid the maximum tax. We have $36,000 in stocks and savings are able to add $2,500 each year. Will this be sufficient by the time we retire? — C. U.

A. I assume that your income exceeds $9,000 annually, the maximum salary base which will be taxed beginning next January. Under the new law, the maximum monthly benefit for a couple retiring in 1985 will be $385.

However, not only benefits, but also contributions will increase, from $405.60, which you now pay yearly, to $468 next year and then to $535.50 before you retire. In 1954 your annual contributions amounted to $72, but subsequent boosts in taxable wage base and tax rate will have increased that six-fold by next year. I point this out to emphasize the futility of making predictions in an inflationary economy.

Your present capital plus annual additions and reinvested interest could reach, barring unforeseen calamities, $85,000 or more by 1985. This sum if properly invested should yield sufficient income to "keep the wolf from the door."

Q. I hold First National City Bank 4 per cent convertible notes due 1990. In view of the proposed 2-for-1 split of the common would I be smart to convert now or after the split? — F. K.

A. It makes no difference since the conversion privilege is protected, under terms of the indenture, against dilution. At present, each note is convertible into one and one-half shares of common; after the split each note will be exchangeable into three shares.

On the basis of income return, you are better off holding the notes. Furthermore the price of the notes moves in line with the common, reflecting the conversion feature.

Contract Sales For Carpeting Going Up

SADDLE BROOK, N. J. (UPI)—Contract sales, which accounted for 30 to 35 per cent of total carpeting volume in the United States in 1970, are expected to continue to increase in 1971 and approach 50 per cent of all carpet sales in 1972, according to a carpeting firm head.

"Carpet manufacturers are benefiting from the increasing industrial and commercial use of soft floor coverings, the spread of wall to wall carpeting to all rooms and hallways in the home and the development of strong, new fibers," says Jordan Issackedes, president of the floor covering division of The Okonite Co.

"Sales have opened up on our plumbing pipe."

Demand Still Restrained On Exchange

NEW YORK (UPI) —The stock market was mixed in moderately active trading through the first two hours Monday.

Profit taking, which developed in the middle of last week, continued to restrain demand for stocks despite a generally constructive news background.

President Nixon told the U. S. Chamber of Commerce that inflation was now under control and forecast a period of solid, sustainable economic expansion.

Standard & Poor's 500 Stock Index was unchanged.

Prices were firm in brisk trading on the American Stock Exchange. Of the 1,008 issues on the tape, 427 higher and 332 retreated.

Among the most active Amex issues were Republic Mortgage Investors fractionally lower on 85,000 shares, Rath Packing up 1 5-8 on over 50,000 shares, and Ling-Temco warrants slightly higher on a turnover of around 50,000.

On the Big Board, active issues included Fuqua Industries off 5-8, Telex 1 higher, and Ling-Temco-vought 2 1-1 higher. LTV reported a first quarter profit, versus a loss during the year-ago period.

Other firm spots in heavy turnover were Delta Air Lines up 1 1-8, Pennzoil also 1 1-8 higher, and Bausch & Lomb up 3.

Latin American Trade

NEW YORK (UPI)—A rise in U.S. exports to Latin America in 1971 has been forecast by Harold B. Scott, director of the Bureau of International Commerce, U.S. Department of Commerce. The growth would probably be more modest than the 15 per cent increase between 1969 and 1970, when exports increased to a total of $6.4 billion, Scott said.

ALMANAC

Today is Monday, April 26, the 116th day of 1971.

The moon is between its new phase and first quarter. The morning stars are Mercury, Venus, Mars and Jupiter. The evening star is Saturn.

Those born on this day are under the sign of Taurus.

American naturalist John James Audubon was born April 26, 1785.

On this day in history:

In 1607 the first British colonists to establish a permanent settlement in America landed at Cape Henry, Va.

In 1865 federal troops shot and killed John Wilkes Booth, the assassin of President Lincoln, near Port Royal, Va., despite orders to take him alive.

In 1944 the government took over the Chicago headquarters of Montgomery Ward and Co. after management defied a ruling by the National Labor Relations Board.

In 1954 a nationwide test of the Salk antipolio vaccine began in parts of 45 states.

A thought for today: American philosopher Irwin Edman said, "The gift of gaiety may itself be the greatest good fortune, and the most serious step toward maturity."

West Refuses First Heart Trick—Nothing Else Needed

"It is quite all right to feel afraid now and then," my father told me many years ago, "but you must avoid showing your fear. Always look cheerful in the presence of your enemies, or they will hurl themselves upon you like mad dogs." I nodded to show that I understood him, but since I was only 4 years old my father illustrated his advice with a hand he had just played in a bridge tournament.

DEUCE OF DIAMONDS

The deuce of diamonds was led at all tables, my father related, and some declarers refused the first trick. East won with the king of diamonds and returned the jack to dummy's ace.

At these tables West knew that his side could get a second diamond trick since East would have returned a low diamond if he had started with four cards in the suit. West therefore was glad to take the ace of hearts and the ace of clubs at his first opportunity, defeating the contract with the second defensive trick in diamonds.

SOME TABLES

At some tables, declarer took the first trick in dummy with the ace of diamonds and drew two rounds of trumps with the ace and king. South then led his singleton heart. With a trump entry to the dummy in plain sight, West could see no point in refusing the first heart trick. Since the only hope was to cash out, West took his two aces and then returned to diamonds, defeating the contract.

BOLD COURSE

By this time I knew that my father had made four spades by a bold play of some kind. I didn't try to work it out, partly because I was only four and partly because my father wanted to tell the story. But if you, dear reader, are over 4 years old, I have no objection if you want to spot the play by yourself.

After taking the first trick with the ace of diamonds, my father led the queen of spades and then two more rounds of trumps before leading the eight of hearts.

West couldn't believe that my father would deliberately take all the entries out of dummy before leading hearts unless he had more than one heart. West therefore refused the first heart trick. Nothing else was needed.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with one heart, and the next player passes.

You hold:
♠ - 4
♥ - 7 4 3
♦ - K J 7
♣ - 10 9 6 5 4.

What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid two hearts.

You count four points in high cards and three points for the singleton (combined with good trump support). This is enough for a single raise.

Nixon Seeks Delay In Soap Labeling

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The Nixon administration said today that any government steps against detergent phosphate should be delayed because alternative ingredients might be more harmful.

Surgeon General Jesse L. Steinfeld and Russell E. Train, chairmen of the Council on Environmental Quality (CEQ), presented the testimony before the Federal Trade Commission.

The FTC opened three days of hearings on proposal for mandatory water pollution warning in advertising and labeling of detergents containing phosphates. The administration spokesman opposed this for the time being at least.

Train's position was at least a partial reversal of past statements. The CEQ said in its annual report several months ago that phosphates should be phased out of detergents to keep lakes and streams from choking with algae and eventually dying.

A statement by Train, read at the hearing by an aide, said: "Prospects for major reductions of phosphates in detergents must be tempered by caution in accepting substitutes with hazardous or unknown health characteristics and by concern over the high alkalinity and corrosiveness of some of the recently introduced phosphate-free detergents."

Steinfeld said some phosphate substitutes now in use "pose serious accident hazards, especially to children."

He said even a fraction of a teaspoon of some caustic phosphate substitutes "may cause severe damage to the skin, eye, mouth, throat, larynx, esophagus or stomach upon contact."

Steinfeld and Train said they agreed that safe phosphate substitutes must be found so the water softening ingredients could be eliminated.

The Association of National Advertisers Inc. (ANA) said in a statement the proposal made about as much sense as the Army trying to recruit men but advertising that their life in uniform might be dull, uncomfortable and could result in death.

Sen. Behr To Talk On His Legislation

Sen. Peter H. Behr, R-San Rafael, will discuss bills he has sponsored in the current legislaative session at 8 p.m. tomorrow at Beasley's Restaurant, Petaluma.

Behr, whose appearance is sponsored by the Petaluma Outdoorsmens' Club, will speak on his legislation to protect three of Northern California's wild rivers and to prohibit the taking of herring eggs from Tomales Bay.

Public Housing Vote Approved By Court

WASHINGTON (UPI) —A divided Supreme Court ruled today that local communities are entitled to prevent construction of public housing projects by use of a special referendum vote.

The 5-3 decision reversed a lower federal court action which held unconstitutional a California law allowing such votes. The case involved the city of San Jose and San Mateo County.

In other actions, the Court:

—Struck a blow at organized crime by upholding a law making loansharking a federal crime.

—Declared unanimously a state may not withhold unemployment insurance benefits to a worker while his former employer appealsk on eligibility grounds.

—Refused to disturb a lower court decision that granting welfare benefits to workers did not interfere with free collective bargaining.

—Agreed to decide next term whether a federal court, at the request of the National Labor Relations Board, could knock down a state court order regulating peaceful picketing.

—Gave a go-ahead to a federal district judge to begin hearings on an assortment of school desegregation plans in Denver, Colo.

In the California housing case, Justice Hugo L. Black ruled for the majority that a three-judge federal court had erred in holding the referendum procedure unconstitutional on the basis of a prior Supreme Court decision.

The earlier ruling, Black said, related to racial discrimination and "this one does not."

"Provisions for referendums demonstrate devotion to democracy, not to bias, discrimination, or prejudice," Black declared.

He added: "The people of California have ... decided by their own vote to require referendum approval of low-rent public housing projects. This procedure ensures that all the people of a community will have a voice in a decision which may lead to large expenditures of local governmental funds for increased public services and to lower tax revenues."

Voters in the California communities had decided by referendum against joining with the federal government in financing of low-cost housing projects. Local housing authorities were barred from applying for federal funds because of the votes.

Mother, Daughter Tell Why We Dress In Certain Ways

By BARBARA HOSMER

Finding the "gut reasons" of why people throughout history wore the clothes they did and do kept a mother and daughter author team busy researching and writing for two and a half years — largely in Marin.

"We actually had the idea for this book 15 years ago," said Moira Johnston, the daughter, when the two returned briefly to Marin last week. They even filed the title 10 years ago, but felt the time wasn't ready then for them to write such a book.

A former fashion artist for Women's Wear Daily now living in San Francisco, Mrs. Johnston moved to Marin four years ago with her husband, Donald, and a tiny baby.

"We arrived at the time of the beginning of the counter-culture and flower child thing," Mrs. Johnston said. People were upset and curious about the hippie way of dress, a whole revolution in clothing.

"People were ready to read about clothes," Moira Johnston said. She and her mother, noted Canadian author Christie Harris of Vancouver, set to work, Moira researching and illustrating and Mrs. Harris doing the writing.

Mrs. Harris and her husband spent several years making trips to the Kent Woodlands hilltop home the Johnstons were renting to do the book.

The research job was tremendous, encompassing something of the entire history of man on the earth.

"We read psychology, sociology, history, anthropology, behavorial studies — Clothes were almost the last part of our study," explained Mrs. Johnston.

Most of their research was conducted through the Marin County Public Library and its Ross Branch, with such valuable assistance from Virginia Borland, Marin County research librarian, and Marie Duffee of the Ross Branch that they are listed in the book's authors' acknowledgement next to the Metropolitan Museum of Art Costume Institute.

"They went to any length to track down information for us through the state library system," says Moira, "so it was easiest to do our research in Marin." Mrs. Johnston did make three trips to New York as well as many to museums and library sources in the Bay Area.

For these reasons it is fitting that the new Novato Branch of the Marin County Library which opened officially Saturday is displaying Mrs. Johnston's illustrations from the book for the opening.

The two wrote their book to develop a theory to fit what's happening in clothing and to bring the study of clothing up to date in the 1970s, say the authors.

Clothes, they say, are an expression of a society's values, and when Hippies chose to wear long hair, conventional adult society felt its very values were threatened by such a different appearance.

"Obviously dress was such a deep expression of a society that to attack its dress was to attack the society itself," they say of the counter-cultures' draping of skins, furs, bells, beads and fringes which has recently caused so much uptightness by the stolid business suited generations.

"Clothes are much, much more than fashion," they state.

The book documents their theory that what people have worn through the ages reflected their deepest values. The authors feel this idea supercedes and includes the previous theories of dress — that clothes are based on utility, hierarchy or seduction.

Instead, clothes largely reflect a people's deepest convictions and everytime there is a change in these convictions there is a change in clothing, they write. Further, when two cultures confront one another, the group that has lost faith in its old convictions has always adopted the dress of the other culture.

Their ideas are borne out through the 228 pages of their book, largely history related to what our ancestors throughout the world wore.

In writing the book, it was Moira who was the clothing expert. "We almost called it, 'Why Who Wore What'," she quipped, adding that her mother is the writer in the family.

"Cultural contact is my field," said Mrs. Harris. "My interest is in the humanity of peoples."

Together the mother and daughter collaborated to help people understand why they wear what they do, where the coat came from, what they express in their clothes.

"We are hoping people will 'read' clothes from their own closets," said Mrs. Johnston.

Costume, or fashion became separated from reality in the industrial age, they believe, when the Western business suit came to express the pure functionalism of the times. Anything else was considered fashion fluff and kookiness decreed by couturiers for the entertainment of a few wealthy. Now, they maintain, more human values are coming through, largely brought on through the Hippie style of dress which emphasizes the more sensual textures and colors. The blending of the two should produce interesting attire for the next decade, they believe.

Canadian College Has Class For Women On The American Male

WINNIPEG, Man. (UPI)— College girls probably have been studying men since the first one enrolled, but 60 in Winnipeg are getting class credit for it —in a special all-female class on the study on the male sex.

They're studying the history of North American dating habits and hearing lectures by women's liberation militants.

The three-hour-a-week course is the brainchild of its teacher, Mrs. Lesley Hughes, who was asked to design an English Department course at Red River Community College for 60 student nurses.

"SO RATHER than set them to studying Shakespeare and Milton, two more men, I decided to give them something useful and with practical application," says 28-year-old Mrs. Hughes.

"I think the girls need it because life is so complicated for women in 1971. There are more choices and decisions open to a woman than ever before."

And despite the guest lectures by women's liberationists, Mrs. Hughes says the course isn't aimed at encouraging revolt by women.

"On the contrary, the point is not to turn out feminists but young women who can cope with the very sophisticated demands made on them by society—namely men ..."

Says Mrs. Hughes:

"This course isn't anti-men. What would we do without them?"

Meanwhile her boss, Len Goodine, says that if the course is successful, it would be offered in other college departments such as secretarial science.

Mrs. Hagler Heads P-TA

Mrs. William Hagler of Greenbrae, new president of the Redwood High School Parent-Teacher Association, has been a member for four years and serves as chairman of various committees.

She believes the P-TA's purpose is to bridge the gap between home and school. Informal meetings between parents and administrators and a back-to-school night are in the planning stages.

A homemaker, Mrs. Hagler is a graduate of the University of California with an elementary teaching credential. She is also president of the Alpha Delta Pi Alumnae of Marin and a member of the Northgate Group of the Marin Art and Garden Center and the Marin County U.C. Berkeley Alumni Committee.

A native of San Bernardino, Mrs. Hagler has lived in Marin for 20 years. Rich, 17, Kathy, 15, and Jack, 13, are her children. She enjoys skiing with her family, bridge and tennis.

Being installed with Mrs. Hagler on May 4 are Donald Kreps, second vice president; and Mmes. Paul O'Neal, first vice president; Marvin Buell, third vice president; Royal Radke, recording secretary; J.W. McClintock, corresponding secretary; Reiko Schroeder, auditor; Jack Van Wart, historian; and William Asiano, treasurer.

Second Spouse Tends To Be Like The First

People who remarry tend to choose husbands or wives "remarkably like their first ones," according to an article in a national magazine by a California marriage counselor.

This phenomenon has been observed by every marriage counselor, stated Dr. Floyd Anderson, director of the California Family Guidance Center. Even when the second spouse seems to be quite different on the surface, "there may be great similarities in basic character," he said in the May issue of Ladies' Home Journal.

Statistics show that America's ten million second marriages (for one or both spouses) "when tested by all possible sociological measurements, prove just as happy as first marriages or perhaps even happier," stated the survey article.

"One reason is that people who picked a mate too hastily and thoughtlessly the first time around are more careful the second time," the article said. It quotes a twice-married man as an example: "I knew all the while I was courting my first wife that she hated housekeeping and didn't like children. I could see her defects — but I was in such a love-sick trance that I ignored them."

"People who marry for the second time are also more realistic," asserted the survey article, and "don't start off on that big, foolish, romantic cloud."

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

His Wife Is Always Giving Him The 'Queen Of The Prom' Jazz

DEAR HELEN:

My wife never stops throwing it up to me that she was the catch of the town, and had countless proposals and a hundred men to choose from.

She conveniently forgets (until I remind her) that those "proposals" weren't all with marriage in mind, and it was the result of one such that I married her.

Then she starts throwing things. Mostly verbal.

As you can see, Helen, it is not a good marriage. We both go out of our way to hurt each other.

It started off wrong. My wife (then single) was pregnant by a man who left town suddenly when she told him. I didn't know this, when we met, but in all fairness, I must say she confessed before our wedding. I had this protective thing about her and swore it would make no difference.

Well, she had a miscarriage, and life went quite smoothly for over a year. Then, in a fit of anger, she told me she never loved me — I was just a way out.

Maybe love can't die of just one blow, but it happened with me. From that day on — warfare. I've excused my actions with, "She deserves it." My actions have included several unsatisfactory flings with women who probably disliked me as much as my wife does. She retaliates with that old "Queen of the prom" jazz.

We'd split up but there's a baby on the way. Oh yes, It's mine (though I've told her I had my doubts). We loved each other, then — or at least I thought we did.

I always thought a divorce was easy — until it started happening to us. Do we try to make it, or — CALL IT QUITS?

DEAR CIQ:

My "I.G.A.P. (I'm guessing Again Preception)" says that if you and your wife would level with each other, you might find love isn't as dead as you think. If you no longer cared, would you bother with all this hurting and fighting?

You say that one sentence, shouted in anger, killed your marriage. Don't you know a furious woman goes for the jugular, never mind the truth? I'll bet she tried hard to explain, but your pride closed her out.

So you "got even," and she sniped back by making you feel even more inferior, and the war was on.

Why don't you both concede that the score is even, sit down and talk as you've never talked before? Hopefully, you'll discover you want to stay together because you still care, not simply for the sake of the baby (a dangerous reason). — H.

DEAR HELEN:

A friend told me that if you don't wear a bra, you're more likely to get cancer, and you become saggy earlier. Is this true? — K.J.

DEAR K:

First: Not true.

Second: Probable, if you are the pendulous type. Muscles that support the breast are paper thin and need all the help they can get. Once they stretch from too much weight, there's no bringing back their elasticity. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

I heard that if you have a vasectomy it's only good for seven years. Same with a woman who gets her tubes tied. Right?

— MR. T.

DEAR MR. T.:

Wrong. Only a doctor can reverse these operations, and then only part of the time.

(My doctor had a busy time this week: I call him on HHU questions so much he never knows any more whether I have a pain or a problem.) — H.

This column is dedicated to family living, so if you're having kid trouble or just plain trouble, let Helen help you. Address Helen Bottel in care of the Independent-Journal.

Death Rate Rises With High Carbon Monoxide In Air

By ARTHUR E. ROWSE

WASHINGTON — Results of a four-year study of pollution levels and death rates in Los Angeles County reveal some new clues about the dangers of one of the best known hazards to human life: carbon monoxide.

Everyone learns early in life about this stealthy, invisible, odorless and tasteless gas and the importance of having plenty of ventilation wherever a burning of fuel occurs in the presence of animals or people.

Accidental deaths from carbon monoxide from only one source, unvented gas heaters in homes, have been estimated to be as high as 1,000 per year, according to U.S. Public Health Service data. Many fire victims also succumb to this gas rather than to burns.

But few people are aware of what small amounts of carbon monoxide can do over a long period of time. Even when serious poisoning occurs, the symptoms are often mistaken for signs of food poisoning. The most obvious symptoms are drowsiness, headache, flushed complexion and nausea.

SOME STUDIES have even linked repeated exposure to the gas to a variety of emotional disturbances. Among the less serious effects of breathing heavy concentrations of exhaust fumes are temporary loss of memory and impairment of vision.

The gas accumulates if there is insufficient ventilation in the burning process. As the oxygen in the air disappears, so does the oxygen in the blood and brain, causing the symptoms mentioned above.

Even the relatively small amounts of carbon monoxide in the open air may raise death rates, according to the Los Angeles study, which was reported in the April 16 issue of Science, the weekly journal of the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

In order to determine the effect of the gas, Alfred C. Hexter and John R. Goldsmith, California public health officials, compared day-to-day death statistics with temperatures and carbon monoxide levels for the entire years of 1962, 1963, 1964 and 1965.

THE LINES ON the three graphs were remarkably similar in both high points and low points.

The authors concluded that carbon monoxide, when present in the degree found in Los Angeles air, is definitely associated with increased mortality.

They estimated that 11 more people would die on days of highest monoxide concentration (20.2 parts per million) than on days of lowest concentration (7.3 parts per million), all other factors being equal.

Up to 50 parts per million are known to cause temporary impairments of body functions, but the Los Angeles figures indicate that much lower concentrations encountered repeatedly can be far more serious than one-time exposure to higher concentrations.

IF THE figures are indeed valid, they mean that the polluted air of only one large city can raise the number of deaths in only 100 days higher than the 1,000 fatalities attributed to unvented space heaters for an entire year throughout the country.

People most susceptible to polluted air are those with heart and circulatory ailments or weaknesses. Hexter and Goldsmith found that death rates for these ailments matched the pollution rates with a pattern similar to that for all deaths.

The Independent-Journal presents an unusual two-part program:

RAP SESSION

with

Youth & the Over-Thirties

Expressing the ideas, the opinions, the conflicts and agreements between younger & older people... aimed at a better understanding of one another

Are you open to new ideas? To opinions which may be too far out or too "straight" for you? Can you stand to have your generation constructively criticized — and can you also take applause? This I-J two-part program is an attempt to bring out in the open what's wrong and what's right about the relationship today between youth and older people. In a series of 24 interviews the I-J will present people of diverse backgrounds and opinions expressing their views, their feelings, on the so-called generation gap . . . and what youth and the over-thirties might do to see one another in a more understanding light.

To further focus on this the Independent-Journal presents a contest with substantial prizes for the best letters on how "you" think a better rapport between youth and older people can best be reached. If you have ideas on this, here is your chance to candidly express them. . . with the possibility that your letter may be published whether or not it wins an award. Read the interviews, enter the contest. Ideas are now in session!

Cycles Tested — No Noise

By M. STREET BROOKS

The voice on the other end of the two-way radio said the motorcyclists were out on the course, but the three Marin County supervisors said they could not hear anything.

"There was no noise," said Arnold M. Baptiste, supervisor from Novato. Baptiste, Michael Wornum and Peter R. Arrigoni Jr. were at the Alvin Gambonini Ranch on Marshall-Petāluma Road in West Marin Saturday morning to determine whether or not a use permit should be allowed for use of the ranch by the 105 member Marin Motorcycle Association.

Adjacent landowners claim they have invested almost $1,000,000 in the property and that the noises of cycles would ruin their plans to build a subdivision of secluded homes on the property.

But the supervisors, about one mile away at the adjacent property line, said they could not hear the bikes racing around the tight and bumpy scrambles course.

First they listened for about 30 minutes while a dozen riders with silencers attached to the exhaust pipes of their bikes tested the flaglined half mile course. The silencers are used during all Marin Motorcycle Association events, according to association spokesmen.

Then, just to show how much noise the machines can produce, Bill Verbiscio, owner of Cycle Town in San Rafael, started his 360-cc CZ cycle. Verbiscio's bike is equipped with an expansion chamber, a device used to increase horsepower.

It also increases noise. Standing nearby while Verbiscio went airborne over a pile of soft dirt, the noise was like that of a continuous explosion.

"Like an aircraft in the far distance," was how Baptiste described it from the property line. "It was lower than a voice."

"I just came out to see if they were racing," he said straightfaced. Sadie stood still as though bored as the cycles sped by on the straightaway.

"My tractor makes more noise when I plow the field," Gambonini said.

About 25 people, most of them parents, watched the young riders. "We're after a place where these kids who can't be licensed can ride," explained Dean W. Everett, a forester from Woodacre. "We have seven children and they all ride."

There is also a motorcycle riding trail on the 1,400-are farm's brush covered hills and valleys. Like the scramble course, it is almost one mile from the adjacent land at its closest point. The trail is not used for racing.

Cycling is popular in Marin County with its 16,000 motorcycles, and the Marin Motorcycle Association has had to put a temporary freeze on membership. It is a family club.

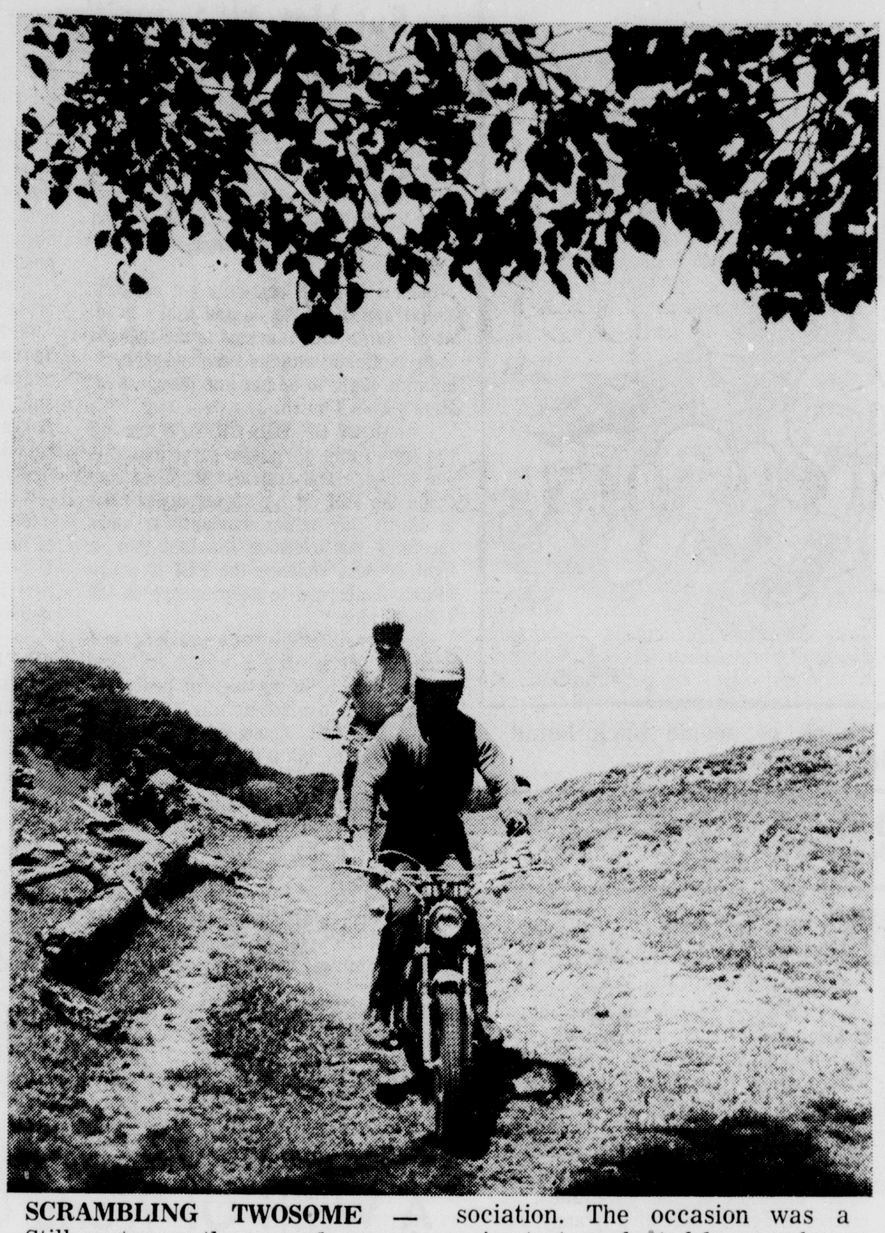
"There is a big problem," Baptiste said. "Not with the racing bikes, but the smaller bikes youngsters use on streets and the mini-bikes.

Baptiste, Wornum and Arrigoni are members of a supervisors' committee studying noise problems caused by cycles. They will report their views to the full board.

"We're looking to a noise ordinance," Baptiste said. "But this would apply to any noise — not just cycles."

He said the committee is considering setting aside outlying areas for riding.

"We have to look at it like any other recreational activity," Baptiste said. "It's not the type of sport that's going to go away."



SCRAMBLING TWOSOME — Still on top as they speed around the obstacle filled scrambles course at the Alvin Gambonini Ranch in West Marin are members of the Marin Motorcycle Association. The occasion was a noise test conducted by members of an ad hoc committee of Marin supervisors to determine if the cycles create a nuisance on adjacent property where a housing development is planned.

Arraignment Slated In Assault

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — John Turner, 25, of Mill Valley, is to be arraigned in San Francisco Superior Court May 14 on a charge of felonious assault stemming from an uproar at a pretrial hearing for the Soledad Brothers.

Turner was bound over to superior court Friday after a preliminary hearing in municipal court.

Turner and two other men were arrested April 6 after a courtroom brawl in the Hall of Justice in which they battled bailiffs.

The Soledad Brothers, George Jackson, Fleeta Drumgo and John Cluchette, are scheduled to stand trial in August in connection with murder of a Soledad Prison guard in January 1970.

Jackson's younger brother, Jonathan, was killed in the Marin Civic Center shoot-out last August which also took the life of Judge Harold J. Haley.

County Raises $3,800 In Auction Of Surplus

Approximately $3,800 was raised Saturday at a Marin County auction at Northgate Industrial Park in San Rafael.

Eugene R. Fontaine, assistant public administrator, said rough figures indicated $2,100 was paid for about 200 county surplus items, and about $1,700 for 82 probate items from the estates of deceased.

Funds from the surplus sale will go into the county's general fund, Fontaine said, and proceeds of the probate sale go to the estates of the items' owners.

Fontaine said 295 persons signed up to bid in the auction.

Bidding was especially active, he said, on a rocking chair that went for $88; a brass-bound chest that sold for $170, and on a dozen surplus fire alarm boxes which went for figures ranging from $4 to $15.

Probation, Prison In Cocaine Sale

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — Judge Albert C. Wollenberg of U.S. District Court has placed one Marin woman on straight probation and sent another to federal prison in connection with a $250,000 cocaine sale.

Receiving probation was Maureen Booth, 24, of San Anselmo, who had earlier pleaded guilty to conspiracy. Marcia Freet, 27, of Sausalito, who had failed to show up for trial on Feb. 1, turned herself in to federal authorities last week and pleaded guilty to a count of selling cocaine.

Judge Wollenberg ordered her to Terminal Island prison for a 60-day study before he determines the length of her prison term. She is due back in court July 23.

The two women were among seven Marinites arrested last May at the San Francisco Airport and in Sausalito as a result of a long investigation.

The only other person to be sentenced to prison in connection with the case, Sharon Ann Needelman, 26, of San Anselmo, has been sought by authorities since she failed to show up Jan. 18 to serve a year in federal prison.

Did The Old Man Really Learn Anything?

Mark Twain once wrote: "When I way a boy of 14, my father was so ignorant I could hardly stand to have the old man around. But when I got to be 21, I was astonished at how much the old man had learned in seven years."

Today, many youths of 21 still have a low opinion of "the old man". There is a popular saying among them, "Don't trust anyone over 30."

IS TODAY'S "GENERATION gap" merely the gap that always has existed between each younger generation and its elders? Or is it something much more?

Are the concerns of our juniors really very different from the concerns of the "over 30s"? Or are they merely expressed differently?

Just what "Establishment" is it against which youth rebels so fervently and sometimes violently? Are not the rebelling youths themselves members of an establishment that is at least in part of their own creation?

THESE ARE QUESTIONS which many answers are offered. But none of the answers seems satisfactory. "Communication" has become a catch word; yet there seems to be great difficulty in young communicating with old, and vice versa. "Dialogues" end up as shouting matches — or as monologues with a Jerry Rubin or a Spiro Agnew "laying it on the line" and everyone else expected to remain silent.

A common complaint of young people is that they are repressed. A common complaint among their elders is that this generation of youth has been coddled by over-permissive parents. Both can't be right. Is either of them?

Spokesmen for youth (or at least, those who claim to be spokesmen for youth) claim "the system" doesn't work. Some of them want to destroy the system. Their elders, some of whom are trying hard to make the system work (and many of whom, unfortunately, seem to feel it will work automatically and they can just have a free ride) challenge youth to say what system it would evolve to replace what we now have.

In every generation, the enthusiasm and idealism of youth serves as a goad for elders whose knowledge and experience is inclined to become corroded by cynicism. But today, the generations appear too much divided for the yeast of youth to provide ferment without explosion.

IT IS TO PROBE into where youth and what it calls the "Establishment" differ, into what youth really wants and what its elders want for it, that the Independent-Journal today begins a "Rap Session" series, to continue for four weeks.

We seek letters from those of all ages, voicing their concerns and their ideas on what divides younger from older and what brings them together.

We don't expect to find all the answers. But maybe we'll find some of them.

Poppies And Lupine

The delicate orange blossoms with the fine fern-like foliage are blooming in the knee-high grass of the next-door orchard. The Spanish called them cups of gold. They are a golden flower for the Golden State. These California poppies are longer blooming than most wildflowers and can be found in flower in some parts of Marin from March through May.

Now they are being joined by the shorter-lived stalks of purple lupine. Together they make a kind of wildflower royalty — the purple and gold — to grace our green Marin hills and dales each spring.

GOLDEN GATE VIEW

One-Man Conservation Lobby In Behalf Of Lame Ducks

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

One member of the Marin County Board of Supervisors has been conducting a solitary campaign in Sacramento against legislation that would cut short the political life of lame duck supervisors.

Supervisor Louis H. Baar, however, never has consulted his four fellow board members publicly on their position on the legislation. One reason may be that they would disagree with him.

A supervisor has the same right as any citizen to lobby in Sacramento. But we question his propriety in lobbying against a measure that could affect directly all other members of his board.

It is possible, of course, that Baar expects lame duckhood to be his personal problem.

THE LEGISLATION was introduced initially by Assemblyman William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael, but he dropped it, reportedly after strong appeals from Baar. The same measure, however, quickly resurfaced with a new author, Assemblyman John T. Knox, D-Richmond.

It would put newly elected supervisors in office 29 days after being elected. A supervisor winning a June primary thus would take his seat by early July.

A CONSTITUTIONAL amendment to approve the law would be on the ballot in June, 1972, thus would apply to supervisorial candidates in that primary election if it passed.

Seating 29 days after election was aimed at preventing lame ducks from passing ordinances after their defeat, as happened with several controversial land uses last year in Sacramento County. Ordinances generally take 30 days to become effective, so a newly elected supervisor could vote to reverse approval of any ordinance which he opposed.

Former Marin Supervisor Ernest N. Kettenhofen, incidentally, called for such legislation when he lost in the June, 1968, primary to Peter R. Arrigoni Jr.

The full board could resolve the issue by taking a public stand on the legislation. It shouldn't take all that much political courage to vote to support the legislation.

Opposing it, after all, would appear to be an admission of less than overwhelming confidence that the voters want you enough to keep you in office.

REP. WILLIAM S. Mailliard, R-Sixth District, was criticized here recently for supporting the supersonic transport. His staff promptly sent us a protest — and mailed it to San Rafael from San Francisco with an airmail stamp.

Maybe they thought it was coming by SST?

A TINY TRIUMPH for candor was uttered this month by former County Supervisor Thomas T. Storer: "It has been my considered opinion that most people holding public office are extremely limited and usually totally lacking in imagination."

Making the comment to the Independent-Journal after the Larkspur City Council approved a creekside development he was protesting, Storer said, "Nothing happened here tonight to change that opinion."

Mental Health Center Assisted Program

I appreciate the coverage your newspaper gave to "A Night at Generation Gap" held at Adaline E. Kent School, March 17 and 24. However, I would like to add further information and acknowledge the important contribution by personnel from the Community Mental Health Center.

The program was organized by a committee of Kentfield parents under the chairmanship of Mrs. Nancy Osborn. The committee sought and received consultant help from Mrs. Connie Lashbrook, mental health educator at the Community Mental Health Center. Mrs. Lashbrook devoted many hours in training students and parents for their role as facilitators in group discussions . . .

It was the enthusuasm of all participants which helped to make the evenings beneficial and I am grateful for the knowledge that such agencies and services as the Community Mental Health Center are available in Marin County.

Judicial Tyranny Disaster For Children

Yesterday's April 20 supreme court decision on school busing will be a major disaster for our children. Judicial tyranny is as bad as executive tyranny. The writers of our constitution were students of history and were aware of executive tyranny - chiefly of kings and emperors. Judicial tyranny had not yet appeared. The founding fathers gave us three coequal branches of the government to protect us against executive tyranny. Judicial tyranny did not occur to them, and they provided us no defense against it.

Toliver Charges Called Incongruous

I can't help seriously questioning the incongruous charges of "incompetence" and "disruptive behavior" brought against special assistant James T. Toliver Jr. by Supt. Lawrence A. Lindberg of the Sausalito School District.

I find them inconsistent with our experience and observation during the years our son attended Martin Luther King and I worked there regularly as a library volunteer. We came to trust and depend on Mr. Toliver as a man of thorough competence and integrity.

When Mr. Toliver first came to the school he was one of the counselors in Guidance, where it was the enlightened policy to send children whose behavior was disrupting the class. His handling of problems showed excellent training and skill. . .

During the next two years at Martin Luther King most of the responsibility for handling disciplinary problems and explosive situations devolved on Mr. Toliver and he continued to handle them basically in this manner which proved effective regardless of the current mechanics for handling discipline problems, which changed each year under different administrators, and at the same time he seemed to be able to work in harmony with the different regimes. . .

I am convinced that if Mr. Toliver's performance were evaluated by professionals qualified by similar training and experience to judge it, it would be found that his work meets high professional standards, and that his behavior, rather than disruptive, is consistent with the highest professional ethical standards. . .

Track Team Member Supports Principal

I believe Mr. (Donald) Kreps made the right move in the recent track controversy at Redwood High School. I also believe Steve Levintow had every right to ask him for help.

This particular episode was brought upon by stubbornness on both sides, the failing to reach a compromise, and was climaxed by Coach (Stanley) Tobiason's quitting.

Mr. Kreps stepped into the controversy when Coach Tobiason wouldn't let Levintow on the team. Coach Tobiason had no reason other than his own personal dislike for Levintow to keep him off the team. Now don't get me wrong, Levintow and other members of past Redwood teams have given Coach Tobiason much trouble in the past, much of it completely uncalled for and unfair. However Coach Tobiason invented ways to keep Levintow off the team. One reason was his hair length. Steve's hair was shorter than members of our team. Another reason for banning him from the team was because he hadn't practiced with the team. Coach Tobiason had forbade him from practicing on the track. Steve did show up for practice but he was turned away.

I must disagree with Joe Clark when he says the team morale was hurt when our coaches quit. Now the team has more responsibility and everyone is pulling together to help out our new coaches, Mr. Russ Hill and Mr. Don Shaver. Mr. Hill has made a great effort to help our team. Mr. Hill really cares about all of us and tries to help us all.

Believe me, the Redwood track team will carry on and you will hear great things from us and our new coaches.

REMEMBER WHEN?

10 YEARS AGO

APRIL 26, 1961

The Marin County Board of Supervisors by 3-2 vote set a June 27 special election on approval of federal construction of up to 300 low-rent homes and of a $1 million county hospital bond issue. Supervisors Walter R. Castro and William A. Gnoss dissented.

A four-day French Army revolt in Algeria was crushed with hardly a shot fired.

20 YEARS AGO

APRIL 26, 1951

The San Anselmo City Council urged state Sen. John F. McCarthy, R-San Rafael, to support a statewide curfew law proposal.

ROSCOE DRUMMOND

Too Much Spying On Americans, But Not All Surveillance Wrong

WASHINGTON — There has been too much blunderbuss spying going on in the United States. It is unhealthy and unnecessary.

It is, therefore, eminently welcome that Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C., a great civil libertarian, is preparing legislation to bring surveillance activities under control.

Such a bill will certainly get congressional approval, too — and that's good. At the same time it seems to me that the indiscriminate attacks on needed surveillance ought to be put into perspective. Here's what I mean:

1 — MOST OF THE CRITICS most of the time lump all public surveillance in one package and attack it all. They condemn the FBI for having agents present at Earth Day rallies and antiwar mass meetings but overlook the fact that in light of past violence the FBI is legitimately concerned to keep an eye on the violent-prone.

This surveillance is not a watch against peaceful protest but a watch on those who are likely to try to turn peaceable assemblies into a free-for-all.

2 — The FBI should not be immune from criticism, but it is intolerable that it should be made the target of meat-ax attacks without proof. This is a Hitler tactic. Assert the unproved and keep on repeating it until it is believed.

3 — And now Democrats are making the FBI a political football. They kick it every morning and twice and night and nearly all the would-be Democratic presidential nominees are chorusing the same things.

IT IS REVEALING to note how eagerly many liberals hop on President Nixon, Attorney General Mitchell, J. Edgar Hoover and others for lack of credibility. But then these liberals become chastened beyond words when those who make these attacks fail to provide proof.

The most vivid example is the accusation House Democratic Leader Hale Boggs, D-La., made April 15 when he accused the FBI of "tapping the telephones of members of this body and of members of the Senate."

That was 20 days ago. No evidence to prove the accusation.

IT HAS BEEN demonstrated that the Justice Department obtained from the telephone company records of long-distance calls made from the offices of Boggs and former Speaker John McCormack in connection with criminal investigations of two of McCormack's aides.

It has been demonstrated that an FBI informant made a secret tape-recording of his interview with Rep. John Dowdy, D-Tex., in connection with alleged bribery for which Rep. Dowdy is now under indictment.

As the Washington Post fairly points out, these incidents "do not support Boggs' April 5 accusations and the FBI can hardly be condemned for investigating allegedly illegal acts even when they touch congressmen."

NO CONGRESSMAN or senator has come forward to support Rep. Boggs's accusations. Senator Ervin says he has yet to find any evidence of illegal actions by the FBI and Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield, D-Mont., says the same thing.

Despite unfair criticism of legitimate surveillance, Senator Ervin makes a good case that it has gone too far. Congress is rightly planning to lay down careful guidelines to control such surveillance and will almost certainly prohibit civilian spying by the military.

BY NO MEANS NEUTRAL

By ERNEST B. FURGURSON

THURMONT, Md.— Camp David lies quiet on weekdays behind ranks of "no trespassing" signs, two strands of steel wire, two tall chain-link fences with barbed wire on top and a cleared lane between, floodlights with interlocking coverage, and guardhouses positioned for maximum field of view. To the passer-by driving through Catoctin Mountain National Park, it looks more like a concentration camp than a presidential retreat.

But to the 1,200 District of Columbia fifth-graders who will have spent a week in the park before school adjourns for the summer, Camp David may be the least impressive thing on the mountain. Some of them never heard of it.

They are public school children from the blackest big city in America. About 90 per cent of them are black, and many are poor. Many have never been outside their home neighborhoods before. Almost none ever has spent a night away from home. Home, for most, is the far-reaching ghetto of Washington, which is not the same city of green spaces, monuments and flowering trees that constitutes picture-book Washington.

UNDER THOSE circumstances, what is so impressive about seeing a barbed-wire barrier, compared to smelling your first pine tree? As one 10-yearold described the sensation of sitting in a grove beside Hunting Creek, "It smelled just like bathroom cleaner."

That is the kind of particularly urban insight heard by schoolteachers and park rangers every day as they lead the children through their first experience in a world most of us take for granted, one only 75 miles from Washington, yet as foreign as Urdu to a ghetto fifth-grader.

The program ostensibly is five days of environmental education. The park service and the Washington School Board co-operate on it. It is the first time the park service has taken an active part in teaching groups of overnight visitors to the national parks, rather than merely playing landlord for them. Frank Mentzer, the park superintendent and an eager advocate of the program, sees it as a pilot project that could lead the nationwide service further into dealing with people as much as with trees, with wide-eyed city children as much as with experienced family campers.

IN SEVERAL WAYS, the program takes up where the late Job Corps left off when it was abolished by Mr. Nixon. The schoolchildren live in a former Job Corps camp at Round Meadow. The park service official in direct charge is Oliver Gillespie, who was a Job Corps teacher before he switched titles. Most of those in class are from the same background as the Job Corps enrollees were, only younger.

On the bookshelf in Gillespie's office, mixed in with National Wildlife magazines and the other conservation publications you would expect, are books on SNCC, on black progress since slavery and other subjects more likely for the sociologist than the ranger.

And while the program teaches subjects entitled, "Man and His Environment," "Stream Ecology," "Animal Habitats" and "Geology," teachers and rangers alike agree that the main thing the students take back to the city is less specific environmental knowledge than a new way of looking at themselves and what is around them.

BEFORE THE FIRST group arrived, Mentzer was told, "My God, those inner-city kids are going to tear the place apart." But the only damage was a broken window pane, result of an honest foul tip.

The former professional football guard who supervises the program from the city side is amazed that there is almost no disciplinary problem among a group of children who would never let a day pass without a series of fights in their regular schools. He attributes it to the newness of it all, the fact that nobody is bored. Some of the children are experiencing the luxury of sleeping in a bed alone for the first time, for example.

There are challengers to such a program, who maintain it is unfair to expose poor children to a world beyond their attainment, thus inviting resentment and later trouble. To a man, the staff here takes the opposite view: that teaching a child that there is more out there than asphalt and pollution will encourage him to work harder toward a place in that cleaner, calmer world.

THE KIDS from the Charles Young School, which sits alongside the foul Anacostia River in Washington, know now that up in Maryland where the Anacostia begins, it is just as clean and sweet as Hunting Creek.

And some know now what a student pointed out to his classmates as he shushed them along a trail climbing near the barbed-wire of Camp David: "If you go too fast, you miss a lot of things. It's just like it is in life."

It is not a thought very likely to occur to the typical fifth-grader shut up in the spring in a school in the inner city.

I-J REPORTER'S NOTEBOOK

By MARY LEYDECKER

Question On Your Income Tax? Just Call Your Friendly IRS

About six weeks ago, on a dark rainy evening, I arrived home late after a long day in court with Angela Davis to find:

1. Garbage had been strewn all over the kitchen floor by the dog.

2. My youngest son had left the thermostat set at 90 degrees.

3. I had received a notice from the Internal Revenue Service that my 1969 income tax return was being audited.

After cleaning up the garbage and turning down the heat, I began to try to cope with the IRS.

FIRST OF ALL, the unsigned form letter asked for information on two children whose names were typed on the forms. One was easy — it said "John," and I have a son named John. The other asked for detailed information about a person named "Mark."

I know any number of kids named Mark, but none that I wanted to discuss with the IRS, at least at any length.

The next day, after a not very good night's sleep, I decided against the advice of helpful friends, to call the IRS office in San Francisco and ask just what they wanted.

("Don't talk to them," my income tax man had said ominously, "with them, one thing just leads to another.")

I dialed the number listed in the phone book and after talking with three successive people who suggested I come over there if I had a problem, I finally found a voice that resignedly offered a little help.

"JUST READ ME the numbers and letters on the form you got," she said.

I read them off — a string of letters sort of like those the computer puts on the bottom of checks — the symbols ended with C. Ah-Tye-2001.

"Oh," said the voice, "you want to talk to Miss Ah-Tye."

For a moment I was so confused I thought that she was either putting me on or that people who work for the IRS call each other by code names.

However, a few seconds later, a pleasant voice came on the phone, saying, "This is Miss Ah-Tye. May I help you?"

NOT ONLY DID Miss Ah-Tye seem to be a real person, she made good her promise to call me back later that day.

She solved the "Mark" problem as being a typist's error and reassured me that I didn't have to send her all my cancelled checks for 1969. "Just give your best estimate about food costs," she said cheerfully.

I was so reassured by the pleasant Miss Ah-Tye that I soon spent a Sunday afternoon getting together the figures she wanted and sending them off.

After a month and no word from the IRS, I decided my worries were over until someone told me that the IRS always lets people know about the outcome of the audits.

Well, I thought, I'll just call my friend, Miss Ah-Tye, and ask her about it.

THIS WEEK I again dialed the number listed in the phone book, having lost the special phone number where Miss A-T could be reached. This time it took four attempts to get her office — then to be told firmly, "Miss Ah-Tye is no longer with us."

"Miss Ah-Tye is no longer with you!" I gasped.

I managed to find out that she had been transferred to Oakland and even got the number there.

After three more attempts, I got Miss A-T on the phone, and she seemed, at least vaguely, to remember my "case."

However, she said all her former cases were still in San Francisco, and I should call there.

After telling her that I had tried there and had been told that she was still assigned to my case, she had one final suggestion.

"GO OVER THERE," she said firmly. "If they see you standing at the counter, they can't ignore you. Some clerk will finally find your case."

Instead of that move, which I'm saving as the final one to make when all else fails, I called San Francisco again.

This time a clerk told me that there were "a whole bunch of cases in limbo," caused apparently by transfer not only of Miss Ah-Tye but of several other people.

The clerk couldn't find my case at all that time but made one final suggestion, "If you don't hear from us in six weeks, you really should call again."

Half-Million Runaways: Why Do They Do It?

By LOUIS CASSELS
UPI Senior Editor

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Each year, about 500,000 boys and girls under the age of 17 run away from home.

Why do they do it? Where do they go? How do they fare? What can worried parents do?

Sensible and compassionate answers to these questions are found in a book called "Runaways" by Lillian Ambrosino, published this week by Beacon Press.

MISS AMBROSINO'S extensive research into the growing runaway problem indicates that many different motives may drive a teen-ager to leave home in search of a new life. Some children flee from alcoholic parents. Others leave homes that have been broken and demoralized by divorce or desertion.

"Ironically, many runaways actually love or respect their parents. Departure signifies disappointment: parents do not understand, or they are unrealistically harsh in their rules or expectations, or the runaway fears recrimination for poor school grades."

Some runaways seek to lose themselves in the anonymity of the nearest big city. But the usual pattern is to go farther afield, to another state or another part of the country.

Most of them are ill-equipped to make it on their own. Their average age is 15. They have no job skills, and even if they could find jobs, they would be barred from employment by the laws of most states requiring work permits for minors.

ABOUT HALF of the runaways are girls: they are particularly vulnerable to the machinations of "friendly strangers" who pose as benefactors but actually propose to introduce them to drugs and prostitution.

Fortunately, there are other friendly strangers who respond in kindness to the need of a strayed child. "Among the most moving experiences recalled by reconciled runaways," reports Miss Ambrosino, "is the generous nature of some of the poor. For every predatory adult who stalks the innocent, there are countless others who will unhesitatingly offer a complete stranger room, food, money. People who have little sometimes share it most; they can easily empathize with misery."

More and more urban churches are learning that the provision of food, shelter and friendly counsel to runaway kids is a form of Christian service they are emiently equipped to undertake. There also are in most major cities branches of the Travelers Aid society. "Probably no single agency has done as much" for runaway children as this voluntary service organization, Miss Ambrosino says.

SOME CITES now have "half-way houses," such as Huckleberry's in San Francisco or Project Place in Boston, where young people can find a temporary home while they work out their decisions on what to do now.

More informal and perhaps even more effective is the growing network of "hotlines" —such as The Switchboard in Washington or HELP in Philadelphia —which are staffed by young people. A runaway can call the hotline number at any hour of day or night, and a sympathetic voice will advise him where he can find a bite to eat and a safe place to "crash" (sleep overnight).

What can worried parents do? They can file a "missing child" report with the police, who are already swamped with such reports. They can go in person to search for their child in the known runaway centers of nearby cities, but this is a difficult, expensive and often frustrating course.

ON THE WHOLE, she concludes, the most pracitical thing parents can do is simply wait and hope. As they sweat out the agony of waiting, they may take some comfort from the knowledge that "most first-time runaways do come back home within a week." They usually will have learned something worthwhile from their experience. And hopefully, their parents may also have learned something — about the need to listen and care.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Many Older Persons Ignore Signs Of Ailments Due To Their Age

Many oldsters regard any distress as their penalty for living so long. They get into trouble when a new sickness is confused with being old. Most physicians have seen 80-year-old men and women wait until an acute appendix has ruptured before calling for help. Some are so accustomed to chronic distress that they do not feel the pain or report to the doctor. Now and then oldsters neglect the pain of a recent heart attack. A 77-year-old woman did this even though 10 years earlier, her husband, a son and one brother had died of similar symptoms. She considered the chest pain to be "bad indigestion." Furthermore, she thought such distress was to be expected at her age.

BRONCHOPNEUMONIA can incapacitate a younger person but may be mild in the elderly. The senior citizen may consider it no worse than a "bad cold." Some continue with their chores until completely exhausted.

With age it is natural to develop more ailments but illnesses are not necessarily caused by advancing years. The older person who thinks he is supposed to be sick is missing the boat. Aches and pains are to be expected but being over 65 does not immunize a person against infections, liver trouble, appendicitis, or a kidney infection.

AS THE YEARS pass, many organs may deteriorate but the structures have enough reserve to function adequately. But let us assume that the individual develops a bladder infection. Not only is his resistance lowered but the disorder places an extra burden on his slightly handicapped heart and circulation.

Now he develops cardiac symptoms or perhaps the mind becomes a bit foggy because the brain is not receiving enough blood. Unless the chain of events is recognized, the untreated bladder infection keeps the heart and brain below par. This interrelationship between the organs is important because a disturbance of one structure upsets the balance and efficiency of the others.

DEGREES OF FEVER

F. M. writes: Is a fever of 103 more serious in an adult than in a child?

REPLY

Children run higher temperatures than do adults with comparable infections. In this respect, a temperature of 103 is more serious in grownups. But the outlook depends upon the cause of the fever. A mann or woman with measles may be twice as sick as a child, even with the same degree of fever.

MATERNAL NURSING

Mrs. F. G. writes: Are there any special advantages to breast feeding?

REPLY

Yes, mainly because mother's milk is what nature intended for her child. Examples of the advantages are that breast feeding is safer and more convenient; the food provided is nutritionally superior, and the method is of psychological value to the baby and the mother.

HYPNOSIS NOT FOR ALL

H. P. writes: You once said that women who have had a nervous breakdown should not be hypnotized. Any reason for your comment?

REPLY

Why take a chance on opening old emotional wounds? On the other hand, psychiatrists have found hypnosis useful in certain types of mental illness.

Nhan Dan Sees 'Great Storm' Against Nixon

TOKYO (UPI)—North Vietnam said today this weekend's antiwar demonstrations show "a great storm of the American peoples' fury is overwhelming the bellicose clique of Nixon."

The official Hanoi newspaper Nhan Dan said in an editorial broadcast by the North Vietnamese radio that the "peace now" shouts were thrown "in the face of the cruel chieftains of the White House and the Pentagon by tens of thousands of Americans."

It said ranks of the antiwar demonstrators were swelled by "congressmen and politicians who have realized that the Nixon clique's blind war policy is driving the capitalist United States close to disaster."

Good Prospects For 1971 Grads

PITTSBURGH (UPI) —Elliot L. Richardson, secretary of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW), said Sunday this year's graduating college students will have a better chance of landing a job.

"I don't anticipate many graduates to be jobless, except by choice," Richardson told newsmen prior to receiving an honorary doctor of laws degree at commencement exercises at the University of Pittsburgh.

McElroy said employment opportunities are favorable for engineering and science graduates but not for aerospace engineers.

Helen Hayes Well

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Helen Hayes, 70, was reported "resting well" at Providence Hospital today where she was admitted over the weekend for treatment of a respiratory infection.

Bruce's Successor On Board's Agenda

A replacement for County Administrator Alan Bruce, who resigned under pressure last week, will be discussed by the Marin County Board of Supervisors tomorrow.

When the agenda was complete Friday, Chairman Louis H. Baar was out of town, and Vice Chairman Peter R. Arrigoni Jr. reserved time on the agenda for a closed meeting at 11:30 a.m. to discuss the appointment of a county administrator.

Arrigoni said the closed meeting is not definite. He said he reserved the time in case the board wants to consider a successor to Bruce, who will leave July 1.

Other items on the supervisors' agenda include:

FLOOD ZONE — Supervisor Michael Wornum will ask that the Richardson Bay Flood Control Zone advisory board be increased from five to seven members.

APPOINTMENTS — Appointments or reappointments will be made to the Building Code Board of Appeals, Association of Bay Area Governments, Law Library board of trustees, and Richardson Bay Flood Control Zone Advisory Board.

PERSONNEL COMMISSION — Personnel Director Maren Rinne will ask that personnel commission members not be limited to $50 per month per diem payments because they are forced to meet as many as five or six times per month.

CAPITAL PROGRAM — A public hearing is set for 11 a.m. to discuss the county administrator's recommendation for roads and building construction for the next six years.

MOTORCYCLE — At 1:45 p.m., the supervisors will get results of a field test of motorcycle trail riding on the Anita Gambonini Ranch on Marshall-Petaluma Road. Marin Motorcycle Association wants permission for riding on the ranch, but adjacent landowners object to the noise and traffic.

TOMALES BAY RANCH — Bruce Wendell Beebe's request for rezoning of his Tomales Bay Ranch a half mile south of Blake's Landing to permit eight residences.

AIRPORT OVERLAY — Public Works Director Donald R. Frost will report that the runway overlay at Gnoss Field will cost $5,458 more than the $13,500 budgeted for 1970-71. He said the increase is due to new federal laws.

Marin Ballet Scholarship Trials Set

Auditions for a Marin Music Chest ballet scholarship will be held June 5 in Angelico Hall at Dominican College of San Rafael, according to Mrs. Samuel Archibald, Music Chest President.

Marin ballet students between the ages of 14 and 19 who have studied a minimum of four years are eligible to audition.

Vocal and instrumental auditions will be held sometime in August, Mrs. Archibald said.

Requests for audition blanks are available by writing Marin Music Chest, Box 468, Ross.

Five per cent of the money taken in during the current summer concert subscriptions drive goes into the scholarship fund, according to Mrs. Archibald. The balance is used for artists' fees.

The 1971 concert series opens June 20 in Forest Meadows, San Rafael

Free Rides For Poor Planned

The Economic Opportunity Council will provide free transportation one day a week for low income families in Southern Marin cities beginning May 7, Doretha Mitchell, director of community organization, announced today.

The EOC will provide five volunteers every Thursday and will coordinate passenger scheduling. The Red Cross will provide a car for this use.

The service, based at the EOC office at 630 Drake Avenue, Marin City, is available for persons needing transportation to "just about anywhere," Mrs. Mitchell said.

Council Post To Be Filled In Novato

The Novato City Council is scheduled to appoint a councilman Tuesday night to fill the seat vacated by Douglas M. Merrill, an appointment which has been shrouded in mystery.

Councilmen have refused to disclose the identity of the nine candidates, but five have become known.

If the council fails to select someone to succeed Merrill by Mary 13, there will be an election. The new councilman will complete Merrill's term, which expires in April, 1972.

The scheduled hearing on Sono-Marin Builder's appeal of planning commission denial of a tentative map for an 81-lot subdivision will be postponed until May 4, City Mgr. Charles A. Brown said.

To Be Honored

Gambling Research Turns Up Proof Some Are 'Born Losers'

DAVIS, Calif. (UPI)—The longshot gambler with a steady record of losing can be the victim of a personality quirk and not just bad luck, according to a University of California researcher in psychology.

Robert P. Crandall said a study showed that a person with low self-esteem generally assumes "great risks with the greater consequent possibility of failure."

Crandall, a senior at he UC Davis campus, conducted the study under the supervision of Dr. Stanley Coopersmith, a professor of psychology, with a grant from the President's Undergraduate Fellowship Program.

"Persons with high self-esteem take less risks that more frequently pay off in tangible success," Coopersmith said in commenting on Crandall's survey.

The professor said that Crandall's findings suggested a "useful, practical method of affecting self-esteem."

Coopersmith said, "It may be possible to raise a person's regard for himself and thus change his overall personality for the better because his (Crandall's) experimental results show that one's self-esteem is continually affected by a process based on consistent successes or failure in the 'experimental field' of daily life."

To get a person to think better of himself, the psychologist said, a therapist would only have to "structure his experience so that he is taking risks at a level that will pay off consistently.

"Although early development and unconscious factors have a bearing on our later level of self-esteem, continuing environmental influences can affect and possibly change our view of ourselves."

To clarify the results of his study, Crandall said he was not trying to imply that persons with high self-esteem never take chances or "rise to impossible challenges."

Instead, he said, he believes that "perhaps a background of consistent success, characteristic of the person with high self-esteem who makes few risks resulting in failure, makes unusual risks subjectively possible.

"In other words, high-esteem people may try occasional longshots and can afford to fail at them while low-esteem people aren't able to cope constructively with longshots though they may take more of them."

DRAMA REVIEW

Different Points Of View On Play

By KAY KSANDA

When two theater groups in Marin County produce the same play at the same time, they automatically set up a contest of competence and talents. As with ladies in identical ballgowns, one is apt to notice which has the better figure, and who has the greater style.

Within one week of each other, the Ross Valley Players of the Marin Art and Garden Center, and the Actors Playhouse of Marin, at Congregation Rodef Sholom in San Rafael, have presented "Plaza Suite." The Actors Playhouse version (reviewed last week) runs Saturday and Sunday nights through May 8th. Productions in Ross are Friday and Saturday nights at 8:30 p.m. through May 22. With such scheduling everyone, and particularly the casts, can see both interpretations of this wildly funny, and widely known Neil Simon comedy.

There are striking differences, and few similarities in the two productions.

"Plaza Suite," is three comedies, three different stories in the common setting of Suite 719 at the Savoy-Plaza in New York. All have "marriage" as an object of kindly ridicule, with dialogue and situation staying witty, brittle, and in the Ross version, sometimes not so light and gay.

In the first story, in which Karen Nash attempts to resurrect her 23-year-old failing marriage by returning to the honeymoon suite with her abstracted husband, the situation in Ross is no longer funny. After five minutes of listening to Mrs. Nash's whiny monotone, one wonders if Mr. Nash will show up at all. The once acid and clever remarks fade into just another soap opera.

In the second story, Hollywood producer Jesse Kiplinger (Robert Salvas) has invited his old high school sweetheart, Muriel Tate (Betty Sawyer), up to his hotel suite for an "old acquaintance" chat. He has seduction in mind, but she wants the inside news on the jet set. There are few nuances. The proposition is pretty clear, and although both of the personalities have their pretensions, they play an almost jaded game... an interesting interpretation.

The third story has Mr. and Mrs. Hubley in a hilarious farce trying to extricate their reluctant daughter, in her bridal finery, from her barricade in the hotel bathroom. Ernest Widlund and Virginia O'Brien as Mr. and Mrs. Hubley use every line, every situation to drop the audience in the aisle. They do a beautiful job! This act is the best of the play, with memorable lines and looks.

Obviously director Bill Derveniotes went for social comment more than laughs in his first two acts. Much of the stilleto witticism was lost in the first act by turning Mrs. Nash into a complete frump. Every woman in the audience was against her. No woman that fat, wearing sausage curls and a pant suit, should expect to keep her husband. More than a second honeymoon, she needed shaping up.

In act two, the characters were more selfish than evolved. However, this again is another way to see it.

The last act was absolutely marvelous! Ernest Widlund has the harrassed father at perfect pitch.

The set in both productions is about the same...you've seen one hotel room, you've seen 'em all.

"PLAZA SUITE" — A comedy in three acts by Neil Simon; presented by the Ross Valley Players and directed by Bill Derveniotes and assisted by Mona Horwitz. Set by Mario Gianetti, with costumes by Virginia O'Brien. The Cast: Act 1: Bell Boy, Scott Burton; Karen Nash, Patricia Hicks; Sam Nash, Roger Garety; Waiter, Mike Lopez; Jean McCormick, Marianne Richardson. Act 2: Waiter, Mike Lopez; Jesse Kiplinger, Robert Salvas; Muriel Tate, Betty Sawyer; Act 3: Norma Hubley, Virginia O'Brien; Roy Hubley, Ernest Widlund; Borden Eisler, Scott Burton; Mimsey Hubley, Barbara Morrisey.

MINI ROCKET TAKES TO THE AIR

Teacher Mary Lou Gamby watches as one of her Greenbrae School pupils' rockets takes off at the Redwood Sanitary Landfill in Novato. Rockets reached a top altitude of 500 feet. Approximately 30 students capped classroom research into rockets and model rocket firing with the launch day Friday. Civil Air Patrol Col. Mike Patterson supervised the firings along with safety standards set by National Association of Rocketry. Participants, from grades 3 to 6, used scale models of actual experimental and space rockets powered by solid fuel. The children are trying to form a Marin chapter of NAR.

Earth Day Location Changed

Plans for Earth Day II on Saturday are continuing, but the location of the celebration has been changed from the College of Marin to the Isabel Cook School in San Anselmo, according to Patrick Heffernan, publicity chairman.

A program of speakers, exhibits and performances is scheduled from 10 a.m. to sunset Saturday at the school and on the grounds nearby. Earth Day IIwill be sponsored by the Marin Ecology Center and will include participation by conservation groups and other organizations.

In addition to previously announced activities set for Saturday, musicians and puppeteers will gather at the People's Community Market (the former flea market) at Paradise Drive and Highway 101 in Corte Madera from noon until sunset Sunday to continue the celebration. The program, called "Children of the Earth," will include an ecology puppet show, song, minstrels and dancing.

Cities Stability Of Haiti Regime

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti (UPI)—U.S. Ambassador Clinton E. Knox defended the government of the late President Francois Duvalier Sunday and said the United States should increase aid to Haiti.

Knox told a news conference at his residence in the hills above Port-au-Prince that Duvalier had created political stability in Haiti during his 14-year reign and passed it along to his son Jean-Claude, the new president.

Duvalier's opponents have characterized him as a brutal dictator.

Knox said the government was supported by the various military groups in Haiti and would remain stable for the foreseeable future.

MUSIC REVIEW

Novato's Robin Miler Is Bound For Stardom

By MAYBELLE SPECKMAN

Robin Miler. Remember that name, for it will be a big one some day in the world of music. That is, it will be if the 22-year-old soprano from Novato has the ambition, perseverance and capacity for hard work that are perhaps even more important in reaching that goal than God-given talent and a glorious voice.

Until Saturday night in her recital in Caleruega Hall of Dominican College, I had heard the young singer only in college opera workshop performances, which gave her little opportunity to show her full potentials. Since then she has been a finalist in Metropolitan Opera auditions in San Francisco and won the top $500 L.H. Garland Study Award this year in San Francisco Opera Association auditions.

Despite her youth Miss Miler has a mature, powerful voice of great flexibility, warmth, purity and tonal beauty that she produces with ease and freedom over a wide range. It was thrilling to hear her soar into her highest register without loss of that lovely tonal quality, and she can do this without the facial distortion that mars many a soprano's top notes.

There was some evidence of incomplete control in audible, spasmodic breathing, which more relaxation and practice should conquer.

An innate ability to express dramatic situations and emotion indicate a natural suitability for opera. This was demonstrated in her opening aria, "Dove sono" from Mozart's "Le Nozze di Figaro," and later in the famed "Un Bel Di Vedremo" from Puccini's "Madama Butterfly."

In addition to her vocal assets the young singer has poise, presence and a sparkling personality, and, as if all this were not enough, she has gift for and special interest in languages. A junior at Dominican, she is, in fact, majoring in Spanish, not music.

Her two operatic arias were sung in Italian, and her linguistic facility was further evident in a group of German lieder by Brahms and Schubert and art songs in French by Debussy and ones in Spanish by De Falla.

Though she sang them well, this is where she can benefit from further study. She has such an exuberantly vital temperament and sings with such intense joyousness at full volume that these traits have a tendency to influence and color songs of subtle character requiring more delicate shadings. I should like to hear her develop finer spun, sustained pianissimo.

Two religious songs by Barber and a delightful group of little haiku by Birch showed her command of English diction and versatility in singing music of different styles.

Concluding her concert were a Cole Porter medley and Lerner and Loewe "Brigadoon" medley that were pure entertainment.

Correspondents Attack Nixon Press Relations

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (UPI)—President Nixon's press relations and Vice President Spiro T. Agnew's outspokenness were attacked by White House correspondents Sunday during a panel discussion.

White House News Secretary Ronald L. Zeigler also had some criticism of the news media during the hour-long program at the regional convention of the Sigma Delta Chi professional journalism fraternity.

Helen Thomas, a UPI White House correspondent, said Nixon holds too few news conferences to keep the people informed. And she said the administration "packages the palatable news and hopes you won't find the rest."

Hugh Sidey of Life Magazine characterized Agnew as an "unguided missile" seeking a constituency separate from the Nixon Administration while Dan Rather of CBS said the vice president "has a role to play—to give us Wallacism without Wallace, and to wean away the votes Wallace received in 1968."

Douglas Cornell of the Associated press moderated the discussion.

Ziegler labeled a recent CBS documentary critical of Pentagon publicity techniques as an example of a "bad job" done by newsmen.

But Rather said "The Selling of the Pentagon" probably "didn't hit hard enough."

"Whenever you hit close to home with the truth, you hear a lot of screaming, and that's what you're hearing now," Rather said.

Regarding a presidential credibility gap, Sidey said that a president—no matter how many people he sees—is isolated from the people, because isolation is a state of mind.

"Americans have the tendency to confuse this isolation with the personality of the President," Sidey said.

Rather disagreed, saying every President also is a politician.

"A politician will lie to you and a president will lie to you," he said.

Apartment Use On Planning Agenda

A use permit for a 32-unit apartment building at 270 Channing Way will be considered by the San Rafael Planning Commission when it meets at 7:30 p.m. tomorrow at city hall.

Also on the agenda are use permit applications for a five-building office development at 4360 Redwood Highway and for an existing Standard Oil service station at 3 Loch Lomond Drive.

Art Trends Topic At Garden Center

Harry X. Ford, president of California College of Arts and Crafts, will give an illustrated talk on current trends in art and education at 8 p.m. Wednesday at Frances Young Gallery in the Marin Art and Garden Center.

The presentation will open the Marin Society of Artists' spring series of programs at the Center.

PICTURESQUE PARADE — The beautiful Golden Gate Bridge and the hills above Sausalito provided a brilliant background for the yacht season's opening day parade yesterday as it headed from Raccoon Straits out into the San Francisco Bay. Thousands of boats took part in the pageant, and three from Marin County won top prizes.

Winning Day For Marin Yachtsmen

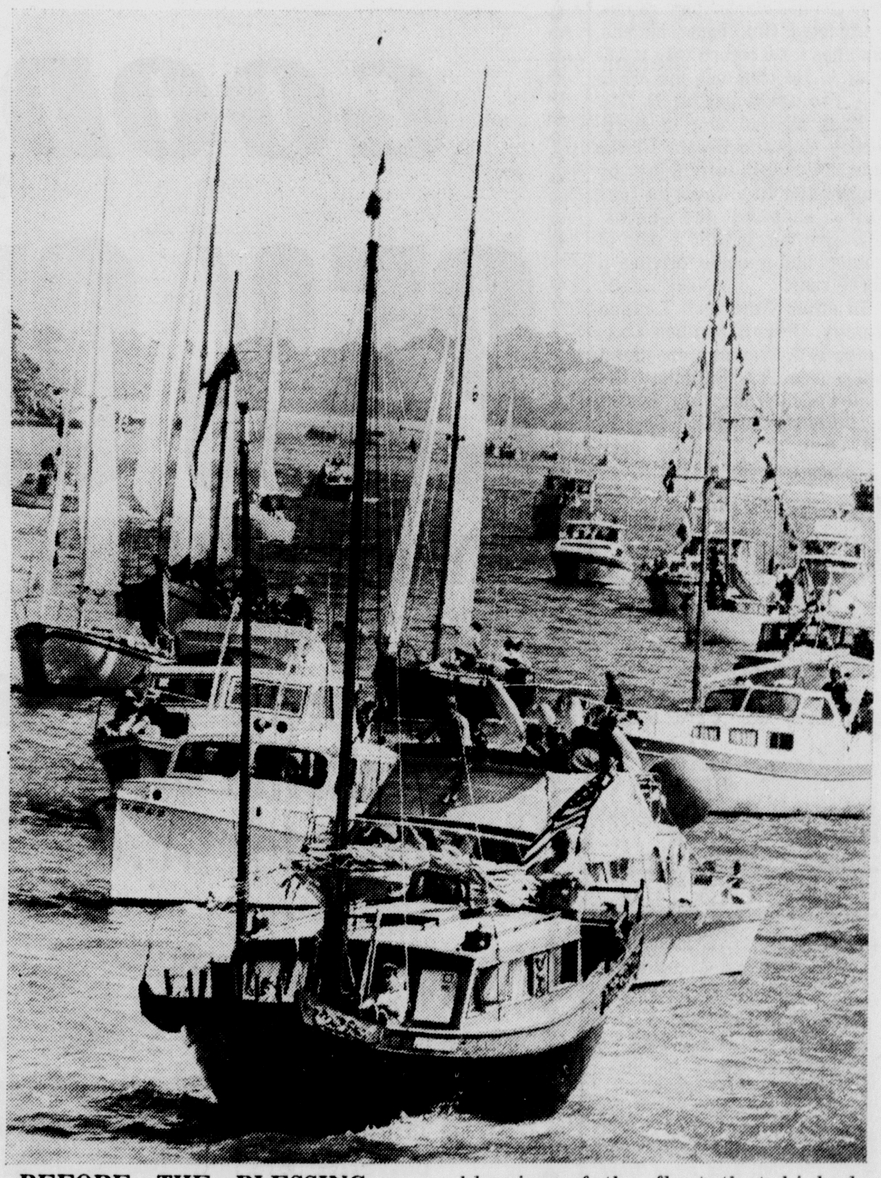
Three boats sailing under the colors of different yacht clubs in Marin County swept the top awards in the San Francisco Chronicle's best decorated boats contest yesterday during the opening day parade of the 1971 yachting season.

Making history by becoming the first sailboat to win the overall title in the contest's 10-year history was Bill Doucet of San Rafael's North Bay Yacht club, with his 37-foot sloop Bridget. Jerry Bredahl of San Rafael Yacht club repeated as winner of the power division aboard his 45-foot cruiser, Ann-Tiki. She was decorated in an American Patrol motif.

Ross Wood of Tiburon's Corinthian Yacht Club took the sail division crown, with deference to Doucet's overall championship. The 29-foot sloop St. Magnus belonging to Wood was decked out in a "Boston Tea Party" theme, which included a tomahawk-wielding Indian and a group of hearties who tossed four large (tea) boxes over the side.

Doucet's boat, entered as "Bridget the Irish Frigate," was dressed in kelly-green, except for her white hull, and her one-masted sail structure was designed to depict a legendary Irish harp. On the foredeck, a half dozen colleens danced a jig accompanied by a band playing folk tunes from the boat's cockpit.

More than 2,000 pleasure craft of all shapes and sizes took part in the armada off Raccoon Straits in Tiburon, in the most delightful weather to grace a season-opening parade in years.



BEFORE THE BLESSING — Pleasure craft in all shapes and sizes graced the waters off Raccoon Straits in Tiburon yesterday morning in preparation for the blessing of the fleet that kicked off the opening day parade of the yacht season. The blessing was given from the deck of the U.S.S. Badger.

14-Hit Attack Wins For Marin Nine, 11-2

The College of Marin Tars found a sure cure for their two game losing streak Saturday as they mounted a 14-hit attack to dismantle Skyline J.C. for the third time this season, 11-2 in San Bruno.

In winning their ninth Camino Norte Conference game against five losses, the Kentfield team got a two-run homer by Larry Brazda, a pair of triples by Rafael Gallardo, and four singles in five at bats by Ken Roby. Gerry Goodrick went the distance on the mound, scattering nine hits.

The Tars got off on the right foot in the first inning when Gallardo banged his first triple and Brazda, the league's leading hitter with a .450 average, rocked his homer, a two run shot. Marin wrapped up the win with a five-run outburst in the fifth.

Mike Parnow, the seventh leading hitter in the league, upped his average with a pair of singles.

Machette Loses In Ojai Finals

OJAI, Calif. (UPI)—University of Southern California-bound Raul Ramirez of Mexico captured the invitational men's singles title at the Ojai Valley tennis tournament Sunday with a 6-7, 7-6, 6-4 victory over Trojan sophomore Mike Machette of Belvedere.

Ramirez, from Ensenada, teamed with Jim Hobson, an ex-USC player, to win the doubles 6-2, 7-6 over Machette and John Andrews, also of Southern Cal.

Powerful Bucks Roll On

BALTIMORE (UPI) — The Milwaukee Bucks, combining their own overwhelming power along with an emotional letdown suffered by Baltimore, appeared in excellent shape today to capture the National Basketball Association championship in only their third year of existence.

Milwaukee routed the Bullets, 102-83, in a nationally televised game at Baltimore Sunday to take a 2-0 lead in their best-of-seven final series. The teams move back to Milwaukee for the third game Wednesday and it wouldn't be too much of a surprise if the Bucks win it all in the fourth game at Baltimore next Friday.

But, before the Bucks get too carried away with themselves, it should be remembered that the Bullets have been in a hole before. They lost the opening game of their quarter-final series against Philadelphia and the first two against New York in the semi-finals before rallying to win both sets.

However, Coach Gene Shue admits that his team may be playing one series too many in

CHAMP OF CHAMPS

Nicklaus Breezes To Easy Victory

At 31, he is at the height of his powers. He has all the physical equipment and the right mental attitude to become the greatest golfer in history.

He won the MONY Tournament of Champions going away Sunday as they say at the races. He had an eight-stroke margin, greatest in two years on the pro tour.

On a tough golf course with overgrown rough and narrow fairways and sometimes gusty winds, he shot 69-71-69-70—279, nine under par for the La Costa Country Club.

The $33,000 first prize put him over the $100,000 mark for the ninth consecutive year. He has won $102,930 this year, only a few thousand less than the No. 1 man, Arnold Palmer. At 41, Palmer must be considered on the way downhill.

Three pros tied for second eight back of Nicklaus. They were Gary Player, 70-71-74-72—287; Bruce Devlin, 72-70-72-73, and Dave Stockton, 71-72-72-72. Each collected $12,760.

Stockton played with Nicklaus in the last round and said, "Jack's like a foxy card player. He plays good enough to win. He's the greatest I've ever seen. If he entered 30 tournaments a year, I think he'd win eight or ten of them."

Nicklaus said he thought he played better in the Masters at Augusta, Ga., where he tied for second with John Miller behind Charles Coody.

Coody shot a 75 in the T of C Sunday for a 290 total, good for a tie for seventh with Frank Beard and worth $4,930.

Gene Littler, three-time T of C winner, shot a final 71 which put him at even par 288 in fifth place and good for $6,770.

Bobby Nichols took sixth and $5,940 for his 71 and 289.

The course was rough, all the pros agreed. The rough was ankle deep and the fairways narrow—some just 80 feet. All the other pros said Nicklaus fared better in the rough

A's To Challenge Champion Orioles

Oakland's Win Streak Is Ended

OAKLAND (UPI)—The Oakland A's winning streak is at an end, which had to happen, and now all they can think about is starting a new one.

It will be a tall order because the Baltimore Orioles, defending world champions, are in town tonight for the first game of a four-game series.

"I don't think this is a bigger series than the one we just finished," said A's manager Dick Williams Sunday after his club was thrashed by the Detroit Tigers, 10-2, "But psychologically it could be something more."

Williams acknowledged the Orioles are tops "but we have the best record this year, so right now we are the best in our league and with the Giants we are the best in baseball. What happened last year is history."

Williams sends flame-thrower Vida Blue, 4-1 against the Orioles' Pat Dibson, 1-1, tonight and will follow with Diego Segui vs. Dave McNally, Jim Hunter against Mike Cuellar and Rollie Fingers against Jim Palmer.

"It's no make or break series," said Williams, "and we feel right now we can beat anyone. We went into Minnesota last week and beat them twice and we followed that with a three-game sweep in Anaheim. Winning those two series gave us a big lift and if we can beat the Orioles, so much the better."

Williams doesn't care to dwell too long on what happened to the A's Sunday when Mickey Lolich and Fred Scherman held them to just three hits while the Tigers were mauling five Oakland pitchers for 15 hits.

"If you have to lose," said Williams, "that's the way to do it. We weren't in the game for more than the first four innings and they simply beat the hell out of us."

Dick McAuliffe drove in five runs for the Tigers with a homer and double and Bill Freehan and Willie Horton added homers to send Fingers down to his second defeat against one victory. Seven of the 10 Detroit runs were charged to Fingers.

The victory snapped the A's winning streak at seven games. Still, though, they have an overall record of 14-6, which is tops in the American league.

A crowd of only 10,677 saw Sunday's game and the three-game weekend series against the Tigers produced a total of 25,563 and gave the A's a home season attendance of 62,000 for eight dates, down about 10,000 from a year ago.

Of course, the A's are hoping to pick up this week during the big series with the Orioles plus pennant day on Saturday and a doubleheader next Sunday.

"Somebody has to bring them out," said Williams. "They aren't going to see much better baseball than we have been playing."

Double Signing By Porter?

PITTSBURGH (UPI)—Mark Binstein, general manager of the Pittsburgh Condors, admitted today he never has seen the contract which Howard Porter allegedly signed with the American Basketball Association team.

But Binstein remained insistent the Condors will be able to prove they signed Porter before he signed a five-year contract Saturday with the Chicago Bulls of the rival NBA.

"I doubt that seven days will go by without the Pittsburgh fans being satisfied," Binstein said, using a time period he has used before in the Porter fiasco.

A DAY OFF

Giants Head For Atlanta

ATLANTA (UPI) — After the two youngsters of the San Francisco pitching staff notched their first major league shutouts against Pittsburgh, the Giants' ace — Juan Marichal — had his troubles with the Pirates.

Complaining of a bad back, Marichal left the game Sunday in the fifth inning, but he still absorbed the loss, his second in a row, as the Pirates took a 6-2 victory to prevent a Giants sweep.

Marichal's troubles started in the third inning when the Giants were leading 1-0. Vic Davalillo, who drove in three runs in the game, singled between walks to Dave Cash and Roberto Clemente to load the bases.

Marichal struck out Willie Stargell, but Milt May drove in one run with an infield bouncer and Al Oliver doubled to center on a ball misjudged by Cesar Rosario to score two more.

The Pirates got two more runs in the sixth on a single by Davilillo. The little first baseman drove in his third run on another single in the eighth.

The Giants scored first in the second inning when Oliver dropped a line drive in center field, allowing Al Gallagher to score from second. San Francisco got its second run in the fifth when Willie McCovey belted one into the leftfield seats for his second homer of the season.

Torre Continues Clutch Hitting

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

Joe Torre is a jolly fellow despite an imposing physique and bushy eyebrows which remind sports fans of boxing's Sonny Liston and Sunday night he threw a barbecue for all his neighbors in St. Louis.

Joe can afford it because he is a $100,000-a-year player and he played the good host because he is off to what could be the best season of his career. He has hit safely in all 19 of the St. Louis Cardinals' games, has a .384 season average and came through Sunday with the winning hit in a 5-4 victory over the Philadelphia Phillies.

The victory gave the Cardinals a 12-7 season record and left them only a few percentage points behind the Montreal Expos in the National League's Eastern Division race. The Cardinals, NL champions in 1967 and 1968, finished fourth, 13 games out of first place in the Eastern Division, in 1970.

Torre's single with two out in the ninth drove in Lou Brock with the winning run. The blow climaxed a three-run rally which gave Frank Linzy his first victory of the season for the Cardinals and tagged the Phillies' Woody Fryman with his third straight loss.

The Cincinnati Reds downed the Los Angeles Dodgers, 2-0, after a 4-2 loss, the Chicago Cubs ripped the New York Mets, 9-3, the Pittsburgh Pirates defeated the San Francisco Giants, 6-2, the Montreal Expos shaded the Houston Astros, 2-1, and the Atlanta Braves nipped the San Diego Padres, 4-3, in 10 innings after a 3-2 defeat, in other NL games.

Bill Singer pitched a five-hitter as the Dodgers extended their winning streak to six games but the Reds won the second game of the doubleheader behind the six-hit pitching of Don Gullett. Willie Davis' triple and a double by Steve Garvey were the big blows of a four-run, fourth-inning uprising by the Dodgers in the first game. Tommy Helms singled home one run and Tony Perez homered for the Reds in the second game as Gullett struck out five and walked three in raising his record to 2-0.

Ferguson Jenkins, the only major league pitcher who has won 20 games in each of the last four seasons, won his third game of the current campaign with a nine-hitter for the Cubs.

Ron Hunt's single drove in the second of two unearned runs in the third inning to provide the Expos with their margin of victory at Houston. Jack Billingham and Jim Ray held the Expos to four hits but Bill Stoneman hurled a three-hitter, striking out six and walking two for Montreal.

Larry Stahl's sixth-inning single drove in the winning run for the Padres in the first game at Atlanta despite the 599th homer of Hank Aaron's career and gave Dave Roberts his first win of the season. The homer was Aaron's seventh of the season and left him one short of joining Willie Mays and Babe Ruth as the only players in major league history who have hit 600 career homers.

It's A Shutout For Jim Kaat

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

Jim Kaat -one of two remaining original Minnesota Twins. Jim Kaat —a 25-game winner in 1966 with a major league record of 158-131. Jim Kaat —the Golden Glove-winning southpaw who completed only four of 34 starts last year. Jim Kaat —at the age of 31, the forgotten man of the Twins' pitching staff.

Suddenly Kaat is once again in the limelight after recording his second shutout of the season Sunday with a two-hit whitewashing of the New York Yankees, the Twins winning, 8-0.

Baseball experts, in the off season, talked about the magnificence of Jim Perry, the shining future of Bert Blyleven, the relief work of Ron Perranoski and the hopeful comebacks of Dave Boswell and Luis Tiant.

If Kaat was mentioned at all, it was only in a negative manner. Despite a 14-10 record last season, his slim total of four complete games stuck out like a sore thumb. He had lost his zip and was now being referred to as a "junkie" who could no longer be counted on as an effective starter.

But Kaat has apparently decided to prove the experts wrong. After an ineffective relief stint on opening day, the veteran has started four games, completed two, both shutouts, and has a 2-0 record with a 2.89 E.R.A. He shut out the White Sox two weeks ago on 11 hits.

Kaat allowed only a third-inning single to Horace Clarke and an eighth-infield hit by pinch-hitter Ron Woods as Tony Oliva supplied the Twins' offensive punch with a pair of homers and a single, driving in three runs.

In other American League games, Detroit bombed Oakland, 10-2, Washington edged Milwaukee, 3-2, Baltimore defeated California, 7-1, Boston beat Chicago, 5-4, and Kansas City took a 6-4 victory over Cleveland.

Tom McCraw cracked the third straight hit in the 10th inning to give the Senators a come-from-behind victory over the Brewers. McCraw, who had doubled and scored the tying run in the ninth inning, singled up the middle off reliever Dick Ellsworth to score Don Wert from third base with the winning run.

Jim Palmer fired a six-hitter and singled in a pair of runs in the sixth inning to give the Orioles their victory over the Angels. Palmer, now 3-0, beat Jim Maloney, making his first American League start.

Carl Yastrzemski hit a two-run homer and walked to force in the winning run in the eighth inning to give the Red Sox the win over Chicago. Don Eddy, the fifth of six White Sox hurlers, walked Yastrzemski to break a 4-4 tie after a walk to Phil Gagliano and singles by Luis Aparicio and Reggie Smith had loaded the bases.

Ed Kirkpatrick hit a three-run homer and Jerry May a two-run blast in the first inning to lead the Royals to a rain-delayed victory over Cleveland. Kansas City scored all six runs off Steve Hargan, now 0-3, in the first inning.

Tradition Loses In NHL Playoffs

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Stanley Cup play traditionally involves close-checking and low scoring games but tradition has been the first thing to go in the 1971 playoffs.

First the defending champion Boston Bruins, who virtually rewrote National Hockey League scoring records this season, were eliminated by the Montreal Canadiens. Then the St. Louis Blues, Stanley Cup finalists in each of their three years in the league, were upended by the Minnesota North Stars.

Now defense, usually the foundation of a Stanley Cup series, has gone out the window.

That was evident again Sunday as the Chicago Black Hawks routed the New York Rangers, the best defensive team in the NHL this season, 7-1, and the North Stars ripped the Canadiens, one of the closest checking teams in hockey, 5-2. Both best-of-seven series now are tied at two games apiece.

Bobby Hull, held in check by the Rangers through the first three games, scored his first points of the series with a pair of assists within a two-minute span of the second period to ignite the rout of the Rangers. Chicago led 1-0 on Jim Pappin's first period goal when Hull, the second leading scorer in NHL history, set up a goal by Bill White at 5:45 of the second period and another by Danny O'Shea at 7:28.

Chicago coach Billy Reay said he was glad "the club was able to snap back. Now it's a three-game series and two of those games are in Chicago."

That's the same sentiment echoed by Minnesota Coach Jackie Gordon, whose North Stars stunned Montreal in a series in which all four games have been lopsided victories.

Montreay won the first and third games 7-2 and 6-3 while the North Stars took the second and fourth 6-3 and 5-2.

Murray Oliver had a pair of goals and Jean Paul Parise put in the go-ahead score in the third period as the North Stars, the only club ever to beat an established team in Stanley Cup play, evened the series. The fifth game will be played in Montreal Tuesday night.

Recreation Softball

In San Rafael Recreation Department adult softball league games yesterday at Albert Park, The Scrappers outlasted Bermann MFG, 15-11 and Marin Supply edged Don Rumpf Golf Shop, 6-5.

Ralston Helps U.S. To World Cup Win

NEWTON, Mass. (UPI) — Dennis Ralston halted a threatened Australian comeback to lead the United States to victory in the second annual $30,000 world cup professional tennis matches.

Ralston defeated Roy Emerson of Australia 6-1, 6-7, 7-6, in match play Sunday to give the United States a 4-2 triumph in the best-of-seven series. The U.S. team had led 3-1 at the start of the day, but Australia's John Newcombe beat Arthur Ashe in match play to narrow the lead to 3-2.

In other tennis news:

SAN DIEGO (UPI)—The 14-tournament Virginia Slims women's pro tennis series is over and Billie Jean King of Long Beach, Calif., won eight of them.

Mrs. King took the finale, the San Diego Open, Sunday with a 4-6, 7-5, 6-1 victory over San Francisco's Rosemary Casals for a first prize of $2,500.

She finished as the No. 1 money winner in the series at $36,350 while Miss Casals ranked second at $27,750.

DENVER (UPI)—Cliff Drysdale says Australia's Ken Rosewall may not be big in stature, but his tennis shots more than make up for anything he lacks in height.

Rosewall, who is 5-foot 7, whipped South Africa's Drysdale 6-3, 6-2 Sunday to win $5,000 first place prize money in the Denver Tennis invitational.

HOUSTON (UPI) — Second seeded Cliff Richey of San Angelo, Tex., upset top seeded Clark Graebner of New York in easy, straight sets Sunday to win the singles title of the 37th annual River Oaks Tennis Tournament.

Richey's win avenged his loss to Graebner in last year's finals. Richey never lost his service in winning the best of five match 6-2, 6-1, 6-2.

Golf

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (UPI) —Lee Trevino, the Texas golfer who failed to qualify for the tournament of champions this year, is making plans for next year's tournament after winning a $12,000 consolation prize Sunday.

Trevino put together four birdies and some steady putting to win the Tallahassee Open with a 15-under 273. It was his first victory since the 1970 National Airlines open more than a year ago.

MIAMI (UPI)—Watch out for lady golfer Sandra Haynie when she gets nervous and flustered.

"I was in trouble all day long," Miss Haynie said Sunday after shooting an even par 74 for a three-stroke victory and $4,500 first prize in the Burdine's ladies invitational golf tournament.

Auto Racing

TRENTON, N.J. (UPI) — It took a few blown engines and a narrow escape to give young Mike Mosley his first USAC championship victory.

Mosley, a 26-year-old driver from Brownsburg, Ind., took first prize money of $13,850 in the Trentonian 200 Sunday after a number of the favorites had dropped out.

Mosley took the lead on the 36th lap and led the rest of the way,

Boxing

TAMPA, Fla (UPI) — Thirty-two year old Bob Foster won a unanimous 15-round decision over back-pedalling Ray Anderson Saturday night to retain his light heavyweight championship. Anderson's manager, Yank Durham left the ring in disgust before the fight was over, and said later, "I think it's a disgrace. I'm disgraced to be associated with a man who would run like that."

Tam Seventh In El Cerrito Track Relays

Despite poor weather that kept times down and a bad ankle that kept Gerald Robertson down, Tamalpais High School took seventh place Saturday in the El Cerrito track and field relays at El Cerrito High.

Tam, the only Marin County Athletic League school to figure in the scoring, took second in the two-mile relay and third in the 480 shuttle low hurdles, and captured another third when Robertson, operating off a sprained ankle, triple jumped 44 feet, 10¼ inches.

That leap eclipsed the MCAL record for the triple jump by more than three feet — it was astounding considering that it was the first time Robertson ever competed in the event. In his specialty, the high jump, the ankle kept him from placing.

The Indians' two mile relay team of Paul Ringleman, Vian Collier, Mike Arago and Carlos Martinez was clocked in 8:12.7, two seconds behind first place El Cerrito.

Lacrosse Victory For Novato Team

Novato's Parks and Recreation Department squeaked by crosstown rival Church of the Latter Day Saints yesterday, 7-6 in a Northern California Lacrosse Association junior division match at Novato High School.

Dick Tetu of Parks and Rec and Dan Daly of LDS tied for high-scoring honors with three goals apiece.

Shortstop Ron Blum scored the winning run from second base on an infield out in the sixth inning of the opener and hit a leadoff homer in the bottom of the seventh of the nightcap to give the San Anselmo team the sweep.

Colonels Reach ABA Finals

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

The Kentucky Colonels have advanced to the American Basketball Association final playoffs and will meet the survivor of the hotly-fought series between the Indiana Pacers and Utah Stars.

Kentucky assured itself of a berth in the championship round by ripping the Virginia Squires, 129-117, at Louisville Saturday night to win their semi-final series, four games to two. However, the start of the finals was delayed as the Pacers nipped the Stars, 105-102, at Salt Lake City to deadlock the series at 3-3.

"First, I want to say that the Bucks have a terrific team," he said. "But our players are really not involved in this series. We have not yet recovered from the emotional New York series. It was a drain, like getting into the World Series. Our team is let out."

Along with their physical and mental handicaps, the Bullets also are having their expected difficulties in handling Lew Alcindor and Oscar Robertson. Alcindor scored 27 points and had 24 rebounds Sunday and Robertson, in addition to scoring 22 points, held Bullet ace Earl Monroe to 11.

"Oscar did a fantastic job on defense," said Milwaukee Coach Larry Costello, who credited a fine team defense for the big victory. "Monroe had to work for his points and he didn't get many baskets."

As for Alcindor, Costello said they were getting the ball into him much better in the third quarter, when the 7-2 center collected 10 of his points.

GM MARK OF EXCELLENCE

TAKE A QUIET RIDE WITH THE QUIET MEN OF OLDS

Delta 88 with exclusive new "G-Ride." We'll let the car do all the talking.

The Quiet Men—your Bay Area Olds Dealers—believe a Delta 88 is its own best salesman.

So they invite you to come in and take a "Quiet Ride"—a test drive in a Delta 88 with "G-Ride". They'll let the car do all the talking.

"G-Ride" is a combination of advances that make every ride more enjoyable. ☐ Tuned body mounts to soak up vibration. ☐ Coil springs computer-matched to the weight of the car and the equipment you order. ☐ New molded-foam front seat, six inches thick, to resist sagging. ☐ Plus exclusive Olds Supershocks that smooth out the roughest roads.

And there's a lot more to enjoy in a Delta 88. Power steering and power front disc brakes for greater ease and handling. Both standard. So is a power ventilation system for extra comfort. A pollution-fighting Rocket V-8 engine. And all the GM safety features—from side-marker lights on each fender to side-guard beams inside each door.

So see your Bay Area Olds Dealer for a "Quiet Ride" in a new Delta 88. He'll see that you get "something extra" for giving him the opportunity.

FIRE DISASTER — One of the victims of an early morning fire in Seattle yesterday is taken from the apartment building in which at least 13 persons died when the blaze swept through the old three-story structure. About 50 persons, mostly elderly, had lived in the building.

12 Die In Seattle Apartment Fire

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

At least 29 persons, including 13 children and teen-agers, died during the weekend in fires that struck an old apartment building in Seattle, and homes in Ohio, St. Paul, Boston, and New York City.

Many of the elderly tenants of an old Seattle apartment building, in which 12 persons perished, were forced to leap from windows to escape the flames.

Six of the victims were over 60. Three were killed when they jumped from their apartments. Ten others were injured, at least one critically.

Several pool players from an all-night parlor next door rushed to help the residents when the blaze broke out.

"It was a rip-roaring inferno when we got there," said Morris Montgomery, who ran from the Paradise Billiards Parlor. "People were hanging from the windows by their hands."

Three young children died of asphyxiation and a fourth was seriously injured in a fire which broke out in a frame house in East Cleveland, Ohio.

The children were identified as Charles Walker, 6, Madeline Walker, 4, and Christo Davis, 2. Lloyd Walker, 5, was injured. The two mothers of the children were not at home at the time.

In Gallipolis, Ohio, Bert Yost, 54, his son Bobby, 17, and daughter Thelma, 24, and two neighbor children, Jeff Dobbins, 16, and Paul Kent Jr., 14, died in a fire that swept the Yost home.

Mrs. Yost and another son, Cecil, 22, were hospitalized. Firemen said the rural home was almost destroyed by the time they arrived.

Four of the victims were children of the Albert Leon Gartman family: Michael Sheppard, 17, a stepson; Albert Gartman Jr., 13, Donna Kay Gartman, 10, and David Gartman, 9. Thomas Burnett, 17, who was visiting, also died.

Joseph LaMonica, 79, Boston, died of an apparent heart attack while fleeing his burning home Saturday night.

A 9-year-old boy died in a fire in Brooklyn, and a 3-year-old girl was killed in a blaze in Manhattan Sunday.

Prominent Chinese Figure Dies at 77

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— The one-time acting premier of Nationalist China who also served as the nation's foreign minister during World War ii, died here Sunday night.

T. V. Soong, once one of the most powerful figures in China who in recent years was a leader in Chinese-American banking circles, collapsed and died at a dinner party at the home of Edward Eu, chairman of the Bank of Canton. He was 77.

The immediate cause of death could not be determined. An autopsy was scheduled for later today.

Soong became Nationalist Chinese foreign minister following the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor. He held the post until 1945 when he briefly became acting premier of the nation.

A member of a prominent Chinese family, Soong was the brother of Madam Chiang Kai-shek and of Madame Sun Yat-sen, wife of China's revolutionary hero.

His brother, Soong Ching-ling, currently is one of Communist China' two vice chairmen (vice presidents.)

Soong's brother-in-law, H.H. Kung, also served as prime minister and in other high posts. Soong was one of China's most powerful and influential men until before the Communist takeover. He and Kung were reputed to be China's two richest men before the revolution and it was believed they had sent much of their wealth to the United States.

Some Nationalist Chinese leaders have blamed Soong and Kung for the corruption that led to the Nationalist government's downfall. Mao Tse-tung, the Chinese Communist party chairman, listed Soong in second place, behind Chiang Kai-shek, on a list of "Kuomintang (Nationalist) war criminals."

Soong's father, Charles Jones Soong, was a Shanghai merchant marine who lived in the United States as a child and studied theology for three years at Vanderbilt University in Nashville, Tenn.

Born in Kwangtung in 1894, Soong was educated at Harvard and Columbia, as well as St. John's University in Shanghai.

Soong was a governor of the Central Bank of China from 1923 to 1933. He joined the ministry of finance in 1928, leaving in 1932 to serve as vice president of China's Executive Yuan (parliament).

In 1933 he was chief delegate to the World Economic Development Congress in London and spent many of the prewar years attempting to finance the Chinese government.

Following his brief tenure as president of the Yuan (a post equivalent to the premiership) Soong became governor of Kwangtung province, a post he held until the Communist takeover of China in 1949.

After leaving China following the Communist victory, Soong came to New York where he continued to be active in Chinese banking affairs.

3 Saved — 25 Hours In Sea

FREEPORT, Tex. (UPI)—A 50-year-old doctor, his wife and their 17-year-old daughter survived the explosion and sinking of their cabin cruiser during the weekend and then floated in the Gulf of Mexico for 25 hours with their life jackets lashed together.

They were rescued Sunday afternoon eight miles off the Texas coast. Coast Guard officials guessed they floated for 30 miles.

During their ordeal they suffered from sunburn, exhaustion, rope burn and exposure. They were taken to a hospital in Houston where they were reported in satisfactory condition.

Dr. Sheldon Tucker, 50, his wife, Corrine, and their daughter Wendy, 17, were rescued at 2:30 p.m. Sunday eight miles off Freeport in the Gulf. Their 38-foot cabin cruiser, The Sea Lair, exploded and burned about 1:30 p.m. Saturday while they were on a fishing trip out of Freeport.

Tucker, a general practitioner from Houston, tied himself, his wife and his daughter together through their life jackets so they would not be separated in the bobbing waters.

They were rescued by the shrimp boat, The Captain Eddie, run by Joe R. Salinas.

"When they pulled us aboard we couldn't walk," Wendy said. "They took us to their beds and we went to sleep immediately."

She said moments before the shrimp boat rescued them, they saw a buoy "and we were trying to swim to it before dark."

"But we couldn't have made it because the buoy was too far away," she said. "But we just didn't want to spend another night in the cold water.

"The explosion and the fire happened so quick," she said. "It caught in the engine compartment. We couldn't get to the fire extinguisher or the radio. I guess it was about five minutes and we had to jump.

"We watched the boat burn but we turned our heads and didn't watch it sink," she said.

"At night Daddy tied our life preservers so we couldn't get separated," she said. "We saw several shrimpers and yelled and hollered. But they were so far away that they couldn't see us."

No Complaint In Car Theft Case

No charges have been filed in Marin Municipal Court against Robin Allan Patterson, 20, of Novato, who was arrested April 19 on suspicion of car theft.

Novato police said that Patterson had had a tow truck remove an inoperable car owned by another Novato man from in front of the other man's home.
